POPULAR VOTE

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A record number of voters marked ballots in Tuesday's federal election.

The total is estimated at 8,295,200, based on a projection from the figure from 95 per cent of the polls reported early today.

Previous record turnout was 7,894,076, set in 1963.

There were 10,825,079 eligible voters, highest ever, in Tuesday's election.

The percentage turning out was about 75 per cent, the same as in 1965.

PM Pledges Shuffle For New Grit Cabinet

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau in a victory statement Tuesday night announced there would be as many as six new faces in a revised cabinet to be unveiled within a week.

The new cabinet would hold its first meeting next Wednesday, he told a press conference here.

The next session of Parliament would be in the second week of September, the normal time lapse following an election, unless an urgent situation required Parliament to be summoned sooner.

The first speech from the throne will contain "a great deal of reforms" he said.

Among the reforms will be changes in parliamentary rules to enable Parliament to handle more rapidly the great work load placed before it by the government.

EXPECT MUCH

Mr. Trudeau said in winning the election he is aware that the people expect a lot from him. He said he would strive to live up to those expectations.

He cautioned however, "Governments alone cannot produce a better country." He urged all Canadians to show more interest in running the affairs of the nation. He was pleased with the participation in the political affairs of the nation by the younger people as demonstrated during the election campaign.

He expects to attend the prime ministers' conference in the United Kindom next fall.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Asked if he would go to visit President Johnson, Mr. Trudeau indicated he would not be as specialized in the field of foreign affairs as had been his predecessor L. B. Pearson. He suggested he would be leaving more of that work in external affairs to his minister, presumably Mitchell Sharp.

As usual Mr. Trudeau played it cool with the customary nice turn of phrase. The election campaign was "a great adventure in discovery" as he travelled the country.

SEES TOLERANCE

He promised a "forward-looking and constructive program" for the newly-elected Parliament. The election was fought "in a mood of tolerance." Much hard work lies ahead and the government will start immediately.

The statement was read in English and French before television cameras. Then he fielded questions and, as usual, wasn't trapped by any.

He had nothing new to offer on the settlement of the seaway workers' strike. He would be handicapped a little in raising the economic level of the Atlantic provinces because of the few Liberals elected from the area. But the job would be tackled anyway.

OTHER FACTORS

He warned against interpreting the Quebec vote as a reaction to his constitutional policies alone. Other factors entered into the return of a Liberal majority from the predominantly-French speaking province.

His own role in the election victory was "a little overplayed" by the press.

The separatist-inspired riot in Montreal on election-eve at the Saint Jean Baptiste Day parade, which he reviewed, did not weigh heavily on the election outcome. It might have confirmed the voting inclinations of some people.

SOON OVER

The conference was soon over. His press secretary, Romeo Leblanc, cut the questions off. And Mr. Trudeau went out of the room into the mob of well-wishers outside.

Later, he shared a drink with reporters and his personal staff at a post-midnight party in another hotel room.

He had watched the returns come in on television earlier in a fifth-floor suite in the Chateau Laurier.

BARNETT BOOSTS LEAD

New Democrat Tom Barnett held a 122-vote lead at press time over Liberal Richard Durante in the Comox-Alberni riding.

Three polls in the far-flung riding still were to be heard from. (See earlier story on page 50).

Mr. Barnett has held the seat since 1953.

Gamble Pays In 154 Seats

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pierre Elliott Trudeau challenged Canadians to "take a risk with the future" and the voters accepted Tuesday, handing his Liberal government a solid majority in the national election.

The 48-year-old bachelor took something of a gamble himself in calling the election three days after he became prime minister April 20.

But it paid off as the Liberals gained strength in Ontario and the West, just about held their own in Quebec and emerged with 154 seats in the 264-seat Commons.

Like the winning Liberals, the New Democrats and Creditistes gained.

Robert Stanfield's Conservatives showed strength only in the Atlantic provinces and slumped to 71 seats from 97 after the 1965 election.

It was a black day for the Conservatives as their front-bench line was riddled by the Trudeau attack.

But it was black for New Democrats also as their leader, T. C. Douglas, took a personal defeat in a close and bitter fight with Liberal Ray Perrault in Burnaby-Seymour, where a recount seems likely. It was Mr. Douglas' 13th federal or provincial election.

The Social Credit party was wiped out entirely as it was in 1958.

Record Turnout of Electorate

Voting turnout was a record, an estimated 8,295,200. But the percentage of eligibles voting was about the same as in 1965, about 75 per cent.

The election was the sixth since 1957 and the first to produce a majority government since John Diefenbaker led the Conservatives to a landslide win in 1958.

For Mr. Trudeau, lawyer, writer, professor and non-conformist world traveller, it was the climax of a spectacular rise since his entry to politics in 1965.

After only 12 weeks as Liberal leader, he gained the Commons majority that Lester B. Pearson sought unsuccessfully to build in 1958, 1962, 1963 and 1965.

Briefly, after polls started closing in Eastern Canada and the Conservatives showed surprising strength in Newfoundland, it looked as though the goal might be missed again.

The Conservatives took six of seven seats in Newfoundland, which had been all-Liberal before, and added to their power in other Atlantic provinces.

At one point, 54-year-ol Mr. Stanfield, also in his first federal fight, gave his wife a happy hug and let himself "hope" the wave would continue.

But the returns started coming in from Quebec and Ontario it was clear the Trudeau excitement — "Trudeaumania" — had caught on. At 9:29 p.m. EDT The Canadian Press reported election of a majority Liberal government.

Mr. Stanfield, taking a look at the results later, said he had known before the voting his party could expect no more than 75 to 90 seats.

Five Liberals, four Conservatives and two NDP winners had margins under 200 votes and could be upset by the armed forces vote, being announced Saturday.

Two Cabinet Ministers Lose

Mr. Trudeau lost two cabinet ministers, Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve and Charles Granger, minister without portfolio. His Liberals were hit hard in Newfoundland, shut out again in Prince Edward Island and cut slightly in Quebec to 55 from 56 seats.

But the gains from Quebec westward more than compensated. In Ontario the Liberals went to 65 from 51 seats and in Brit-

Party Stands, But . . .

WILL DOUGLAS RISE FROM PERRAULT KO?

By DENNIS ORCHARD

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — The New Democratic Party still stands, but its leader is down.

This time, after his second personal beating in the last four federal elections, T. C. Douglas, 63, may not rise again.

The doughty socialist lost Tuesday—by 93 votes among 39,564 cast in Burnaby-Seymour riding—to Liberal Ray Perrault.

Nationally, the NDP held its own with 23 seats, but this astonishing contest must shake the party to its roots, and make immediate retirement a decision that Mr. Douglas will surely consider.

He waits now for the service vote, which went 2-to-1 against him in the last election, and a certain recount of the ballots.

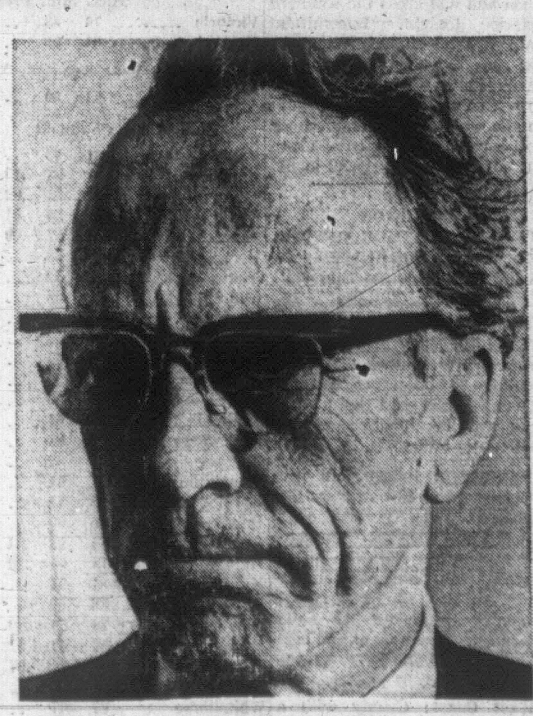

Contradictory counts, and reports of unsealed ballot boxes, confused the issue Tuesday night and Mr. Douglas refused comment on the final result or on his political future.

PARTY FACES PROSPECT

But his early departure as leader, which seemed to be pending before the next election in any case, was a prospect facing the party.

OWN FUTURE PLACED IN DOUBT

Stanfield 'Ready for Defeat'

By GERARD McNEIL

HALIFAX (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert L. Stanfield accepted his party's defeat in the federal elction gracefully Tuesday night and said he had been ready for it.

"It was apparent from the outset that the contest of this election was not easy for us, coming immediately on top of the Liberal convention and Trudeaumania," he told a news conference after reading, with composure, a statement conceding the defeat of his party.

He said he was aware by election eve the Liberals would win.

Polls and predictions had forced him to recognize "that something between 75 and 90 seats would be as much as we could expect."

Expected or not, the result placed Mr. Stanfield's political future in doubt in a party noted for tough handling of its leaders. The 54-year-old Nova Scotian ousted John Diefenbaker only last September in a party leadership convention.

Tuesday's vote dropped Conservative strength in the 264-sc - Commons to about 72 seats from the 94 held at dissolution April 23, when Prime Minister Trudeau called the election.

"I think the government will shortly be judged by its performance," Mr. Stanfield said at his headquarters here.

WILL STAY AT HOME

He said he has no firm plans about returning to Ottawa and will stay in Halifax, where he won personal election easily.

In his formal statement, he congratulated Mr. Trudeau and assured him Conservatives will form an "informed, vigorous, effective and responsible" opposition.

The party would also recognize its responsibility to encourage a genuine and effective unity in Canada and "to encourage the government to meet certain basic problems" which if not met would mean "very serious consequences" for the country. He said the election hadn't solved the problems that existed when it was called.

CHATTERTON TOPPLED

'I Thought I'd Lose' Says Winner Anderson

By PETE LOUDON

A 32-year-old lawyer fighting his first political battle emerged as a Tyee-killer in Esquimalt-Saanich Tuesday night.

Liberal David Anderson captured the seat from Conservative George Chatterton in a contest regarded as a major upset in B.C.

The vote was Anderson 15,890; Chatterton 13,269; Don Johannessen, NDP, 10,874, and Roy Overton, Social Credit, 731. About 77 per cent of the eligible voters turned out.

Mr. Chatterton, a former reeve of Saanich, had held the seat with comparative ease since he won it in 1961, defending it in three subsequent elections.

Most pre-election forecasts leaned toward Mr. Chatterton again.

Even the victorious Mr. Anderson confided after the decisive count:

"I thought I'd lose by 600 votes."

'TRUDEAU DID IT'

But the Trudeau enthusiasm, he said, swept him up. He told Mr. Chatterton later:

"Mr. Trudeau did it all. You've lost but not because of yourself."

Mr. Chatterton, obviously saddened, came to Mr. Anderson's campaign office a few minutes after conceding at 9:27 p.m.

Accompanied by his wife, he met Mr. Anderson outside the office and offered "my sincere congratulations."

Said Mr. Chatterton, "The people have spoken, this I accept.

"If I can be of help at any time, let me know. It was a good hard fight."

"It was a very friendly fight and I enjoyed it," Mr. Anderson replied, making reference to the Trudeau tidal wave.

"But you did a good job," said Mr. Chatterton, then smiling, he added, "If I have any trouble can I write to you for assistance as one of your constituents?"

Mr. Chatterton posed for pictures with an arm about Mr. Anderson's shoulders then walked back to his car, telling reporters it was too soon for him to announce his future plans. Several Anderson campaigners joined in wishing him well.

NDP LEAD

The drama began to shape soon after 8 p.m. closing of polls. The early results gave Mr. Johannessen, of the NDP, 31, the inital lead.

He was in his campaign office at Brunswick Place and Tillicum with about 13 party workers and was shaken by the first poll reports which put him ahead and Mr. Chatterton in second place.

"I'm going to take a little walk," he said.

In the space of minutes Mr. Anderson's home poll, number 67, came in and changed the picture — 196 votes compared to 117 for Mr. Chatterton, 41 for Mr. Johannessen and one for Mr. Overton, the Social Credit campaigner who earlier stated he was only running to fill a job no one else wanted to accept.

(Mr. Overton, who ran his campaign from his home on a low-keyed basis, was not available late Tuesday for comment.)

By the time 30 polls were heard from Mr. Anderson had a total of 1,999 votes, Mr. Chatterton 1,795, Mr. Johannessen 1,549 and Mr. Overton 89.

GLOOMY EARLY

A check at this point at Mr. Chatterton's campaign office on Douglas near Mayfair Shopping Centre found an aura of gloom already in the making.

"Charman has just conceded," said a voice and there was a reflective hush as the 28 people present paused in their totals. This was a reference to Eric Charman, Tory candidate in Victoria.

Someone suggested Mr. Chatterton's strongest polls were still to come in.

"From now on it should be us," said a worker heartily, but not convincingly.

"How do you make a statement of bankruptcy?" asked Mrs. Chatterton.

The traffic of people who chase winners suddenly all seemed to be heading toward Mr. Anderson's office, further north on Douglas a few blocks and west to 19 Cadillac.

BRYANT IN DUTCH

His campaign manager, Mayor Ray Bryant of Esquimalt, had been watching the results as they were tallied on a board at Esquimalt-Saanich returning office at 3400 Douglas. It was apparent he'd better hurry to Mr. Anderson's side.

Mayor Bryant tried avoiding traffic by a back street and taking one corner too fast, he ran his car into a ditch. He arrived at the campaign office on the run and breathless, looking for a tow-rope.

But he had to get help elsewhere. By the time he arrived you couldn't tear a Liberal supporter away from the score boards. With 71 polls reported, Mr. Anderson had 5,056 votes and a lead of 1,300.

Mr. Anderson arrived at that point and the army of campaign workers, mostly university and high school students who were themselves too young to vote, set up a cheer.

"We haven't won yet," he said, but he never had to look back. It was like his silver-medal-winning UBC rowing team of 1960, each second the gap widened and the prize neared.

200 YOUTHS

His crew this time included 200 young campaigners and the drivers of 35 cars who had beaten the bushes all day for forgetful voters.

The next phone call from scrutineers placed him 2,000 ahead. The candidate's grin spread a bit but still he cautioned the crowd, "It's not won yet."

Photographers ignored his words, surrounded him with girls, posed him on chairs, sniped at him from the sides, the front, the back and from above. They knew.

"But I haven't won yet," he objected.

Bob Hutchinson, his agent was telling someone he'd made a $5 bet with Mr. Chatterton's agent Hugh Henderson a few hours earlier, and he knew now that he'd won.

There were about 200 people milling and shouting at 9:27 p.m. when Mr. Chatterton conceded and the roof almost came off.

Mr. Anderson's mother and father, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Anderson, came in the door at that point and the kissing and hugging was suddenly in the Trudeau tradition. Finally the candidate stood on a chair.

"As it seems to be more or less official ... I'm still not sure myself ... I guess I'll have to believe it ..."

'YOU DID IT'

It began as the speech of a boy with a new bicycle. But then he decided it must be real and he thanked his exultant workers.

"It was done by you people working so hard. We have the results today."

He said he hoped the spirit generated by the party will not be lost between elections and that "you people will keep your interest in politics."

He said that after he goes to Ottawa, "I hope to be back every month so we can keep in close touch and keep going as best we can."

He singled out Uvic student Mike de Rosenroll, who has just won his own battle in the shape of a master's degree in political science, as the catalyst.

Then the candidate hoisted a bottle of champagne provided by the students, announced he was inviting all hands to the Red Lion Inn for a party, and headed for his car and that gentle encounter with Mr. Chatterton.

"IF I CAN HELP, tell me," said George Chatterton, left, when he came to congratulate Dave Anderson. Victor and vanquished held warm meeting at Liberal headquarters after Mr. Chatterton conceded the election. Mr. Chatterton held seat for the Conservatives since 1961. A former Saanich reeve, he steps down with continuing respect of the community, he was told. Mr. Anderson pledged himself to monthly visits to his constituency. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

N. Vietnam Build-Up Protested

From AP-Reuters

PARIS (CP) — The United States accused North Vietnam today of pushing troop infiltration into South Vietnam to a record high of 29,000 men during May and said "an abnormally high rate of infiltration" is indicated by evidence for June.

Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance told Ambassador Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam the United States is "prepared to cease bombardment" of North Vietnam but cannot do so when the North has "intensified its war effort" at the very time the United States tried to de-escalate.

Thuy accused Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey of trying to create confusion and mislead world opinion over the bombing question by suggesting recently that an immediate ceasefire should be established in Vietnam.

LACK OF PROGRESS

Lack of progress in Paris peace talks to date, he said, is due to "the position of aggression of the United States and their quibbling attitude."

North Vietnam also repeated its demands that the U.S. must cease all acts of war against it.

It also indicated that it would respect South Vietnam's neutrality in foreign affairs in a future political settlement.

"We are very serious about these negotiations," Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance told North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy. "We want them to succeed.

"We think there is a proper basis for peace in Southeast Asia that conforms to the legitimate interests of all the countries of that area, and that we and others should move steadily toward it."

U.S. POSITION

Vance said of the U.S. position:

"We are prepared to cease bombardment at the appropriate time and circumstances. Our fundamental premise is that North Vietnam must not improve its military position as a result of the cessation of bombardment by the United States."

Thuy replied with a new demand that all attacks on the North stop immediately without any military reciprocity by the North Vietnamese forces. He said then other peace-making questions could be discussed here.

The two sides agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

MADE NO PROGRESS

The Americans and North Vietnamese agreed that the talks made no progress. But there was a 42-minute coffee break of which North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said: "There was nothing special during it."

The coffee breaks are regarded by American negotiators as a hopeful development for the future when they may provide a basis for private exploration of peace possibilities.

Thuy told Vance the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, advocates a foreign policy of "peace and neutrality."

He said:

"The front advocates the establishment of diplomatic relations with all countries regardless of their social and political system, on the principle of mutual respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, and non-infringement upon each other's territory, non-interference in each other's internal affairs equality, mutual benefit and peaceful co-existence."

REUNIFICATION

Thuy said the NLF, which Hanoi considers as the authentic representative of the South Vietnamese people, advocated reunification of Vietnam through peaceful means on the principle of "negotiations between the two zones without either side using pressure against the other and without foreign interference."

Some U.S. officials had hoped for evidence by this stage of the Paris peace talks that the North Vietnamese are actively considering moves toward de-escalation, to match President Johnson's March 31 limitation on the bombing of the north. They now see evidence instead that Hanoi is holding out for a further U.S. concession.

U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators returned to the conference table today after a week's recess. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman is in the United States this week and his deputy, Vance, headed the U.S. negotiating team.

CHARMAN FORECAST HIS OWN DEFEAT

Groos Waltzes to Third Win

By BRUCE YEMEN

Quiet-spoken David Groos rode a low-key campaign to a decisive election victory for the Liberals Tuesday night in Victoria.

An expected close fight with Conservative challenger Eric Charman was over almost as it began.

Mr. Groos, a 50-year-old retired naval captain, took the seat by almost 4,700 votes, tripling his 1965 plurality of 1,500 over the Conservatives.

He first win the seat in 1963 and was re-elected in 1965. He said he was "delighted" by the big vote edge.

"LONG WALK"

Mr. Charman, who waged a hard campaign, took the long one-block stroll up Fort Street from his headquarters to his rival's at 8:45, just 45 minutes after the polls closed.

He earned a big cheer from about 100 jubilant Liberals when he congratulated Mr. Groos on a good election and urged:

"Now let's all get off our bottoms and get Canada moving."

The 36-year-old realtor, suffering his second loss in a federal election, was smiling and gracious in defeat.

NDP candidate Harvey Richardson expressed disappointment that Victorians "would fall for this Trudeaumania" but congratulated his rivals on a "civilized campaign."

Mr. Groos had high praise for his campaign workers and invited them — scores of them — to his house for a victory get-together.

The final voting figures were: Groos (L), 17,924; Charman (PC), 13,238; Richardson (NDP), 9,337; Burnham (Ind.), 501.

Turnout of voters was 76 per cent, about the same as in 1965.

SAW IT COMING

Mr. Charman told Mr. Groos that he had forecast his opponent's victory by from 4,000 to 5,000 votes.

"We've got majority government now," said Mr. Charman. "It's the main thing the people were looking for."

He seemed braced for the loss right from the start.

At 8:15 he told about 50 quiet supporters in his campaign office:

"Charman is now leading after two polls — a net lead of three votes.

"That may be the most comforting news I can give you all evening."

It was.

As he walked up the street to congratulate the victor, the Netherlands carillon rang out wildly adding an ironic touch.

At that moment Allan Cox, Liberal campaign manager, looked at Mr. Groos' 1,200-vote lead and the results from some north Oak Bay polls and said;

"That's got to be it."

After telling Mr. Charman that it was good of him to drop by, Mr. Groos said the most exciting thing about the election was the number of people who had got involved in it.

Both he and Mr. Charman agreed it had been an "enjoyable" campaign.

Asked later if he would be back to try again in a future election, Mr. Charman smiled and said:

"I do have to attend to making a living in spite of what some people say around town."

He added that he hadn't spent as much on the election as people seemed to think. An intensive last-week drive may have made it appear so, he said.

NDP SPENT $3,200

NDP candidate Dr. Richardson revealed a specific cost figure for his campaign—$3,200.

He said his vote total represented the best showing ever by the party in Victoria.

In areas where thorough canvassing was done, he said, the party either topped the polls or ran well.

"We'll be in a position to wage a thorough campaign the next time," he said, remaining non-committal about his own future political plans.

"I predict people will be highly disillusioned with Trudeau within a year," he said.

Interest in all three campaign headquarters was centred on television sets bringing national results. By 9:30 p.m. the earlier gloom at the Charman headquarters had evaporated as the apparently inevitable was accepted.

The Victoria vote was hard to predict because of the absence of a Social Credit candidate.

Socred Frank Hunter polled 9,659 votes in th 1965 election. Assuming other loyalties remained the same, the Socred vote this time appears to have been split among all three parties — about 4,000 to the Liberals, 1,000 to the Tories, and 2,000 to the NDP.

But no one was certain about voting patterns beyond the undoubted fact that the Trudeau influence was strong.

Returning officer David Wilson said everything went "surprisingly well" in the vote. There were some complaints of political signs on cars, campaign cards at polls and stairs to climb at one poll.

A number of people were left off the voters' list for the first time and complained bitterly about it but nothing could be done, Mr. Wilson said.

"NO COMPLAINTS" said Victoria Conservative candidate Eric Charman when he called on victorious Liberal David Groos, right, after voting ended Tuesday night. Mr. Charman said he'd enjoyed the battle, adding, "Now let's get off our bottoms and get this country moving." Mrs. Charman stands at his sholuder. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Slightly over half an inch of rain fell at Vancouver, Tofino and Estevan Point in the six-hour period ending at 5 a.m. in advance of a Pacific disturbance. This system crossed the lower mainland late this afternoon and will cross the southern interior tonight. Intermittent rain will accompany it across the coast while showers will mark its passage over inland areas. A ridge of high pressure in the wake of this disturbance will cause a clearing trend along the coast this evening and inland on Thursday.

Into a New Era

YESTERDAY'S LIBERAL VICtory was much more than the reinstatement of the government with a solid majority of seats in Parliament. It marked in a most tangible way the emergence of this country from the old to the new, the acceptance by the nation of a new role in this final third of the twentieth century. It proved, excitingly and surprisingly, that Canadians could renounce their traditional image of caution, restraint and reserve, and launch out on an unprecedented political gamble. Canada has crossed a psychical watershed.

All this was done on the inspiration of one man. Pierre Elliot Trudeau caught the imagination of Canadians as it has rarely been caught before. Promising almost nothing in concrete terms, offering mainly a new approach to government, a new style in politics, he struck a responsive chord in Canadians who were ready for a political metamorphosis and saw in him a sincerity, a forthrightness, an elan which brought a refreshing change to the hustings. More—he imparted an excitement, a zest for Canadianism that promised much and carried a particular appeal to the many thousands of Canadians who are young in years or young in spirit and recognize the need for a new appraisal of a Canada that will inevitably be different. This election was a nation's recognition that the "postwar world" is obsolete, that we are into a new and unprecedented era and must adapt ourselves accordingly.

It was this that Mr. Trudeau had in mind when he said that the election had been "a great adventure in discovery," that we have gone through a "period of self-discovery and now know things about this country that we did not know before." He described the success of his campaign of broad issues by saying that "what came across (from him) to the public was the total message of the future of the country." He recognized that Canadians were interested in an "over-all decision" and that "particular items came second." And he added that "the elections have aroused a high expectation among the people of Canada." It will now be Mr. Trudeau's responsibility to fulfil that expectation.

One of the important by-products of the Trudeau wave is that Canada will once again have a majority government. The day-to-day gamble on opposition agreement and splinter-party aid that characterized the last two parliaments can now give place to a more determined implementation of government policies. At the same time it is gratifying that both the Conservative and NDP parties are still significantly represented in parliament, where viable oppositions are a necessary part of our democratic system. The Conservative success in Newfoundland — where revolt against the status quo took a reverse turn — and in the Maritimes has been counteracted by severe losses in Ontario and a decided drop in the prairies. On the other hand, the Liberals lost their stronghold in Newfoundland but gained a foothold in Saskatchewan and increased their British Columbia seats. The solidity of Quebec remains broken, but the Liberals maintained their hold there in the face of severe opposition. Mr. Trudeau's claim to the full prestige of a "national party" can be substantiated.

What now lies ahead may be one of Canada's most dramatic periods. Mr. Trudeau's party is in full command of parliament, and Mr. Trudeau is in full command of his party. That will be as stern a test of Mr. Trudeau as it will be of his program. Canada has gambled on the result. We have broken out of the flatlands of the past and now move ahead to the promise of the unexplored but rising ground ahead.

Greater Victoria Speaks Up

THE RE-ELECTION OF MR. Groos in Victoria against well-organized opposition has been overshadowed by the surprising victory of Mr. Anderson, a newcomer to politics, over the Esquimalt-Saanich incumbent, Mr. Chatterton. This was an upset that startled political circles across Canada, for Mr. Chatterton had worked assiduously as a Conservative opposition member in the Commons for the past seven years and had previously established an excellent record as Reeve of Saanich.

To Mr. Groos go congratulations on a victory which was never in doubt once the count got under way. He has served well and may be expected to adapt successfully to the new government now to be formed. Mr. Anderson, with a background of varied talents, may be overly modest in attributing all of his success to the wave of popularity for Mr. Trudeau. In any case he is a man of promise, and should be watched in the environment of opportunity which parliament is now expected to provide for its younger members.

All the candidates in the local contests are to be congratulated on their bearing in the fight. This was a clean and fully democratic struggle and a credit to them all.

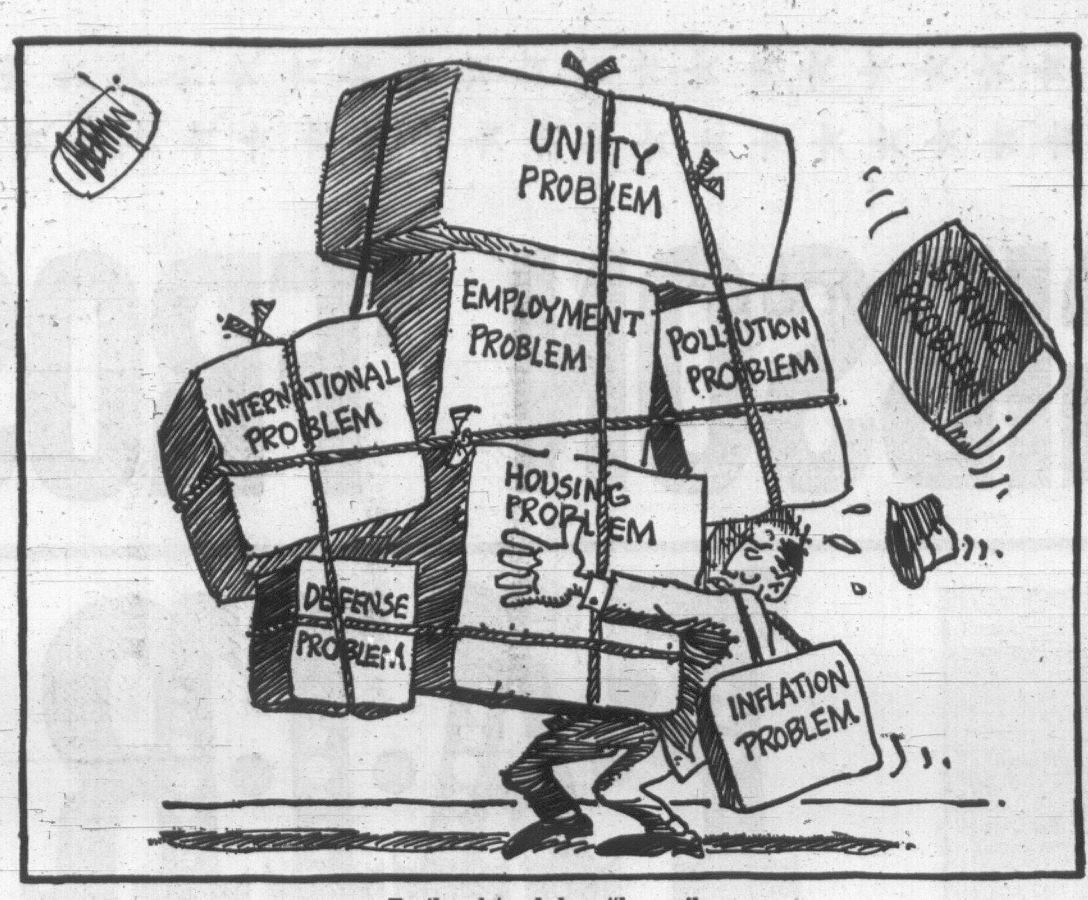

Joint Effort Needed

HEATLH MINISTER RALPH Loffmark has a pertinent point in his questioning of the proposed disposal of local sewage by discharge into the adjacent seas. While the regional officials have given careful consideration to the whole situation in deciding on lengthy outfalls and deep release of sewage as a suitable solution to the problem of disposal throughout the capital region, there is still a considerable body of opinion which favors treatment plants to neutralize the sewage before it is dispersed in coastal waters. This method is urged on the grounds of ensuring complete safety now and in the future.

The weakness of Mr. Loffmark's position is that he has entered the situation at a very late date with the government's stand, that he admits he does not know the right answer to the problem, and that he has not sought the full information which would dispel all doubts as to the correct course. As it is, the minister of health can only declare that the untreated sewage method cannot be used until "uncontroverted" proof has been provided that it is safe. This is hardly leadership in a problem of provincial magnitude. It is additionally indefensible as a position in view of the offers of federal financing for sewerage studies.

Local protests that treatment plants would be expensive should have little bearing on the matter. Hospitals are expensive, waterworks are expensive, but we could entertain no proposal to do without them. If treated sewage is eventually shown to be the only safe method of discharge into the sea, then that is the method we should adopt. And that decision should be based, not on conditions arising from the population of today, but on the situation which will exist when this whole area will have many thousands of homes more than it has today, with a consequently vast increase in the pollution problem in the straits.

Pollution is rapidly becoming one of the world's major problems. The decision on sewerage must be a vital one with far-reaching consequences for this community. A less costly but inadequate solution could prove much more expensive in the end, and while there still remains an appreciable division of opinion on the subject we should not overlook any means of determining and meeting the incontrovertible facts. And this surely demands the full co-operation of federal and provincial authorities with the regional board.

To the victor belong the spoils.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Variations on the Textile Industry Dirge

IT IS possibly more than coincidence that throughout the election period, background noise was provided by protected interests united in a common conviction that doom is at hand. Prominent among the groups which have deemed it their duty to issue warnings at this time are the textile, electronics and rubber manufacturers (all of whom emphasize the Japanese peril) and the shipbuilders. Only the latter have achieved much political publicity because our national leaders have been concentrating on what Mr. Trudeau calls "constitutional theology", and on direct consumer interests such as prices and interest rates. It would be imprudent to assume, however, that all these tales of woe have been lost on local candidates who have had only limited opportunity, in the face of so much high level competiton, to bring their views to national attention.

Western

Traditional Hand-Wringers

Among our protected industrialists, the textile industry enjoys a place of distinction because it has probably indulged in more hand-wringing over a longer period than any other group. The critic who views the Japanese peril through the eyes of textile spokesmen ought not, therefore, to court the reproach of disrespect for the electronics wizards, who for years have seen it in Technicolor, or for those new seeking through pressure in Ottawa, to safeguard our national fibre by limiting imports of rubber belts and hose.

The textile case is set out conveniently and at length in an article written on invitation by Mr. C. M. Harding, chairman of the Canadian Textile Institute, for the annual publication of the Canada-Japan Trade Council.

Mr. Harding's tone, in these circumstances, is reasonably mellow; indeed, he manages a few sentences which may cause earlier institute writers to wince with remembered pain. Thus, he speaks approvingly of freer international trade as a Canadian government policy; he observes that "Canada and Japan have long enjoyed healthy trade relations"; he notes that trade between the two countries since 1954 has grown enormously, and that Japan is Canada's third largest market.

This is not, however, the essence of the message which Mr. Harding is endeavoring to convey. His conclusion is that the textile industry must insist on "orderly marketing practices" and Japanese restraint. In a speech of June 13, he was more specific, urging that imports from low-cost countries be held at present levels; that quotas be re-examined, and that they be negotiated for longer than one-year periods.

One-Sided Freeze

It may seem odd to the Japanese that Mr. Harding does not call at the same time for a freeze on Canadian exports to Japan. From his own figures we enjoy a huge surplus: exports to Japan (1966), $394 million; imports from Japan, $253 million. If Mr. Harding had chosen to use the 1967 figures, he would have found an even more impressive contrast: exports (up 45 per cent), $574 million; imports (up only 20 per cent), $305 million.

But Mr. Harding has a variety of complaints. While our exports complement Japanese production, their exports compete with our products, such as textiles. This must have been true from the beginning of our "healthy trade relations"; to satisfy Mr. Harding, we would probably have to get back to no trade at all.

Then there is the matter of Japanese import restrictions, first imposed when Japan, after a lost war, was trying to revive her economy. Surely Mr. Harding is straining a bit here. Are we seriously to believe that, with a little more virtue in Tokyo, our manufacturers could flood the markets of Japan with Canadian textiles?

If so, what are we to make of Mr. Harding's third complaint, that it is very nearly impossible to compete on a price basis with Japan because of the wage differential. It is true, he concedes, that the Japanese index of wages has increased by 93 per cent over the period 1958-66. But this was on a very low initial base and in dollar terms; we are told, the gap between the two countries has widened substantially.

The magazine editors at this point have permitted themselves a footnote. Dollar comparisons, they suggest, are misleading because of non-monetary benefits enjoyed by Japanese workmen. These may include housing, transportation, sports and health facilities, holiday accommodation and "most important," a lifetime guaranteed job not subject to layoffs.

Instinctive Reaction

Canadians not enjoying such benefits should have little difficulty in grasping the editors' point.

It is instinctive with our textile men to emphasize the wage differential (except when protesting imports from Britain or the United States), while insisting that Canadian difficulties, in Mr. Harding's words, are not "due to weakness within the industry" — perish the thought.

But somehow nothing is ever right for the manufacturers. Mr. Harding, writing of the years 1961-66, states that the industry enjoyed a period of expansion due to increased sales both at home and abroad and that employment increased from 75,600 to 87,200 persons. This is truly remarkable, because at no time within that period have Canadian textile spokesmen ceased to lament their cruel fate.

Innumerable examples could be quoted; one must suffice: a communique dated March, 1964—well within the expansion era — from the Canadian Apparel and Textile Manufacturers' Association includes these lamentations:

"We maintain that since the first Canadian-Japanese trade treaty was made in 1954, until 1963, Japanese textile imports to Canada have increased from $5 million to $31 million per annum, and that our industries have contributed more than enough to increase trade between our two countries."

(In other words matters should have stopped there and to hell with the wheat farmers.)

". . The Japanese are continually moving into areas not covered by quotas."

What were they supposed to do?

"Japan is selling fine qualities at such low prices that they provide a 'British quality' at the same or lower prices than Canadian constructions."

Clearly perfidious, although presumably welcome to hard-pressed consumers.

"Imports of man-made fabrics from Japan have become an increasingly disruptive factor in the Canadian market, both in the volume and the intensity of competition."

Good in Bad Times

It is certainly a pleasure to have it now, on the authority of Mr. Harding, that in this bad period, things were so good. The remarkable fact is that, throughout the happy times, according to his own presentation, Japanese wage rates were at a very low level compared with those in Western industrial nations.

Ahead of the industry, as always since its first pioneering lobbyist entrained for Ottawa, is "a difficult period of adjustment." Mr. Harding hopes, however, "that Japan will, in the future, continue to improve its understanding of Canada's peculiar economic position." The Japanese have proved by their so-called voluntary quotas that they understand arm-twisting. If they can understand the logic of Canadian textile spokesmen, they are well ahead of disgusted Canadian exporters and consumers.

Letters to the Editor

Incredible

The attitude of the city's lands and firewardens committee on "back yard burning" is incredible and deplorable.

Only Alderman Baird thought the idea of a partial ban or at least a complete review of the situation worthwhile. Congratulations to Alderman Baird.

Alderman Percy Frampton's statement that he valued his back yard burning privileges was ridiculous and should have no bearing on the matter at all. All that should be considered is whether the burning is detrimental to health or to a pleasant existence of the inhabitants of so-called beautiful Victoria.

I wonder if Alderman Frampton ever lived in a clean city where burning was not tolerated in any form.

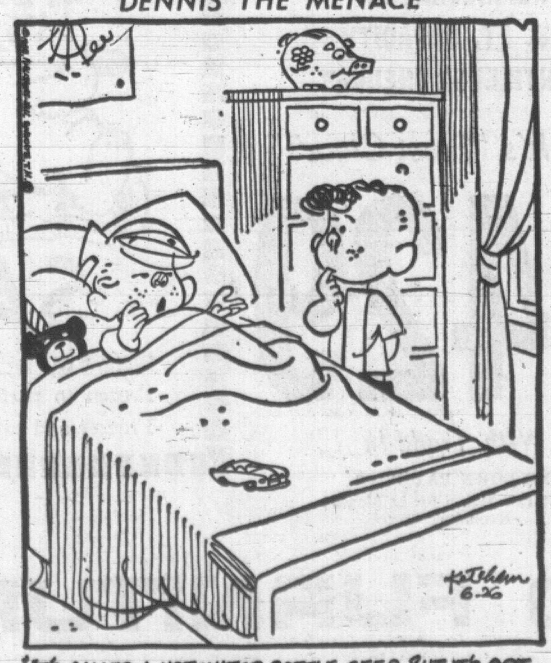

The regressive thinking of other members of the committee with the exception of Alderman Baird is to be condemned also. — Edward M. Doyle, 2670 Shelbourne.

Old Age Pensions

Mr. H. Marshall, in his letter headed "Irresponsible," in your issue dated June 21, is irked that Mr. T. C. Douglas proposes to increase old age pensions to $125 per month —a mere $1,500 per year in these days of steadily-rising wages and prices.

The worthy Mr. Marshall is, without doubt, right. Why should consideration be given to people over the age of 65 years? These are, mainly, non-producers; nor are they a large percentage of the voters. The fact that many of them have, during their working lives, performed useful service is, of course, quite irrevelant. — S. W. M. Greer, 2434 Windsor.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, June 26, 1908.

LADYSMITH — The committee that has charge of the sports for the big celebrations on July 1, is encountering difficulty. The athletic program has all been arranged and promises to be a huge success. The regatta, however, is not going so well. The Indians who have been offered $5 a paddle are asking for $8, which the committee refused to approve.

They would rather put up a trophy for competition among Victoria four-oared crews.

Preparing a Last Hurrah

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

ALL the intelligence indicators now suggest that the Hanoi war-planners will soon order another convulsive, all-out offensive effort in Vietnam, aimed primarily at Saigon, with a probable second centre in the two most northerly provinces. If the intelligence is correct, this will be the Last Hurrah of General Vo Nguyen Giap's immensely costly, thus far fruitless "winter-spring" campaign, which began with the Tet offensive. Some very important intelligence also indicates that if this climactic effort produces no real pay-off for Hanoi, a general enemy withdrawal is to be expected, at least for a while.

Alsop

There are all too many "ifs" in the equation, but this just could be pretty hopeful news. Obviously, it is not news at all, if the intelligence is misleading. Obviously, it will be very bad news indeed if the Hanoi war-planners attain much success at Saigon, no matter how many thousands of lives they may sacrifice for the purpose.

Yet General Creighton W. Abrams is grimly confident that his men and the South Vietnamese will be able to meet and to hurl back the new attack. And he feels this confidence although the enemy has been driven to borrow units from the Delta and from II Corps, to strengthen the intended attack on Saigon; and although in the most northerly provinces, the enemy has responded to the president's bombing reduction by an invasion by two additional North Vietnamese regular divisons, the 308th and the 320th.

Le Duc Tho Mystery

Assuming that Abrams' confidence is well founded, certain other facts are then quite likely to acquire greatly increased interest. To begin with there is the mysterious presence in Paris of the powerful Politburo-member, for years Le Duan's chief rival as an authority on the South, Le Duc Tho.

When Le Duc Tho's addition to Hanoi's negotiation group first became known, rather foolish hopes were voiced that he was bringing the kind of message from Hanoi that could never by expected from a minor figure like the group's official chief, Xuan Thuy. As might have been foreseen, those hopes have been disappointed to date.

Le Duc Tho has instead maintained a stony though observant silence, just listening attentively to the formal negotiations and maintaining minimum politeness in those celebrated, much exaggerated coffee breaks. He has behaved, in sum, as a man who has been sent, not to speak, but to form an opinion. The opinion Hanoi wants of him, beyond much doubt, concerns the real degree of American resolution and firmness.

Moscow Interest

It is a very good guess, moreover, that the very same topic heads the agenda of the Moscow meetings that are now quite obviously beginning. Another leading member of the Hanoi Politburo, Le Thanh Nghi, has just reached Moscow.

Simultaneously and rather abruptly, the Soviet ambassadors to the U.S. and the U.N., Anatoli F. Dobrynin and Vassily V. Kuznetsov, have flown home "for consultation." And if Dobrynin and Kuznetsov "tell it like it is," Le Thanh Nghi is due to hear that the American political scene offers Hanoi little hope of rescue.

Everything depends for now, of course, on the expected new offensive in South Vietnam. If General Giap is again going to gamble many thousands of his men, on the off-chance of shaking the Saigon government or gaining some other significant advantage, nothing in Paris or Moscow will matter very much until the offensive's results are finally known.

But if this Last Hurrah is another sanguinary failure, the resulting conjuncture could just conceivably produce the kind of serious negotiations in Paris that the American government has been hoping for. Or if that does not happen, the post-offensive withdrawal by the enemy could just imaginably prove the beginning of the "fadeaway" that many Vietamese experts have always regarded as more likely than a negotiated settlement.

What Will Give First?

The question in Vietnam, today, in truth, is what is going to give first, and when? The South Vietnamese government and the people of Saigon are both showing quiet astonishing toughness and resilience, but Hanoi still hopes that they will be the ones to give first.

The enemy is not showing resilience. Men of the rank of regimental commander are now defecting, because they regard their orders from high command as too bloody-minded and quite impossible to execute. There are ominous unit surrenders, too, like that of a whole company of the famous Dong Ngai Regiment. Yet the infiltrators also pour in, and the enemy losses go on, at a rate equivalent to 3,500,000 men a year for this country.

A major offensive, if unsuccessful, could be a mite risky in these circumstances.

MEANING OF ELECTION

Trudeau Gets Mandate To Deal With Quebec

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Every democratic election imples some specific advice from the people to the government and Pierre Elliott Trudeau's resounding victory Tuesday was plainly a mandate to settle the national unity crisis in Canada.

Newman

Fed up with the feeling of powerlessness that has frustrated national hopes for most of the past decade, English Canada (as well as the settled elements in Quebec) cast their ballots for the only party leader who was able to state — and reiterate — a clear and firm position on the French-English dilemma.

It was not so much the details of the Liberal approach that captured the popular imagination as the strength of purpose and the passion with which that policy was projected by the prime minister. The most frequently repeated sentiment in every part of the country (beyond the hysterical "ooh, he's groovy" shrieks out of the adolescents) was: "Trudeau sounds as though he knows what he's talking about on Quebec."

Everywhere fervent attempts were made to translate Trudeau's strength into Canadian strength.

"Trudeau is Canada" read a hand-lettered sign at the Fairview-Pointe Claire shopping centre outside Montreal last Friday.

SAME FEELING

Trudeau's sweep of Ontario and British Columbia particularly was based on a feeling roughly similar to that which elected Dwight Eisenhower president in 1952. Although the two men could scarcely be more different, American voters felt then that only a general could settle the Korean War. Just as Canadian voters apparently feel now that only a French-Canadian can succeed in negotiationg the future terms of Confederation.

This was the real issue that captured the electorate. No matter how much is made of Trudeau's swinging radical style, there is little evidence that his personal popularity signifies any overwhelming national desire for avant-garde policies in other areas of Canadian life.

PROGRESSIVES LOSE

In fact, most of the really progressive candidates in all the parties — Alvin Hamilton, Dalton Camp, Laurier Lapierre, Douglas Fisher, Charles Taylor, Maurice Sauve, Duff Roblin and Lloyd Axeworthy — were beaten.

The opposition was short of most of its controversial and exciting personalities while the safe war horses in the three major parties scuttled safely back.

There is no doubt that the next Parliament will be dominated by the glowing figure of the prime minister. Every Liberal MP will carry with him the sobering suspicion that without Trudeau he might not have won his seat. The very size of Trudeau's victory could exact a serious price by making easy the slurring of issues and the stifling of self-scrutiny.

REFORM HOPE

The Liberal leader has triumphantly earned the right to govern the country for a peroid which could be the most decisive in our history. If he is wise, he will turn his mandate into a revolutionary instrument and reach beyond the French-English issue to reform most of the institutions by which we are governed.

For what Trudeau won last night was not just the right to head the government in the next Commons but the duty to represent all the long repressed aspirations of his generation.

AUTHORITY

Now that he has the power and authority that go with the office as well as the title of prime minister, he will be judged for what he is, not for what he appeared to be in the hysteria of his leadership and election campaigns.

What he is, this unorthodox politician, is a man of tough fibre, quick wit, short temper, strong beliefs, total self confidence and intellectual depth.

It was an astonishing feat for him to carve out such a majority without owing any political debts within his party. (From the time of his leadership campaign he's been beholden to only two men, Mitchell Sharp and Joey Smallwood.

Sharp, he's already paid off by relegating him to the neverland of external affairs; after Tuesday's results in Newfoundland, he now owes Smallwood hardly more than the time of day.)

Although he moves into power with remarkably few debts to his colleagues, Trudeau does owe his majority to the twenty-four seats he got in western Canada, and he will have to abandon the policy of neglecting the prairies which has marred the Liberal record for the past decade.

If the campaign was a great personal victory for Pierre Trudeau it was a personal humiliation for Robert Stanfield.

TRADITION

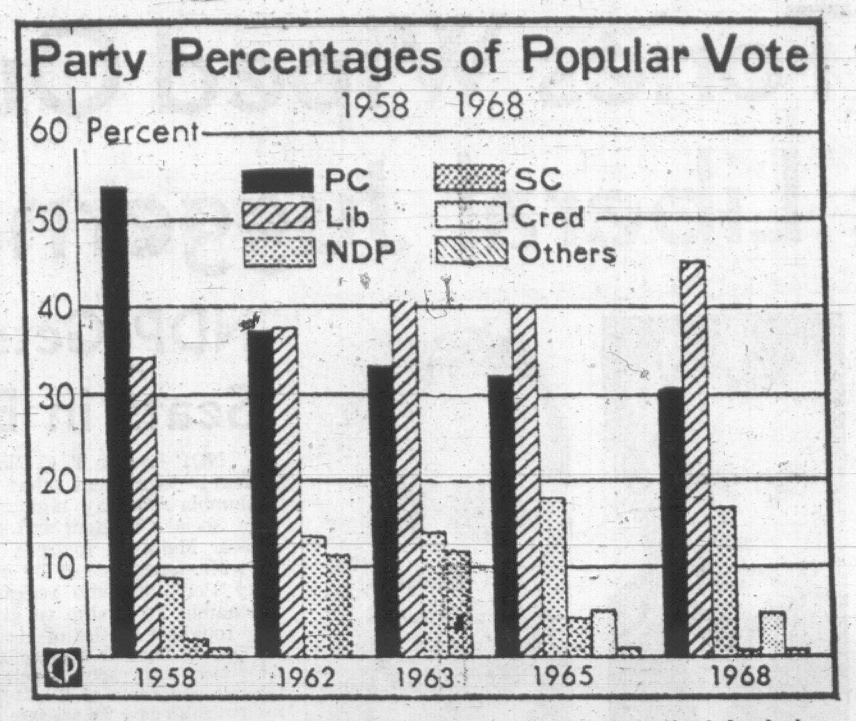

His sad showing reaffirmed one of Canada's most venerable political traditions: that provincial premiers can't successfully translate their talents to the federal arena. The former Nova Scotia premier failed almost completely to break out of his home preserve of the Maritimes.

It's difficult to believe that only seven months ago cocktail gossip among dispirited Liberals in the capital revolved around the question of whether Duff Roblin or Dalton Camp would be the external affairs minister in the Stanfield administration.

Now, Roblin and Camp have both been defeated, as have most of the Tory power barons. Of the candidates who competed with Stanfield for the leadership last fall, only George Hees and John Diefenbaker survive in Canadian politics.

INCREDIBLE

It's even more incredible to realize that back then in September, the man who brought the Liberals their triumph Tuesday was one of the least known of the Liberal privy councillors, an academic who'd been in Parliament less than two years and in the cabinet less than six months. Today, he's not only the most powerful man in Canada but the politician with the strongest mandate of any leader in a western democracy.

VINDICATION FOR TRUDEAU

Special Status Men Rejected in Quebec

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

MONTREAL — Pierre Trudeau kept a firm hold on the Liberals' Quebec power base Tuesday.

The French-Canadian prime minister who had been accused of fighting his campaign on the back of Quebec built his majority on the continued strong support of his home province.

It was a victory for Mr. Trudeau's constitutional stand as well as his party.

The two parties that campaigned against the one-bilingual-nation policy of Mr. Trudeau did even more poorly than the Liberals had expected them to do.

The one opposition party to gain, Real Caouette's Ralliement des Creditistes, was also the one Quebec opposition party to agree with Mr. Trudeau in opposing special status for Quebec.

Main Issue

Ridings in which the constitution was a main issue went solidly Liberal.

Conservative constitutional spokesman Marcel Faribault was beaten in a riding he himself had pronounced "typically French Canadian."

Quebec NDP leader Robert Cliche, advocate of a radically special status for Quebec, was beaten by Eric Kierans, in spite of the help of the Union Nationale and the declared support and assistance of Rene Levesque's Movement Souverainete-Association.

The same Union Nationale-MSA alliance failled to knock Jean Marchand out of Langelier.

Julien Chouinard, former Quebec deputy justice minister, who made the constitution and criminal code changes on homosexuality and abortion main planks in his campaign, lost in the lower St. Lawrence riding of Matane to Pierre de Bane, a former executive assistant to Mr. Trudeau.

The failure of the Conservatives, in spite of their ability to recruit a core of unusually prestigous candidates, showed up strikingly in their failure even to gain the anti-government vote in depressed areas. It went instead to the Creditistes, who campaigned on economic issues and argued that even a modest Creditiste delegation could hold the balance of power in a tight contest.

CLICHE
... help no help

Other Worries

On the constitutional issue, informed opinion here tends to regard the outcome above all as confirmation of Mr. Trudeau's long-stated view that the constitution is not a major pre-occupation of the majority of Quebec's population.

In most areas of the province, despite the efforts of both NDP and Conservative candidates who campaigned, in Quebec, for special status, the voters talked about other issues.

The Creditiste surge surpassed even the most optimistic forecasts, except those of Mr. Caouette himself.

Rural Areas

Their strength showed up in economically disadvantage rural areas. The sorry state of agriculture in Quebec, stagnation in the small uncompetitive industry that provides much of the employment for the poorly educated member of the labor force in the smaller cities, and the continued appeal of Mr. Caouette and his more able supporters are considered major contributing factors.

Another is the backlash against the criminal code changes on homosexuality and abortion, and the divorce law, introduced by Prime Minsiter Trudeau when he was justice minister.

Conservatives exploited these misgivnigs to some extent. But their position, as on the constitution, remained ambiguous.

Use Energy

Real Caouette made his postion clear. He was unreservedly against the changes and his candidates devoted a major share of the energies and imagination to making this stand pay.

It was not a stand that could expect support from the majority of Quebec's population in the late 1960s. But in areas where the impact of education reform and of television has been least felt, it helped the Creditistes almost to double their strength and made them the only significant opposition party in Quebec.

TOUGH STANCE

Vote Results Are Bad News For de Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — The broad election victory of Canadian Liberal leader Pierre Elliott Trudeau will make it more difficult for France to pursue her wooing of Quebec, western diplomatic sources said today.

They said the dynamic Canadian prime minister, known as a foremost advocate of Canadian unity, will probably oppose more vigorously than his predecessors President Charles de Gaulle's drive to help Quebec win a larger degree of autonomy.

Sources said that de Gaulle will continue his overtures to Quebec without letup as soon as he sweeps away the last sequels of France's prolonged labor and political chaos.

There was speculation that once the French president forms a new cabinet after next Sunday's elections he may reactivate plans for a visit here of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson.

Quebec and France have concluded an agreement whereby their two government chiefs are due to meet regularly at little "summits" to discuss their co-operation.

The French government made no comment on the Canadian elections, sticking to its tradition not to discuss foreign election battles.

But in some French quarters there was speculation that any attempts to curb the Quebec population's desire to win a larger say in its affairs might embolden the most virulent nationalist currents in the French-speaking province.

The Montreal rioting by Quebec separatists Monday night was front page news in France in spite of the wealth of improtant domestic dispatches.

Some observers believed that the rioters have enhanced the chances of the Liberals in broad middle-class circles, which are opposed to violence.

DE GAULLE

Aurore, the conservative Paris morning newspaper was full of praise for the Liberal leader in its six-column report today on the Canadian election.

Describing the Montreal roiting and threats against his life Aurore said, "Trudeau is a non-conformist who knows no fear. He has shown it in Montreal Monday night in the middle of a riot." It said that all other political and religious personalities sought shelter from the hail of flying objects, "but not Trudeau, who stood there in the middle of a storm."

Conservative Figaro also stressed Trudeau's calm. "The prime minsiter lost at no moment his victory smile and he was occasionally waving his hand at those who booed him," it said. The paper said that Montreal police had shown much restraint.

After 10 Years, Majority at Last

OTTAWA (CP) — For the first time in 10 years a Canadian government can relish the flavor of a majority position in the Commons.

Prime Minister Trudeau's capture of more than 150 seats in the 264-seat Commons Tuesday marks the first time since 1958 that any party leader has been able to grab a parliamentary majority.

John Diefenbaker did it the last time, winning a record 208 seats in 1958 in the then 265-seat Commons.

However, in the general election of 1962, 1963 and 1965 the voters were not in a mood to give anyone a decisive parliamentary say.

Mr. Diefenbaker came out of the 1962 general election with 116 seats, 16 better than the Liberals but well short of a majority. In 1963 it was Lester B. Pearson's turn to lead the polls with 129 Liberal seats to Mr. Diefenbaker's 95.

In 1965 the Liberals crept closer to the elusive majority with 131. The Conservatives had 97.

Now Pierre Elliott Trudeau has snapped the minority streak, though not nearly as decisively as did Mr. Diefenbaker in his 1958 landslide.

That election followed an inclusive 1957 vote in which the Liberals under Louis St. Laurent were defeated after 22 years of majority government. They captured only 104 seats to the victorious Mr. Diefenbaker's 112.

Mr. Trudeau is the first Liberal prime minister to win a majority in the Commons since Mr. St. Laurent did it in 1953.

Trudeau Calls Parliament For Early in September

OTTAWA (CP) — The next session of Parliament will probably begin in the second week of September, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday night.

"If nothing too unpredictable or of major national importance obliges me to change," he added.

The prime minister will thus face the new House of Commons some 10 weeks after election day, about normal.

Speaking to a packed news conference after his victory statement in the convention hall of the Chateau Laurier hotel, he did not specify any events or developments that could cause an earlier meeting of Parliament.

The country has severe labor troubles, however, and some of them could fall into the lap of Parliament if they remain unresolved through the normal mediation procedures.

Mr. Trudeau said he wants to include "a lot of major reforms" in his government's first speech from the throne. These would include a reform of parliamentary procedures aimed at shortening the time it takes to get legislation enacted.

He would like to see the work of each session of Parliament completed within a year.

The last Parliament was dissolved April 23, but the sitting that day lasted barely five minutes after a recess for Easter and the Liberal leadership convention. No parliamentary business has been transacted since late March.

The government already has one strike on its hands. Some 1,250 employees of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, a government agency, walked off their jobs last Friday to support demands for higher pay.

Mr. Trudeau said last week in a telegram to the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, before the strike began, that he supports the "fair and reasonable" wage offer of the seaway authority.

DEALING WITH STRIKE

Asked about the seaway strike at his news conference Tuesday night, Mr. Trudeau said the task of dealing with it "has already been assumed."

The seaway authority has been standing firm on a conciliation board's majority recommendation of a six-per-cent wage increase this year followed by a similar increase next year. The CBRT has asked for an 18-per-cent boost over a two-year period.

The government moved quickly Monday to prevent a nationwide railway strike from erupting this week.

Labor Minister Pepin ordered the reconvening of a conciliation board and no legal strike can occur as long as it is in session. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen had scheduled a strike beginning Thursday against the CNR and the CPR.

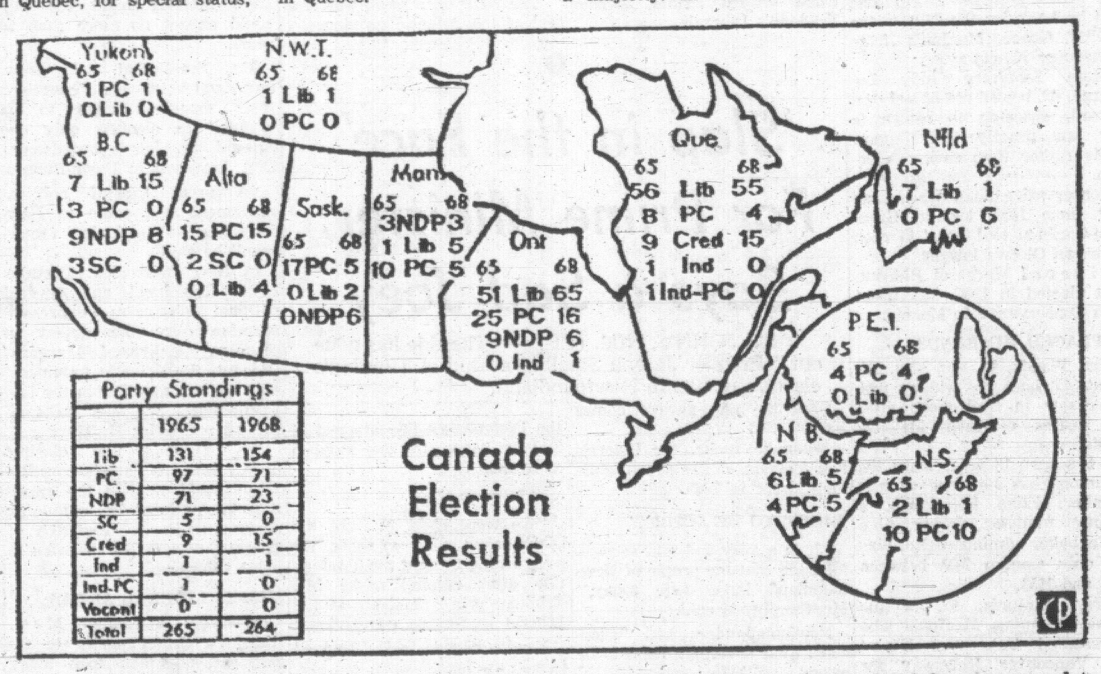

A conciliation board is also supposed to begin hearings this week in a wage dispute between the federal government and the Council of Postal Unions, which bargains for some 24,000 postal clerks and letter carriers across Canada.

TIGHT RACE FOR NIELSEN

The Liberals held one of Canada's two northern ridings in the election Tuesday, but the other was very much in doubt.

Liberal incumbent Bud Orange was the winner over Progressive Conservative and NDP opposition in the single seat for the Northwest Territories.

But in the Yukon, controversial Conservative Erik Nielsen was having the fight of his life. With 53 of 55 polls reported, he had 3,019 votes to 2,979 for Liberal Chris Findlay. But in the final tally Nielsen won.

Bennett Very Unavailable

Premier Bennett was chugging silently across the Northern Interior of B.C. today after the federal Socred party's total derailment in Tuesday night's election.

Efforts to reach the premier for reaction to the loss to all three Socred seats in B.C. were unsuccessful. He is travelling by PGE railway.

Meanwhile the national party's future was uncertain.

Acting national leader Alex Patterson, who went down to defeat in Fraser Valley East, said the party's defeat strengthens his case for its reorganization on a truly national basis.

"We're just affiliated provincial leagues. We need a national organization," he said.

"We thought we'd be able to hold the seats we had and perhaps two or three others," he said.

LOW BUDGET

Among causes for the Socred wipe-out, he listed: Prime Minister Trudeau's appeal, the resignation of party leader Robert Thompson, a widespread desire for majority government, a low budget and Alberta Premier Manning's call for political realignment sending some Socred voters to the Tories.

National Social Credit President Herb Bruch of Esquimalt said he expected Mr. Patterson and Bert Leobe (Prince George-Peace River) to lose because "they kept wavering" and confused the voters as to whether they were Socreds or Tories.

He predicted the national party would rejuvenate itself, with the Creditistes of Quebec likely leading the way. But he wasn't sure when the reorganization would begin.

NO SURPRISE

He wasn't surprised at the strong Creditiste showing in Quebec.

Other comments:

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson: "The Canadian people have spoken very clearly. They want a majority government in Ottawa. My 12 years of experience in government allow me to see the desirability of a majority."

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell: "They (the Canadian people) wanted to be fair, to give the new prime minister a chance, just as they did with John Diefenbaker. Now they want to see results."

TRUDEAU MORE MELLOW ON QUEBEC, SAYS TORY

Faribault Sees Philosophical Victory in Defeat

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Faribault, considered the Quebec lieutenant of the Progressive Conservatives, said his election defeat Tuesday night in Montreal Gamelin was part of a general trend in the province.

Conservatives won four Quebec seats, half the number they picked up in the 1965 election.

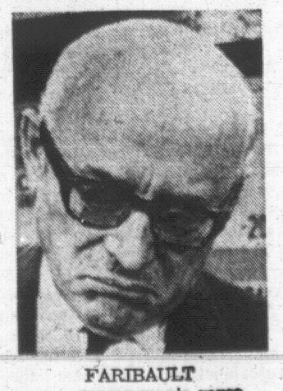

Faribault predicted that Prime Minister Trudeau would have to soften his constitutional position on Quebec.

"He has already softened his position on Quebec in the last three days," he said in an interview. "Trudeau has no choice — the other provinces will also act as a counterbalance and force him to compromise."

Faribault, 59, former constitutional advisor to Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and president of the General Trust of Canada, said he has no plans for the immediate future. It will depend on various discussions he must have first.

"One factor I will have to consider is that I am almost 60 years old and youth is becoming an increasing force in the political process."

Arthur Portelance, Liberal victor in Gamelin, congratulated his opponents for conducting a "clean campaign."

FARIBAULT
... young man's game

Eric Kierans, former provincial cabinet minister, won an uphill battle for the Liberals in Montreal Duvernay.

"The tide started to turn about 10 dyas ago and we knew we were on the way to victory," he said. Kierans, 54, was an unsuccessful candidate for the federal leadership of the Liberals earlier this year.

Claude Frenette, president of the federal Liberals in Quebec, welcomed the election of a majority Liberal government.

"At least we can start some political action, instead of constantly preparing for a looming election."

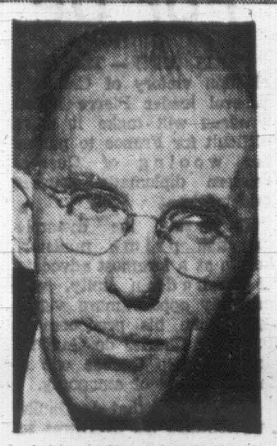

At his hotel committee headquarters, Robert Cliche, Quebec leader of the New Democratic Party, blamed wild riots during Montreal's St. Jean Baptiste Day parade Monday for his defeat.

"The people got scared of the separatists and they thought I was a bit of a one myself."

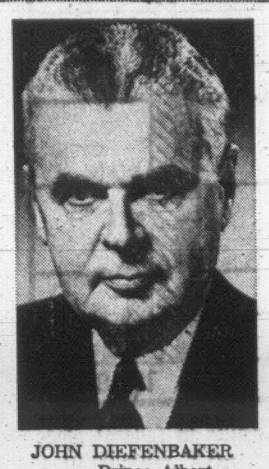

Another factor that kept the NDP blanked out of Quebec despite their most concentrated effort, he said, was the spread of Trudeaumania.

NDP Gets Eight Seats in B.C.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas was toppled by a Liberal juggernaut that rolled across British Columbia Tuesday night, wiping out the Tories and Social Crediters and slashing into the NDP's Lower Mainland fortress.

Mr. Douglas lost by only 93 votes to Liberal Ray Perrault, who resigned his party's British Columbia leadership to give Mr. Douglas one of the toughest battles of his 35-year political career.

Burnaby-Seymour was one of 15 seats the Liberals won, three more than party officials had predicted in B.C. The Liberals won seven of the 22 B.C. constituencies in 1965. Redistribution gave the province an extra seat this year.

The New Democrats, who had also been predicting victory in 12 ridings this year, finished with eight, one fewer than they took in the 1965 election.

Held Three Seats Prior to Vote

The Progressive Conservatives, who held three seats prior to the election, were wiped out. The casualties included Tory luminary E. Davie Fulton, former justice minister in the Diefenbaker government and an unsuccessful candidate for the Conservative leadership last year.

Social Credit was also wiped out. It held three seats in the last House, including that of acting national leader A. B. Patterson. The three defeats in B.C. means Social Credit now is without representation in the Commons.

The Liberals picked up all six Social Credit and Tory seats as well as two from the NDP. Five Liberal members of the last House won re-election.

All the NDP victors, with the exception of Mark Rose in Fraser Valley West and Randolph Harding in Kootenay West, were members of the last Parliament.

Among the Liberals, Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing, the oldest member of Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet at 63, won in Vancouver South over a Conservative by more than 10,000 votes.

Minister without Portfolio Jack Davis, 51, won a landslide victory in Capilano, defeating New Democrat Frank Snowsell by almost 22,000 votes.

Other Liberal members of the last Parliament re-elected included Grant Deachman in Vancouver Quadra, Ron Basford in Vancouver Centre and David Groos in Victoria.

1,400 Votes Behind Novice

Mr. Patterson, 57, was beaten by Liberal Jerry Pringle, a 57-year-old business consultant, in Fraser Valley East. Mr. Patterson, who represented the old Fraser Valley riding from 1953 to 1958 and from 1962 until this election, finished more than 1,400 votes behind Mr. Pringle, a political novice.

Kimberley lawyer Douglas Stewart, 30, defeated Social Crediter Howard Johnston in Okanagan-Kootenay to give the riding to the Liberals. Mr. Johnston, 40, regarded as one of the Social Credit's brightest hopes, finished a poor third.

In Prince George-Peace River, Robert Borrie, a 41-year-old Prince George business executive, defeated Bert Leboe, 58, who had considered running as a Conservative but later changed his mind and stayed with Social Credit.

The Liberals also steamrollered the three Tory members of the last House from B.C.

In Okanagan Boundary where the Liberals finished last in 1965, realtor Bruce Howard, 45, downed David Pugh, a 10-year veteran of the Conservative back benchers. Mr. Pugh finished third behind Mr. Howard and Alex Turner, NDP, in a close three-way fight.

Mr. Fulton in Kamloops-Cariboo was one of the major Conservative losses across the country. The 52-year-old Rhodes scholar, rated by Conservatives as one of the best men ever to sit in Parliament, was defeated by Liberal Len Marchand, 35, believed to the first Indian ever elected to the Commons.

Redistribution hurt Mr. Fulton's Tory support, but few thought it would do enough damage to defeat him. Mr. Marchand, a former special assistant to Indian Affairs Minister Laing, finished with 12,768 votes to Mr. Fulton's 9,557 with 197 of 203 polls reported.

Contractor Is Big Winner

Contractor Tom Goode, 34, was another big winner for the Liberals. He defeated New Democrat Robert Prittie, 48, in Burnaby-Richmond. NDP officials credited Trudeaumania among the riding's thousands of young suburbanites for the upset.

The New Westminister riding, formerly held by New Democrat Barry Mather, who ran this time in Surrey, went to Liberal Douglas Hogarth, 40. Mr. Hogarth defeated New Democrat Clive Lytle by almost 2,000 votes.

Frank Howard, member for Skeena since 1957, won re-election by a comfortable margin of more than 4,600 votes. Mr. Howard, the victim of an extortion plot last year, went on television in April, 1967, to reveal he had served 16 months in prison for armed robbery.

Harold Winch, former provincial CCF leader, was the NDP winner in Vancouver East, his 13th election victory without a defeat in 35 years of federal and provincial politics. Colin Cameron, 72, retained Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands for the NDP as expected.

And Grace MacInnis, B.C.'s first woman MP, coasted to victory in Vancouver Kingsway with a comfortable 5,000-vote margin. The 62-year-old widow of six-time MP Angus MacInnis won the riding in 1965.

Barry Mather, who represented New Westminister in the last House, took the new riding of Surrey for the NDP.

One of the new NDP MPs had a tough time of it — Mark Rose, 43, won Fraser Valley West by fewer than 800 votes over Liberal Ed Murphy.

The other newcomer, Randolph Harding, former NDP MLA and party whip in the B.C. Legislature, fared better. He finished more than 4,000 votes ahead of his Liberal opponent.

Mr. Harding, 51, who served 23 years in the provincial House was taking over from New Democrat H. W. Bert Hetridge, who held the federal seat also for 23 years.

LIBERAL RAY PERRAULT
. . . "all-Canadian longshot"

'NDP GAVE US WINNING WAY'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)— Ray Perrault conceded today that a page stolen from the New Democratic Party campaign book helped him defeat NDP leader T. C. Douglas in the new Burnaby - Seymour constituency Tuesday.

"We got a lot of workers out . . . more than 1,000. And we ran a heavy canvass, a door-to-door campaign, the campaign the NDP boast about. It was a good campaign, a complete canvass of all points."

But Mr. Perrault said he wouldn't count his political eggs until the service vote is in the basket next week and a recount, certain to be requested by Mr. Douglas, has been completed.

CONFIDENT, BUT . . .

"I think the signs point to a victory for us. The service vote went Liberal last time in Burnaby - Coquitlam (Mr. Douglas' old seat) but I'd be a rash prophet to call the shot when we're only 93 votes apart."

Election night count in Burnaby - Seymour gave Mr. Perrault 17,880 votes, Mr. Douglas 17,787, Conservative Charles Maclean 3,193 and Social Crediter Ron Price 704.

Mr. Perrault went into election day calling himself "the all-Canadian longshot" and said today he'd expected a close vote, perhaps "500 votes between us, one way or the other."

Mr. Perrault said the appeal of Prime Minister Trudeau and an appearance by the Prime Minister in the riding, helped his cause "but we ran a very strong ground offensive."

PUBLICITY CITED

"Mr. Douglas had a lot of publicity. As a national leader, of course, that's to be expected. Provincial leaders get it provincially and as provincial leader I had publicity too, to my benefit.

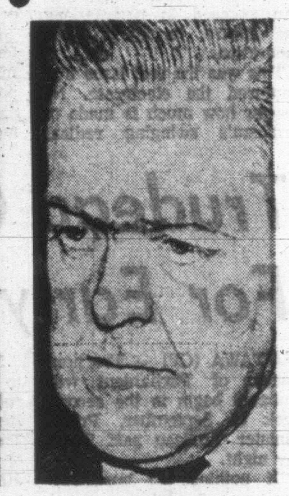

"After the (national leaders') TV debate, in which Mr. Douglas came over quite well . . . it had a profound effect in the riding and we had to redouble our efforts."

Mr. Perrault, 42, quit after nine years as B.C. Liberal leader to run against Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Perrault said he hoped to talk to Mr. Trudeau today. Asked if he expected a cabinet post if he is confirmed the victor, he said: "Mr. Trudeau now has a selection of 150 people."

Indian Likes Role As 'Giant-Killer'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Liberal Len Marchand, who believes he is the first native Indian ever elected to the House of Commons, likes his new role as Tory giant-killer.

"It's the greatest moment of my life," he said a few minutes after defeating former justice minister E. Davie Fulton of the Progressive Conservatives in the Kamloops-Cariboo riding.

Asked if he saw difficulties balancing his roles as an Indian and a member of the House of Commons, the 35-year-old Mr. Marchand said:

"I'm a Canadian first. This country belongs to all of us regardless of racial background. It belongs to each and every one of us and that's the way I go forward."

Mr. Marchand credited his victory over Mr. Fulton to teamwork on the part of his campaigners.

"I also feel it's the great belief of the Canadian people in the future of Canada, in young men and in Mr. Trudeau."

Former special assistant to Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, Mr. Marchand said he must first look after all his constituents.

"I have no pet project. I am concerned with forestry, agriculture, Indian affairs of course and business interests," he said.

KAMLOOPS NATIVE

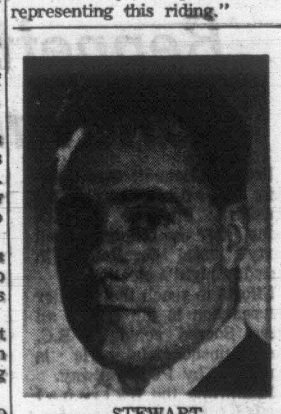

A Kamloops native, Mr. Fulton, 52, comes from a long-time political family. His father was a British Columbia cabinet minister. His grandfather and a great uncle were premiers of British Columbia.

Mr. Fulton was one of the three British Columbia Conservatives in the last House who went down to defeat — all at the hands of Liberals.

Mr. Fulton attributed his defeat to the "tremendous impact of Mr. Trudeau and the predictions in the press and television of . . . a Liberal sweep."

He said he would take time to consider his personal plans and would not be "pressed or prodded or harried" into premature announcements. "I am not looking for sympathy."

Mr. Fulton visited Mr. Marchand's headquarters to "assure him of my co-operation in representing this riding."

A former Victorian living in Kimberley has been elected for the Liberals in the Okanagan-Kootenay riding, defeating incumbent Socred Howard Johnston.

William Douglas Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Stewart of 1213 Roslyn, was called to the B.C. bar Oct. 1, 1964.

Born in Victoria, he was president of Oak Bay High Student Council, president of Victoria College Student Council and president of the UBC Alma Mater Society.

This will be his first term in office.

GRACE ALONE IN HOUSE

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — In the ear of the royal commission on he status of women, Tuesday's federal voting saw 35 of 36 women candidates defeated.

Of the four women who sat in the 27th Parliament, only one will be back for the 28th — the NDP's Grace MacInnis from Vancouver Kingsway.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, 43, bowed out of her own accord, choosing to return to her law practice at Niagara Falls rather than seek re-election.

Conservative Jean Wadds, an MP since 1958, lost in Grenville-Carleton to Liberal Gordon Blair, an Ottawa lawyer.

Liberal Margaret Rideout, first elected in 1964, was upset by a Conservative in Moncton.

REPLACED HUSBANDS

Mrs. Wadds, 48, and Mrs. Rideout, 45, both are widows who won seats in byelections after the deaths of their MP-husbands.

It has been 18 years since the Commons has had one woman member. Ellen Fairclough, a cabinet minister during the Diefenbaker administration, was the only woman MP between 1950 and 1953.

Mrs. MacInnis, 62, is the widow of Angus MacInnis who represented Vancouver East and Vancouver Kingsway for the CCF from 1930 to 1957. She is the daughter of the late J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF, the Socialist forerunner of the NDP.

There were 20 other NDP women candidates running, six Conservative, one Liberal, two Creditiste, two Social Credit, two Communist, one independent Conservative and one independent.

The independent was Carole Lavallee, 25, a Cree Indian girl representing the Saskatchewan Native Action Committee in Meadow Lake, Sask.

SPARKED COMMISSION

Another loser was Laura Sabia, St. Catharines, Ont., alderman and the woman largely responsible for establishment of the status of women commission.

Fourteen women have been elected to Parliament since Agnes Macphail led the way in 1921. She represented the United Farmers of Ontario in Grey South-East until she was defeated in 1940.

Atlantic Provinces Buck National Tide

By IAN DONALDSON

HALIFAX (CP) — The Atlantic provinces sometimes set the voting trend for the rest of the country in federal elections, but in Tuesday's vote they went against the national tide and backed Conservative Leader Stanfield.

Starting with a six-seat upset in Newfoundland, the Conservatives won 25 of the Atlantic region's 32 Commons seats, up from 18 in the 1965 election when there were 33 seats at stake in the region.

The Liberals managed to win only one seat in Newfoundland, a Liberal bastion since the province entered Confederation in 1949.

The Conservative show of strength in Premier Joseph Smallwood's home territory temporarily buoyed the spirits of Mr. Stanfield who watched the results on TV in Halifax.

The jubilation was short-lived, however, as returns from central Canada showed a heavy trend toward Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberals.

Nova Scotia, Mr. Stanfield's home province, elected 10 Conservatives. Health Minister Allan MacEachen, the only Liberal survivor, won a narrow victory over a Conservative in Cape Breton Highlands-Canso.

Nova Scotia had 10 Conservatives in the last Parliament, the Liberals two. Redistribution reduced the province's representation by one seat.

The standings:	1968	1965

PC	25	18

In Prince Edward Island, all four seats went Conservative for the second straight time.

New Brunswick's 10 seats were shared evenly by the Conservatives and Liberals, a gain of one for the PCs.

The NDP once more was shut out of the Atlantic provinces.

Fallen Liberals in Newfoundland included Charles Granger, a minister without portfolio.

Conservative gains in Newfoundland followed a recent split in Mr. Smallwood's cabinet. Two of his ministers crossed the floor of the legislature to sit as independents.

The Conservatives also won a recent provincial byelection in Gander riding, their first gain in central Newfoundland.

Gerald Ottenheimer, the provincial PC leader, said the Newfoundland upset was "a repudiation of, and vote of non-confidence in, the Smallwood administration."

Mr. Smallwood and almost all other Newfoundland voting delegates backed Mr. Trudeau at the recent Liberal leadership convention in Ottawa.

EXPECTED TO LOSE

Mr. Stanfield, Nova Scotia's premier for 11 years, said he was disappointed and that he knew Monday night the PCs could expect no more than 90 seats.

Mr. Smallwood said Newfoundland voters had "exercised their soveriegn right to be wrong," in electing only one Liberal, St. John's broadcaster Don Jamieson in Burin-Burgeo.

"A great Liberal political movement will come to Newfoundland — beginning tomorrow," he said.

In New Brunswick, Premier Louis Robichaud and several political observers expressed surprise over the defeat in Moncton of Liberal Margaret Rideout, the Atlantic provinces' only woman member in the last Parliament. She lost to Conservative Charles H. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas had clashed openly with his party's constituency president with the result that the national PC campaign chairman, E. A. Goodman of Toronto, was called in twice to patch things up.

MISSES LIBERAL AREAS

Observers attributed Mrs. Rideout's defeat partly to redistribution, which took away some traditional Liberal areas of her former constituency.

Mrs. Rideout was Mr. MacEachen's parliamentary assistant in the last House. She was first elected to Parliament to fill a vacancy left by the death of her husband, Sherwood Rideout.

Among other prominent Atlantic candidates, J. Angus MacLean, former PC fisheries minister, was re-elected in Malpeque and Mr. Stanfield was an early winner in Halifax.

Hugh John Flemming, former PC forestry minister and New Brunswick premier, was re-elected in Carleton-Charlotte. R. G. L. Fairweather, former New Brunswick attorney-general, was re-elected in Funday-Royal.

There was varied weather for the voters in the Atlantic provinces. Western Newfoundland had heavy rain while eastern regions enjoyed sunshine. The south and eastern shores of Nova Scotia had rain and drizzle. Elsewhere in the Maritimes the weather was generally cloudy.

'Slap in the Face' For Prime Minister, Says a Sad Joey

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — "The tide has gone out," Premier Joseph Smallwood said of Tuesday's election results in Newfoundland.

"But the tide always comes back."

When he spoke, the Liberals had lost six of the seven seats they swept in 1965.

'RIGHT TO BE WRONG'

"It is a very sad and sorrowful thing that the people of Newfoundland have done today," Mr. Smallwood said.

Newfoundlanders had "exercised their sovereign right to be wrong. . . ."

"They have chosen to go against the Canadian tide," the premier said

"They did once before . . . the Diefenbaker tide stopped at Sydney. Again, the tide stopped at Sydney.

'SLAP IN FACE'

"We were right to fight the Diefenbaker tide. I think we were wrong to fight the Trudeau tide after helping make Mr. Trudeau prime minister at the Liberal leadership convention."

Newfoundland had "slapped him in the face."

Now, instead of sitting with a government for "five or seven years," most of their members were going to join a "small minority opposition."

ASKED WHY

The premier was asked why he thought the tide went out.

"No Tory carried on a campaign on federal issues," he replied.

"You would think that those Tory candidates were running for the House of Assembly."

LAST THING

Mr. Smallwood added quickly that "the last thing I would want this year is a provincial election . . . this is no year for Liberals in Newfoundland."

Mr. Smallwood's Liberal government scored a 39-4 provincial victory in 1966, leaving only three Conservatives in the 43-seat legislature. Two Liberals crossed the floor this spring to sit as Independent Liberals. Both of them were cabinet ministers.

'REPUDIATION' OF SMALLWOOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Gerald Ottenheimer, Newfoundland Conservative leader, viewed Tuesday's near-sweep of the province by PC candidates as a "repudiation of and vote of non-confidence in . . . the Smallwood administration."

Earlier, Premier Smallwood said Newfoundlanders had exercised "their sovereign right to be wrong."

"That's a rather arrogant statement," said Mr. Ottenheimer.

"Fifty-four per cent of the people of Newfoundland are wrong and Mr. Smallwood is right?"

FIRST DEFEAT IN 20 YEARS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Progressive Conservative Duff Roblin suffered his first defeat at the polls in a 20-year career in Tuesday's general election.

His victorious opponent in Winnipeg South Centre was rookie Liberal E. B. Osler, 48, who moved ahead early and piled up a hugh majority, causing the former premier to observe: "All I can say is that the electorate didn't leave any doubt.

"We have to recognize that."

Mr. Roblin, who was runner-up to Robert Stanfield in the Conservatives' national leadership convention last fall, led in only three of the 225 polls.

Mr. Osler, an author and insurance executive, said he was "astounded" by the margin he collected and added it was a tribute to the 3,000 volunteers who worked on his behalf. He had 22,043 votes to 12,950 for Mr. Roblin in unofficial results. A long-time friend of Mr. Roblin, he said he went into the election campaign as the underdog "but I felt it was worth a gamble."

Mr. Osler said he began to feel confident of election about 10 days ago, about the same time Mr. Roblin said he started to worry about the outcome.

Frances Thompson represented the New Democrats and ran a distant third. Jack McDowell, and independent Conservative, polled about 600 votes.

The seat had been held for the Conservatives since 1951 by Gordon Churchill who retired this year to make room for Mr. Roblin.

Ontario Bubbles Over With Trudeau Enthusiasm

By KEITH KINCAID

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario responded with enthusiasm Tuesday to Prime Minister Trudeau's call for a majority government. The resulting Liberal victories moved the party into firm control of the Commons.

The opposition's Ontario strength was reduced to a handful.

Turned loose by the prime minister's strong stand on national unity and his personal magic, a Liberal tide swept the Progressive Conservatives from the cities and jolted the New Democrats from their Northern Ontario fortress.

Redistribution increased Ontario's representation and it paid off for the Liberals as they picked up seven constituencies designated new, most of them urban.

No part of the province was excluded. The Liberals' move against Conservative strength in the southern farm belt was perhaps not as broad as they hoped, but they more than made up for it in the major cities where they successfully attacked both opposition parties.

The Liberals picked up eight former Conservative seats and five former NDP ridings.

PCs GAIN TWO

The Conservatives gained only two from the Liberals and the NDP was unable to pick up seats from either party.

The only entirely-urban riding to elect a Conservative was Hamilton West where Lincoln Alexander, 46-year-old Negro, became the first member of his race elected to Parliament.

The Liberals took 10 of the 11 Northern Ontario seats, setting down three of the four New Democrats in mining areas. The only survivor was Arnold Peters in Temiskaming. The 46-year-old former union organizer held to the seat he won in 1957.

The Liberals nearly matched the Diefenbaker sweep of 1958 when the PCs took 67 Ontario ridings.

The standings:

	1968	1965
Lib	65	51
PC	16	25
NDP	6	9
Total	88	85

Lucien Lamoureux was elected as independent in Stormont-Dundas. His victory against only NDP opposition paves the way for an expected appointment as permanent Commons Speaker.

LOSERS LIST GREW

The list of prominent Conservatives defeated grew steadily as the count progressed:

Michael Starr, former labor minister in Oshawa - Whitby; Jean Wadds, veteran parliamentarian and daughter of Ontario's retiring Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe, in Grenville-Carleton; Richard Bell, former works minister, in Ottawa West; Earl Brownridge in Peel South; Dalton Camp in Toronto Don Valley; M. Wallace McCutcheon, former trade minister and senator, in York-Simcoe.

Mr. Camp, the party's national president, and Mr. Brownridge, who recently resigned as president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., were prestige candidates counted on to give the Conservatives a toehold in the Toronto region. For the third straight election the party was shut out of Metro Toronto.

Mr. Camp lost by 4,800 votes to Liberal Robert Kaplan, 31-year-old lawyer who worked with Mr. Trudeau in his leadership campaign in the spring.

It was Mr. Camp's third unsuccessful try for a Commons seat and he told interviewers he will "wait a long time" before making another.

Mr. McCutcheon lost to John Roberts, 35, former aide to Forestry Minister Sauve. Mr. McCutcheon, who resigned from the Senate to run, lives in the riding and had been campaigning for months. Mr. Roberts is an outsider who arrived in time to get the nomination.

SAVES SOME SEATS

A helicopter spring by Conservative Leader Stanfield through a string of ridings in the southern Ontario countryside on Monday may have saved greater erosion in those areas.

Both Liberals and Conservatives were vulnerable in the Ontario farm vote, each holding six seats in the last House by fewer than 1,500 votes. The Liberals picked up Bruce, Middlesex and Northumberland-Durham from Conservatives and lost Norfolk-Haldimand.

The most important NDP victory was in Oshawa-Whitby where Ed Broadbent, 32-year-old university lecturer solidly backed by the United Auto Workers, beat Mr. Starr by 113 votes.

But elsewhere the results were a disappointment for the New Democrats. They had hoped to gain in Toronto Lakeshore with Terry Grier, former national party secretary, but he lost to a Liberal. In Toronto Scarborough West, their provincial secretary, John Harney, also lost to a Liberal.

Newspaper columnist Douglas Fisher, counting on a victory in York Centre as a springboard to the NDP leadership, lost by a big margin to James Walker, former Liberal whip in the Commons.

All Liberal cabinet ministers survived unscathed and a top prospect for a front-bench seat emerged in Philip Givens, former Toronto mayor who won York West. Among his opponents was William Kashtan, Communist Party leader, who ran last.

The Liberals had great success in the London area, Conservative Premier John Robarts' home base. They picked up London West and adjacent Middlesex from the Conservatives an retained Lonon East.

Mr. Robarts said the Conservative defeat was not a disgrace and the Ontario government will "continue to work with the federal government on behalf of all Canada."

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the Liberal victory gave Mr. Trudeau a mandate to move ahead with a policy against special status for Quebec.

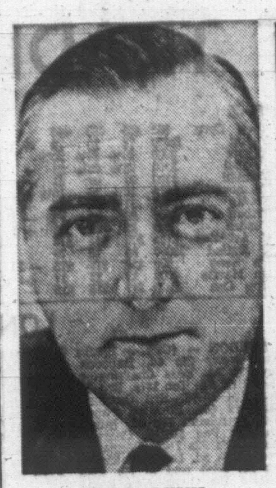

Provincial NDP Leader Donald MacDonald predicted the Liberal victory would lead to an impasse between the federal and Quebec governments on constitutional issues.

The NDP failed to budge Liberal strength built around the former external affairs minister, Paul Martin, in Windsor. The party had some success in Windsor in last fall's provincial election, but Senator Martin's continued presence in the campaign and a timely appearance by Mr. Trudeau kept three area ridings in the fold.

PM's Margin Third Highest

OTTAWA (CP)—The margin of 35,266 votes by which Prime Minister Trudeau won re-election in Montreal Mount Royal on Tuesday was the third highest in Canadian electoral history.

The highest was posted by Conservative Rodney Adamson—43,806—in York West in 1945. Next was Liberal Jean Rochon, with 29,751 in Montreal's Laval in 1963.

LAMOUREUX
non-party MP

'Ready For Job' As Speaker

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Lucien Lamoureux, Speaker of the Commons re-elected as a non-party MP, said Tuesday night he is ready to take on the task of presiding over the House of Commons again.

"I'm a candidate," he said with a smile. "I'll start campaigning tomorrow."

But a campaign isn't likely to be necessary to have him elected Speaker again.

He stood in Stormont-Dundas riding as an independent unopposed, by agreement, by the Liberals and Conservatives.

But Timothy Wees was nominated for the New Democratic Party before the Liberal-Conservative entente was reached.

Mr. Lamoureux won handily, and Mr. Wees congratulated him generously Tuesday night.

"Canada now has an excellent Speaker of the House," he said.

PCs Lose Prairie Grip; Both Liberals, NDP Gain

EDMONTON (CP) — The West veered Tuesday from the Progressive Conservative line it has held so staunchly in federal elections over the years.

The standings in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta:

	1968	1965
Lib.	11	1
PC	25	42
NDP	9	3
SC	0	2
Totals	45	48

The Liberals struck hard in Manitoba, sputtered a bit in Saskatchewan, picked up momentum again in Alberta then stormed into British Columbia.

Struck down before them were former Manitoba premier Duff Roblin and Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister.

In Saskatchewan, where the NDP showed a resurgence, Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, lost to an NDP candidate, one of six elected in the province.

The Liberals elected five members in Manitoba where in 1965 they had one; two in Saskatchewan where they had none; four in Alberta where they had none; and 15 in British Columbia where they had seven.

ADD SIX IN SASK.

The NDP returned three in Manitoba and eight in B.C., but added the six in Saskatchewan for the best showing in that province since the CCF—predecessor of the NDP — won 10 in 1957.

Two former Social Crediters won in Alberta under different banners.

Robert Thompson, former national Social Credit leader, won as a Conservative in Red Deer, and H. A. Bud Olson won as a Liberal in Medicine Hat.

Mr. Roblin bowed before the Liberal onslaught to a long-time friend, E. B. Osler, an author and businessman. Mr. Hamilton lost to John Burton of the NDP in Regina East, and Mr. Fulton lost to Liberal Len Marchand in Kamloops-Cariboo.

Former pri meminister John Diefenbaker won re-election in Prince Albert. Three of his former cabinet ministers were also re-elected.

Douglas Harkness, who split with Mr. Diefenbaker over nuclear arms in 1963, won a close race in Calgary Centre. Marcel Lambert, former veterans affairs minister, had an easier time in Edmonton West, and Walter Dinsdale, former northern affairs minister, was a galloping winner in Brandon-Souris.

Alberta Liberal Leader Mike Maccagno lost to Conservative Paul Jewchuk in Athabasca. He said he would step down from the provincial leadership and see that a convention is called soon.

FATHER, SON TEAMS SPLIT BY VOTERS

The election campaign saw two father-and-son teams doing or dying for their parties, and, when the smoke cleared, there had been more dying than doing.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp was an easy winner for the Liberals in Toronto Eglinton but his son Noel, also a Liberal, lost in Alberta's Crowfoot riding to Conservative incumbent Jack Horner.

In the British Columbia Social Credit debacle, the losers included former MLA Bert Price, Socred candidate in Fraser Valley West, and his son Ron, defeated as Ray Perrault and Tommy Douglas fought a neck-and-neck battle in Burnaby-Seymour.

TWO CABINET MINISTERS went down to defeat Tuesday. Forestry Minister Sauve, right, lost in the Quebec riding of St. Hyacinthe to Progressive Conservative Theogene Ricard. Charles Granger, recently-appointed minister without portfolio, was a victim of the Tory sweep in Newfoundland, losing to Conservative John Lundrigan.

HERE'S THE ELECTION PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

(Canadian Press Copyright)

Following are the results of voting in the federal general election as compiled by The Canadian Press:

Legend: x-Member of last House; z-New seat. L-Liberal; PC - Progressive Conservative; NDP - New Democratic Party; Cred - Creditiste; SC - Social Credit; Comm - Communist; Dem Econ-Democratisation Economique; Rhino-Rhinoceros; Soc Lab-Socialist Labor; Ind - Independent.

Figures bracketed after constituency name indicate party majority in last election or by-election. Redistribution aimed at reducing disparities in population among urban and also among rural seats altered boundaries of almost all constituencies from 1965. As result, 1968 majorities are not comparable with 1965's in many cases.

Returns are complete unless number of polls reported is shown, thus-109:120.

BUSINESS VIEWPOINT

Firm Makes Bid for Outstanding TV Shares

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The president of Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. sees no obstacle in acquiring all outstanding shares of the parent firm of Victoria's TV outlet.

Frank A. Griffiths of Vancouver, was commenting on the company's latest proposal for buying the remaining shares of British Columbia Television Broadcasting System Ltd., of which Western's wholly-owned subsidiary Saturna Properties Ltd. now holds 30 per cent. About 35 per cent of B.C. Television Broadcasting is publicly held and the remaining 35 per cent is owned by two other companies with broadcasting interests — Selkirk Holdings Ltd. and Famous Players Canadian Corp. Ltd.

Kent

These two and Saturna Properties previously were turned down on a joint bid to secure the remaining B.C. Television Broadcasting shares not already held. The Canadian Radio-Television Commission rejected the proposal because of Famous Players' multiple ownership in Canadian television, and Selkirk's interests in broadcasting, cable television and publishing.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Griffiths, "there is no other purchaser in the field, and since it's a private company nobody from outside can bid for the shares."

Shareholders

He said the shareholders in Victoria and Vancouver areas had indicated they would go along with the new proposal. There was no indication from the two major shareholders.

Mr. Griffiths told Western shareholders at their annual meeting that purchase of the outstanding publicly-held shares would cost about $5 million, which could be financed out of cash and conventional bank borrowing.

If Selkirk and Famous Players went along with the offer, the price would escalate to $9 million, a sum which would require more costly financing, the meeting was told.

After-tax earnings in the first two months of 1968 were up 13 per cent, but the president did not forecast earnings for the balance of the year, although long-term prospects are good.

Second-quarter earnings have a good chance of being high with extra revenue anticipated from federal election advertising.

Main Assets

Western incorporated as a public company in November 1965, its principal assets being the Vancouver radio station CKNW, the Winnipeg stations CJOB and CJOB-FM, and Saturna Properties.

Saturna, in turn, participates in B.C. Televison Broadcasting System, which holds the operating licence for CHAN-TV, Vancouver, and this company holds the licence for CHEK-TV, Victoria.

CKNW expects to begin FM broadcasting in the fall.

12-Mile Limit

B.C.'s offshore fishing industry is being threatened by failure of the U.S. to support the 12-mile territorial limit even though 1964 legislation proclaimed it.

This was the message of B.C. Packers Ltd. chairman Norman Hyland in speaking in Vancouver to Washington state bankers in convention. Mr. Hyland also is president of Vancouver Board of Trade.

Although there has been agreement on the fishing limit, the line has never been defined. This makes the U.S. "unjustified and sadly out of step with the conservation needs of a shore-based fishing industry," Mr. Hyland told the 500 bankers, at the 72nd annual meeting of Washington Bankers Association.

It permits the sea-based Japanese and Russian fishing fleets to exploit Canada's fishing resource, he said.

By its failure to take an active part in the control of west coast waters to the 12-mile limit, the U.S. has left unnamed the co-ordinates for defining such traditionally Canadian fishing preserves as Queen Charlotte Sound, Mr. Hyland said.

Silent Type

United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. says one of its ST6B gas turbine engines powers a new "silent" hovercraft type of vehicle undergoing trials in England.

The CC-7, built by Cushioncraft Limited on the Isle of Wight, uses two centrifugal axis rather than propellers, fans mounted on a horizontal which create much more noise while providing lift.

The makers, boasting "the world's first silent hovercraft," claim sales have been made to equatorial Africa and that operation is suited to all conditons and climates including the Canadian north.

Cushioncraft director Desmond Norman said the vehicle, developed with support from the British minstry of technology, was designed along lines "different from everyone else."

Car Insurance

American motorists proposing to drive to Canada on vacation this year are being warned by a national magazine to carry proof of adequate auto insurance.

Business Week magazine says the minimum liability coverage — ranging between $35,000 and $50,000 — will be enforced "more rigidly than in the past."

The same applies in Mexico, where a driver can buy special coverage for between $4 and $10 per day.

But failure to have Mexican coverage — U.S. coverage won't do although the insurer may be reimbursed later — can mean impoundment of his car for a day or so.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.07¼ for cheques, $1.07⅛ for cash, $1.06¼ for silver. Sales were $1.08 for cheques and $1.08⅛ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was down 1-16 at $1.07 9-16.

Pound sterling was up 1-16 at $2.56 7-16.

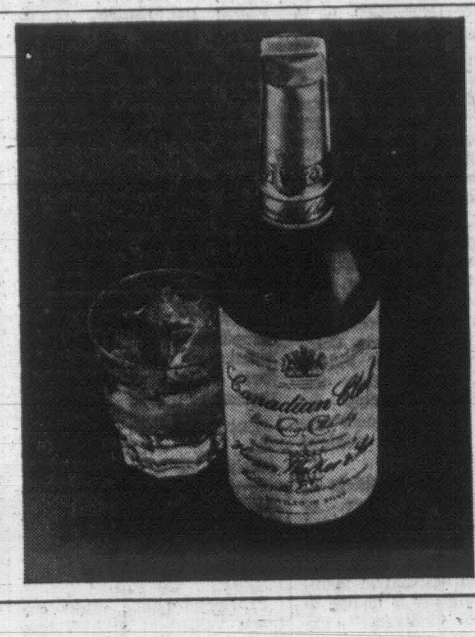

Labor Income Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Total labor income was estimated at $2,753,600,000 in March, an increase of about one per cent from February, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. Wages and salaries were greater in all industrial groups except agriculture, fishing and trapping, mining and construction.

DEVALUATION NO HELP

LONDON (AP)—Britain's export trade failed to respond to the stimulus of devaluation in May and dipped slightly, but the import boom slowed down and the trade deficit was unchanged from the previous month.

PROTECTION RAISED BY HARRIED FRENCH

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — France told its five European Common Market partners Tuesday it will impose wide-ranging protective import quotas July 1, informed sources said.

The new measures are designed to limit the effects of six weeks of strikes which brought near paralysis to French industry.

The quotas will cover textiles, motor vehicles, household electrical goods and steel products.

They will be limited in time and designed to keep imports into France at a level they would have reached if there had been no social and economic upheaval.

B.C. Wood Industry At Critical Stage

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The critical stage of supply has been reached in British Columbia's multi-million dollar lumbering industry, a group of 100 delegates to the Survey '68 seminar was told here.

The warning was sounded by government forester Norman McRae of Prince George, who said more than 50 per cent of Canada's commercially useable forest grows in B.C. and from these forests come half of every dollar in the B.C. economy.

But the critical stage has been reached, he said, where the maximum cut possible is being made in regulated areas.

To ensure a continued increase in production, he said three things are necessary:

— Modern forest fire fighting techniques to reduce acreage destroyed by fire.

—Prompt reforestation through both natural and artificial means.

— More intensive use of present wood resources by wasting less of each tree cut.

Delegates also were told that northern B.C. continues to hold great economic prosperity for the present and future.

Expenditures of $50,000,000 on communication facilities will provide proof the north is still booming, said T. F. Heenan, vice-president of B.C. Telephones.

That amount, added to the $100,000,000 spent by the company during the last eight years, shows the faith the company has in the north, he added.

Inflow of Capital

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a net capital inflow of $169,000,000 into Canada in the first three months of 1968 in securities trading between Canada and other countries, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The figure compared with a net inflow of $235,000,000 in the last three months of 1967.

HARMFUL, SAYS U.S.

Uranium Duty Cut Opposed

WASHINGTON (CP) — A conflict of views within the aluminum industry erupted here with the aluminum Association of the United States rejecting as harmful to the U.S. industry proposals for elimination of duties on aluminum between the United States and Canada.

John M. Mitchell, executive vice-president of Aluminum Co. of America and spokesman for the association, also urged that if other major aluminum trading blocs, particularly the European Common Market, do not reduce aluminum tariffs, then the United States "should be prepared to adjust ours upwards in order to achieve equal access."

Eric A. Trigg, president of Alcan Aluminum Corp. of Cleveland, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Alcan Aluminum Ltd. of Montreal, said that, although an association member, his company is unable to "reconcile viewpoints" expressed by the association.

Both testified before the House of Representatives ways and means committee, conducting month-long hearings on President Johnson's plans for liberalizing world trade.

PRICE HELPS INDUSTRY

Trigg said Canada is by far the major supplier of unwrought aluminum imports into the United States and that the industry has grown because of assurance to buyers that the metal will be available at competitive prices.

Trigg said a study would reveal the benefits to the United States of regional trade agreements looking to establishment of more liberal tariff treatment, particularly a bilaterial agreement between the United States and Canada.

Regional trade agreements might include not only the United States and Canada, but also Caribbean countries; in all cases limited, perhaps, to important raw materials of interest to the countries involved. The United States, Canada and certain Caribbean countries together already form a large production and marketing area."

But to get such agreements, the U.S. would have to continue her leadership on the side of liberal treatment of international trade in aluminum.

OPPOSES RESTRICTION

As for the association's stand on ECM barriers against aluminum, Trigg said "the world aluminum industry and trade therein should not be shackled to the refusal of one trading region to go along with Liberal trade conditions."

Mitchell said two proposals for a free-trade agreement with Canada in aluminum or duty-free entry of such products regardless of source would be "inconsistent with the principle of equal access among all major trading countries."

Both would be "inimical to the interests of the U.S. aluminum industry," he said.

"What the North American aluminum industry both in Canada and in the U.S. needs is freer access to the markets of the rest of the world, and this objective would simply not be served and indeed would be prejudiced by such arrangements."

Two Contracts Given Locally

Provincial public works contracts valued at $112,137 have gone to the Victoria firm of H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd.

They are $99,972 for a forced air ventilation system in the B.C. Medical Plan building on Government, and $12,165 for renovations to the fifth floor of the Weiler building, Broughton Street.

Parole Works; Rehabilitation Total Mounts

Most convicts released on parole are not "turning around and committing new offences," Frank Miller, executive director of the national parole board said here Tuesday.

He said the parole board in its nine years of existence had successfully rehabilitated nearly 9 per cent of its parolees.

By contrast, approximately 70 per cent of prisoners who spend their full sentence in prison commit another offence when they get back "on the street."

Mr. Miller, a Victoria native appointed to head the board in 1965, is making a western tour of penal institutions, visiting police and court officials and after-care agencies.

MANY PAROLES

Since 1959 the board has granted 21,284 paroles. Of these only 2,335 have been revoked or cancelled.

Mr. Miller qualified the figures he presented, saying "to measure success or failure statistically is not an easy thing."

He pointed out that the board was selective in its choice of parolees and once out of prison, board officers kept careful watch of thier doings.

But, he said, it was his impression that effective supervision and counselling was a major factor in keeping paroled convicts within the law.

In B.C there are 18 parole board officers — three in Victoria — handling about 400 parolees. Mr. Miller said that depending on difficulties of particular parolees, one officer could look after 25 to 50 persons at a time.

The number of paroles granted in Canada has increased since 1965 and the director said, while other factors might have some effect, the increase seemd in direct proportion to the number of officers on the board.

NOT RELIEF MEASURE

Parole was never granted as a means of relieving overcrowding in jails. It was granted only after an officer of the board had made a study and assessment of the prisoner's chances of staying straight when he got out.

The more officers the board had, the more complete an assessment could be and more effective supervision could follow release.

"If a man gets out and thinks things may go wrong, he may go wrong ... but if the officer can handle him, the chances are high of keeping him on the street."

Mr. Miller would not comment on the recent Winnipeg city decision to stop making an annual grant to the John Howard and Elizabeth Fry Societies — private agencies who counsel and help rehabilitate released prisoners.

Winnipeg is the next stop on his tour.

SOCIETIES HELP

He said only that the societies "have played an important role in the development of parole in Canada and in helping people who come out."

He said rehabilitation of former prisoners was handled one-third by the parole board, one-third by provincial probationary services and one-third by private agencies.

The board has recently commissioned major studies of parole by criminology centres in Toronto and Ottawa.

They are trying to determine what factors are predictable in successful paroles, what effectiveness the parole supervisor has, what supervisors' attitudes towards convicts are and how the convicts themselves view the parole system and its officers.

KELOWNA'S WORK PLAN

No Beach-Sitting for Hippies

KELOWNA (CP) — City council decided Monday to take a new hard line on hippies and other transients seeking welfare and a place in the Okanagan Valley sun.

Council approved a crackdown on people who want welfare but won't work.

Ald. Hilbert Roth told council some transients register for work with Canada manpower but the registration is "just a farce, since they have no address and cannot be contacted if jobs become available."

He reported that some transients had been cut off welfare last Friday.

"These people are dropouts from society and that's fine with us, but don't expect the taxpayers to pay," he commented.

Ald. Thomas Angus said Kelowna had a reputation for being an "easy touch" for seeking welfare, but everyone concerned was unanimously in favor of a tougher policy.

"If they won't try for work in three or four days, we'll move them on.

"Why give them welfare chits so they can sit on the beach?"

But he stressed that the city would continue to help any legitimate transient who wants work.

Leone Solves Italian Crisis Second Time

ROME (Reuters) — For the second time in five years, Senator Giovanni Leone, 59, a Neapolitan law professor, is premier of Italy at the head of an interim government.

In 1963, his Christian Democratic party headed a minority coalition. Then, as now his formation of a government ended a political crisis.

The current government, sworn in today, is expected to run the country on a caretaker basis until October.

Small and bespectacled, Leone was born in Naples, Nov. 3, 1908, and graduated in law at the age of 21. Since 1933, he has taught law at the universities of Camerino, Messina, Bari, Naples and Rome.

He has published a number of books and articles on legal questions.

SERVED IN WAR

During the Second World War he served as a lieutenant-colonel in the legal branch of the army.

He entered politcs in 1945 as secretary of the Naples branch of the Christian Democrats.

He used his legal experience as a member of the constituent assembly which drafted the Italian republic's constitution.

His quick repartee and sense of humor, coupled with the trained lawyer's abilty to get swiftly to the bottom of a procedural problem, stood him in good stead as chariman of the Chamber of Deputies from 1955 to 1963.

In 1963, he resigned to head the short-lived coalition, whicb preceeded the centre-left coalition of former premier Aldo Moro.

He was married in 1946 and has three sons.

Plot to Kill Made Public By Governor

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Governor John McKeithen of Louisiana confirmed Tuesday that he has received reports of a plot to kill him in connection with the state's probe into labor-management racketeering.

Other highly placed sources said the governor was told that a "contract" to murder him had been made and that McKeithen had been informed of it three weeks ago.

State Police Supt. Thomas Burbank said two such threats were reported by the FBI in New Orleans, but declined to give any other information except to add: "Other information in this matter could be forthcoming in a matter of three or four days."

The controversial state labor-management commission of inquiry has filed a number of charges against labor figures, the result of a series of public hearings.

The commission was set up by a special session of the legislature last year after a serics of strikes and lockouts virtually stopped construction work in the Baton Rouge area.

City Workers Strike

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) —Trash mounted on Santa Monica streets and beaches today as a strike of most city employees for higher pay went into its sixth day. Police in this Los Angeles oceanside suburb of about 85,000 residents supported the strike Tuesday but voted against participating in the walkout.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1968—PAGE 15

Arthur Mayse

Not for years had I thought of Paddy O'Toole, the sour little gargoyle who was fire warden for Buckem & Yardem when I first worked on that highball railway - logging show. But this post - election morning broke rainy, and a laden bough leaned across the beach trail to sluice water down my neck.

"June," I growled to my partner. "The season of brides and roses!"

Those were Paddy's words, come back from another June, when the rain sifted down daily on slash and raven-haunted green timber.

A distant donkey-whistle would signal the noooning. Before its wail had ended, we'd down tools and break out nosebag lunches and coffee makings. Paddy would kindle a fire with a fistful of wet dynamite. As the first wonderful, warming flames took hold on the cedar, he would scowl across the misted valley.

"June," he'd declare with sardonic bitterness. "June, the season of brides and roses."

★

No answer was expected. We of his crew were spark-chasers, our fair-weather patrol jobs washed out by the endless rain, and dirty-work our lot. In the logging camp pecking order, we rated as the lowest of the low. Paddy spoke to us no oftener than the job demanded, and then with heavy sarcasm.

Our sodden little band hated him and wished him ill, a fact of which Paddy was well aware. I think he took pleasure in it.

Each winter, he worked as a pump-tender, batching alone in a remote shack. For company he had cougar and deer, and a dream that he revealed to us in a moment of rare expansiveness.

This was to find, stalk and marry a well-heeled widow.

"Then" he told us dourly, "they'll all be laughing on the other side of their faces."

"They" were the hearty loggers, among whom Paddy rated only a notch above us.

But he was our strawboss that wet June, and he drove us hard, whether the chore was slashing fire-trails through devil's club and salmonberry, or clearing a new campsite. I will say this for Paddy. He taught us how to work; and therein lay the chief reason for our hatred.

★

One morning, the big speeder known as the Galloping Goose fetched us clickety-clack to a rail spur on which an empty flat car waited.

Close by sat a vast black cookhouse range. Our task: to load it on board.

There were four of us, and our scrawny mentor. We gaped at the monstrous stove, then at Paddy. One of our dismayed quartette said "You're kidding!"

Paddy pulled on his gloves. He gave his college-boy crew a contemptuous stare, then jerked his thumb at a pile of massive planks.

"We rig a ramp," he said, "and we heave the stove up it."

To our amazement, we did just that. At one point, the range teetered over us, ready if it slipped to squash us like beetles. The task darn near killed us, but we accomplished it.

Next day, we dug latrine pits for the new camp. On the way home, the Galloping Goose hopped the rails at a curve. The rest of us dived into the brush and escaped with bruises and scratches, but Paddy O'Toole broke a leg.

We had looked forward in hate-sessions to something like this; but faced by the actuality, we felt guilty, sorry, and in an odd way, lost. The stern little tyrant lying hurt and wan with our jackets spread over him against the rain had taught us to do the impossible. Who now would teach us?

"Hey, Paddy," one young malingerer said. "June, huh? The season of brides and roses?"

Paddy nodded. We boosted the Galloping Goose back on the steel, and it carried him away. I never saw him again, and can only hope that in some season of brides and roses he married his rich widow.

They All Had Raves For Couple of Daves

Winners' circle was crammed with friends and admirers and family at Liberal headquarters in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich Tuesday night and victorious candidates David Anderson and David Groos were applauded, back-slapped, rocked by hearty handshakes and bedecked with a dozen shades of lipstick. Above, Mr. Anderson beams from throng and at right, Mr. Groos collects tribute from Mrs. Groos, left, and family members Madeleine, 17; Brian, 15, and Hilary, 13, right. Another daughter, Llanra, 19, is at present at Ottawa. Mr. Anderson wound up evening with a party for his youthful supporters — and it turned out they were all youthful — at Red Lion, while Mr. Groos entertained at his home. Both candidates expect to be called to Ottawa for reconvening of the House, September 15. Mr. Anderson has promised he will return here every month to try to keep his campaign organization flourishing. Helping him, as he helped him in his campaign, will be his brother Malcolm, top left, with both hands raised. (Times photos.)

Reminder to Oak Bay: It's Not Over Yet!

By BRUCE YEMEN

The Oak Bay provincial byelection campaign is off and running with hardly a gasp for breath after the federal campaign.

Both Liberal candidate Allan Cox and Social Credit candidate Peter Pollen have working organizations ready to swing into high gear.

A New Democratic Party candidate has not been named in the July 15 byelection to fill the seat vacated by Alan Macfarlane, Liberal MLA who was appointed to the B.C. Supreme Court.

The Oak Bay contest — one of three being held in the province — was much to the fore Tuesday night during celebrations at Liberal David Groos' headquarters.

Mr. Cox, campaign manager for Mr. Groos, had hardly shaken the winner's hand before his own campaign manager, Harold Olafson, was urging about 100 Groos' supporters to get in and fight for victory in Oak Bay.

There were a few mock "oh no" gasps from weary campaigners and then cheers for the forthcoming battle.

Liberals are expecting a tough fight from Mr. Pollen and they were aware of his "presence" in the Groos headquarters through the television election broadcast which the automobile dealer's firm sponsored.

Mr. Pollen, who worked in the federal Conservative campaign, said today he has 200 campaign workers including many Liberals and Conservatives.

About 35 cars will be out tonight putting up campaign signs and literature is set to go out next week, Mr. Pollen said.

The Liberals dropped 12,000 brochures into the mail at noon Tuesday for Oak Bay residents.

"Trudeaumania" is not regarded as much help to Mr. Cox because provincial issues are substantially unlike federal ones.

Mr. Pollen feels the Liberal national win emphasizes the desirability of strong stable governments — something that he feels only Social Credit can offer in B.C.

He charged the NDP will not run a candidate in Oak Bay in an effort to help "fragment" politics in the province.

$4.5M VOCATIONAL UNIT

Fall Start Set On Big School

Bids in Month On First Stage

By JIM HUME

Construction will start this fall on the first stages of what will ultimately be a $4.5 million technical vocational school for Greater Victoria.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Tuesday afternoon that tenders for the first stages of construction would be called "in a month or two" with construction scheduled to start shortly after.

"Things are moving along very well with the drawings in the final stage of checking," he said. "I can't give a specific date for calling tenders or for a construction start because there are always odds and ends to clear up, slight modifications to the plans and various clearances from the treasury board.

"But we shall call tenders in a month or two and construction will definitely start this fall."

WILKINSON ROAD

Chosen site for the vocational school is on Wilkinson Road midway between the Glendale School for retarded children and the old Wilkinson Road jail.

Mr. Chant said the school would be built in phases.

"The first stage will see the construction of a heating plant and a large workshop catering to multiple trades," he said. "I can't give you figures on what the ultimate population will be. The school as we envision it today will delevop like the Burnaby Vocational School. It will grow a little each year."

Asked if the original $4.5 million total cost still applied, Mr. Chant answered, "Well I wouldn't reduce it any, construction costs do tend to go up you know."

SOME SKEPTIC

Local education authorities received the news with a degree of skepticism.

In October, 1963, then Minister of Education Leslie Peterson announced a $2.5 million vocational and technical training school for Greater Victoria.

In August, 1964, little less than a year later with no positive sign of the school, Premier W. A. C. Bennett reiterated the promise of a vocational school but trimmed the cost to $2 million.

There followed close to three years of constant agitation by education authorities but little sign of renewed promise from the provincial government.

Then, in January, 1966, J. S. White, provincial director of technical and vocational training, announced a $4 million vocational school to be built on 30 acres of land at Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway.

Construction was scheduled to start early in 1967 with the first students moving into the workshops in 1969.

In mid-1967 the provincial government assured local authorities that plans were actually being drawn and would be completed in December of that year. But that there had been a site change with Wilkinson Road favored over Burnside.

Apart from Mr. Chant's positive assertion that the plans are now complete except for minor adjustments, school board chairman Peter Bunn says he is wondering if this is just another in a long series of fruitless promises.

"The announcement doesn't surprise me," he said. "There's a byelection coming up in Oak Bay, one the premier would dearly love to win.

"I have said before and don't mind saying again, this government doesn't do anything unless it is politically opportune.

"I hope they mean it this time. Nothing would give me more pleasure than to see a vocational school in action and serving the needs of the hundreds of secondary school youngsters not going on to university.

'LONG OVERDUE'

"Such a school is long overdue. It was overdue is 1967 when we first started agitating. But it has been made abundantly clear over the years that dams and super-ports are more important to this government than the educatioal needs of our children."

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, said organized labor would profoundly welcome the building of the school.

"It is a matter of record that labor organizations have been advocating a trades school for the past 50 years," he said. "We have always been very concerned about youngsters coming into labor without adequate training or skills.

'GREAT NEWS'

"If the government really means it this time it's really great news."

When the proposed school was first announced government officials stated it would offer courses for automotive engineers, electricians, welders, cooks, waitresses, secretaries and bookkeeping.

Entrance requirements for most subjects were to be a Grade 10 minimum with some courses limited to Grade 12 graduates.

It was also stated at that time that an advisory committee comprised of representatives from business, labor and commerce would be formed to advise on various programs.

'SOUPED UP' NAVY BLASTS RATTLE CITY

A series of explosions which jolted Victoria residents around 9 this morning were set off by navy divers training off Bentinck Isand, near Race Rocks.

Canadian Armed Forces spokesmen said divers from the Clearance Diving Establishment West fired a string of quarter pound line charges.

The unusual transfer of sound and vibration to the Victoria area was a result of the heavy overcast condition of the weather.

The divers have been training in the area, 10 miles from the city, since Monday and will continue until Friday. Military authorities have issued directions to reduce the charges until weather conditions change.

EXPRESSIONS OF HOPE

Businessmen Hail Majority Regime

By AB KENT

B.C. business and industrial leaders today greeted the election of a majority government as a stabilizer for Canada's economy.

Hopes for improvement in the construction industry in particular were expressed by A. G. Shore, president of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., who looks for "a fresh burst of activity in the country."

"We can't get along booming one year and cut off the next," he said. "I would like to see something along the line of five-year plans and I think a stable government like this should be able to give us something like that."

Trust company manager Douglas Abbott said:

"Everyone rejoices that we have a majority government."

This will no longer "waste the time of Parliament" in long debates. "Now let's get on with it," he said.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president William Armstrong said:

"As a citizen I'm relieved that it's a majority government."

Investment dealer William Du Moulin:

"The prime minister is a dynamic figure and no doubt he attracted a lot of people to him. He is a pragmatist that realizes many problems lie before him, including financial and economic problems.

"Perhaps with a majority he can work to long sought-after solutions."

Mr. Du Moulin said he felt the Conservative members would offer "useful and constructive opposition."

He also noted it is the first time in more than a decade B.C. has had such solid representation in the federal government.

William Anderson, Vancouver, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"We are gratified that we do now have a majority government (to deal with) problems facing the country, and we have every confidence those problems will be dealt with. The Canadian Chamber will co-operate."

Better prospects for the shipbuilding industry and merchant marine were seen by Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, which last year went out of the shipbuilding business to concentrate on industrial work.

GOOD MEN LOST

"I hope shipbuilding, merchant marine and other matters associated with shipping will receive good consideration from the new government," Mr. Husband said.

"I am pleased to see a party with a good working majority. I would have liked to see a stronger opposition ... There were some good candidates lost in both parties.

"The 15 Liberals in B.C. will give this province a good voice in national affairs, which is fitting as the gateway to western Canada," Mr. Husband said.

Hovercraft Incorrectly Identified

A picture of a hovercraft carried Tuesday by the Times was mistakenly identified as one destined for a Vancouver company planning to institute passenger service between the mainland and Vancouver Island.

The vehicle shown on board ship was en route to a Vancouver base, having been bought by the transport department for Canadian Coast Guard service on the Pacific coast.

It is an SRN 5 vehicle that will be used in search and rescue and evaluation.

Sub-Committee Asked to Explain By-Passing of Hospital Report

Directors of the Regional District Hospital Board this afternoon called for explanations from a sub-committee recommending rejection of the Agnew-Peckham report on hospital services.

The 330-page, $40,000 blueprint for hospital development made major recommendations for a new 250-bed hosptial near Elk Lake and the recreation of a new St. Joseph's Hospital on or near its present site.

The hospital district's sub-committee, subsequently supported by the advisory committee on hospitals, ignored both recommendations and came up with an alternative that startled civic leaders.

Both committees were scheduled to present their formal resolutions to the district board this afternoon.

They have listed as priorities: an immediate start on planning a 650 to 800-bed acute care hospital near Elk Lake; the phasing out of the present St. Joseph's Hospital; transfer of the administrative staff from St. Joseph's to the new hospital; major renovations for Royal Jubilee Hospital and construction of an extended care unit on the outskirts of the city.

The majority voting block on the board, comprised of Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay was expected to call for tabling of the recommendation until a special meeting can be held with the sub-committees explaining to the full board their reasons for rejection of Dr. Harvey Agnew's detailed plans.

Dr. Agnew was particularly specific in recommending that St. Joseph's remain in its present location.

- The general location is excellent for a major hospital.
- A first-class hospital could be developed on the site more economically than a new major hospital could be built elsewhere.
- A new St. Joseph's on the existing site makes top-flight hospital care available for the downtown section of the city and provides easy access from the northern and western rural areas.

The sudden switch of the priorities committee, which surprised St. Joseph's officials as much as it did civic leaders, was not backgrounded, but it is known that medical profession commands great influence on the committee.

Regional board directors this afternoon were careful not to close the door on the priorities recommendation. They just want explanations as to why a local committee should, after a brief study, choose to reject a report 18 months in the making.

Ask The Times

Q. A recent "Time" magazine obituary states Canadian senator Charles G. Power resigned his position during Second World War when prime minister Mackenzie King conscripted 16,000 "Zombies" for overseas duty in 1944. Wasn't it true that conscription was only for home service? G.G.

A. Under an amendment to the conscription act passed in 1942, the government was given authority to send men overseas by orders-in-council when there was sufficient need. On Nov. 24, 1944, the measure was implemented and 16,000 home service "Zombies" were conscripted for overseas duty. On Nov. 27 of that year Mr. Power resigned, reportedly for the reason cited in "Time" magazine.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

'BARON OF BALONEY' STILL VISITS LONELY OFFICE

TRADED SHORTSTOP FOR A TOUGH TURKEY

You Name It, and Joe Engel Has Probably Done It

By RICHARD B. LEGGITT

CHATANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Aging Joe Engel, baseball's "Baron of Baloney," still tells a funny story and he still likes to hear one. And he still goes to his lonely stadium office every morning at 9 a.m.

There isn't much there now — an empty field and vacant seats.

But Joe, the gravel-voiced president and general manager of the defunct Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association, is content with memories of years past.

"Hell," he smiles, "those were the days."

You name it and Joe Engel has probably done it. He ran away and joined a circus at age 13; went on a vaudeville stage with Al Jolson at 14; was a Washington Senators' batboy at 15; and a major league pitcher at 18.

He once led an elephant down Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington; played before a record house at the old Palace theatre in New York; struck out Home Run Baker; owned a horse that raced in the Kentucky Derby; imported bullfrogs from Louisiana so he could hear them sing at sunset and tied coconuts on palm trees to help sell real estate in Miami Beach.

But most important of all, Joe Engel brought showmanship to baseball. His zany antics made him the toast of fans the world over long before the imaginative Bill Veeck went into action.

The son of a Washington tavern operator, Joe was a pitcher for several major league clubs about the time Babe Ruth was getting his start. Later he became a scout for the Senators.

He discovered a skinny shortstop named Joe Cronin playing for the Kansas City Blues and purchased him for $7,500. Cronin was hitting .245 at the time and the deal drew a stiff protest from the Senators' tight-fisted owner, Clark Griffith.

The protest was withdrawn after Cronin became one of the hottest shortstops in either league and married Griffith's daughter.

In 1929, Griffith sent Engel to Chattanooga to take over the operation of the Lookouts. His antics have made baseball history.

He traded a smart-alec shortstop for a 25-pound turkey which he fed to the press corps. "I got the worst of it," Engel recalls. "It was a very tough turkey."

When the Yankees were in town for an exhibition game, he signed a girl pitcher to take the mound against Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. "She couldn't pitch hay to a cow," he says, "But both of 'em let her strike 'em out."

A sportscaster hired by Engel to broadcast Lookout games got into a fistfight with an umpire over a remark that had been made about the ump's eyesight. Engel gave the employee three days off.

"It would have been a week if you had licked him," he said.

He hired the first Chinese ballplayer to play in the Southern Association — a youth named George Hoy from New York's Chinatown. Before Hoy was to start his first game Engel announced, "Hoy can't play in this one. He's upstairs doing my laundry."

The Lookouts folded in 1965. "People just got so interested in the big-leagues they got the idea the minor leagues were second class," he says.

Engel spends several hours each day in his picture-lined office in the stadium that bears his name. The playing field is used for Little League games and the days of fanfare and glory are gone forever.

But Joe Engel's happy. "Hell," he says, "I've lived a hundred and eighty years."

(The Washington Post)

NEW YORK — Joe Frazier is the world heavyweight champion of New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois and Maine. He can now lay claim to Mexico and add it to his limited domain with his conquest, by armed might, of Manuel Ramos, in Madison Square Garden the other night.

Frazier's thick arms never stopped pumping until, at the end of two rounds, Ramos suddenly renounced war. That is what it had been in the Garden ring for six minutes — unlimited, uncivilized war between what might have been a pair of dedicated primates. There were no niceties until the fight ended, when Frazier saluted the ample courage of Ramos with an arm draped about the shoulder of his conquered conquistadore.

A two-round knockout victim ordinarily will disappear from the big-time boxing scene with some haste. But not Ramos. He will be in demand, no longer as a title contender but as a gutsy puncher and unquestioned taker who will clean out much of the debris that is challenging for the title. None of the faint-hearted heavyweight claimants will get past Ramos, and the Garden is already lining up more matches for him.

The paradox was in the Garden Monday night that Ramos quit cold, and nobody in the crowd of 13,000 got sore with him on that point. When he signalled the referee that he did not wish to continue after his second knockdown, he was simply admitting the uselessness of it all. It was scarcely different than a chess master politely resigning in a near-checkmate situation.

●

Ramos did not have to prove his courage any longer. He had demonstrated that at every point in the six-minute fight when he walked into Frazier's fire fearlessly, dished out a straight right of his own that wobbled Frazier in the first round, never took a step in retreat and stood up under punches that hit him flush on the chin.

At the finish, Frazier left a mixed bag of reactions with the ring-siders. His victory was quick and decisive. His walk-in style is exciting. He twice put down a man who had never been on the floor in 26 bouts. He took some on the chin himself, and buckled only once. But the old haunt persists. Who did he lick? This is what they used to ask about Dempsey, too.

Frazier and his handlers couldn't have dictated for themselves a more delectable type of opponent than Ramos. They might as well have written the Mexican a letter requesting him to "come in fighting in a wide open style," the kind of which Frazier dotes, and must, because his own arms are short and he has not yet proved that he knows how to give chase.

There is one more thing about Frazier that could indicate he is not the completely great fighter. He did put Ramos down twice and he did win by a technical knockout in two rounds, but he must have hit the Mexican on the chin 40 times. It suggests that the power of the Frazier punch is cumulative only and that he is not a taker-out with one swat.

There was one man at ringside on whose face the sardonic smile was constant as he watched the action in the Garden ring and then regarded Frazier in the full bloom of victory at the finish. This was Angelo Dundee, and he was pleased. Angelo Dundee is the manager of Jimmy Ellis, who is recognized as the heavyweight champion in all territory where Frazier isn't.

●

"Any time they get up the money and want to meet my man for the title, we're ready," Dundee said. He has known all along that some day Frazier, Madison Square Garden's boy, will have to reckon with Ellis and after Monday's fight Dundee is more flushed by the prospect.

Frazier prevailed over Ramos convincingly but like the Mexican he fights wide open, Dundee pointed out. "Ellis will stab him and cross him and Frazier will be so bewildered he won't know what town he is in," Dundee said. "Frazier has lots of muscle and he's a crowd pleaser, but he hasn't yet learned the lessons in the gym. Ellis likes to fight his kind."

For all the hailstorm of punches that Frazier landed against Ramos his misses were numerous, too, and he was missing against a fighter who knew no retreat. Ellis is the master at getting away when necessary and then interdicting a ring when he chooses to return to the battle, and it is he who could be calling the shots against Frazier.

But the resiliency of boxing is being proved. When Cassius Clay was unfrocked as champion the last exciting figure was removed from the game and it appeared that boxing had been done in as a fan-appeal sport. But now, one year later, Frazier vs. Ellis is taking on the trappings of epic.

Money Could Make Frazier Change Mind

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier celebrated his 21st straight professional victory Tuesday while boxing promoters talked of a possible September title defence against Jerry Quarry.

Frazier, recognized as heavyweight champion in five states, took care of Mexico's Manuel Ramos on Monday night in two rounds of wild, free-swinging action at Madison Square Garden.

Jimmy Ellis, the World Boxing Association champion, is considering a defence in Sweden in late August against Floyd Patterson, a former title-holder.

Both champions fight in the shadow of Cassius Clay, still unbeaten. Clay lost his world crown when he refused to accept induction into the U.S. armed forces. He is considering appealing conviction on that charge.

Frazier said Monday he would not fight for a full year unless he could meet Clay or Ellis.

SECONG THOUGHTS

However, his advisor, Yank Durham, indicated he thinks Frazier would have second thoughts if the money was right.

Harry Markson, boxing director of Madison Square Garden, said he talked to Quarry Tuesday and said he showed "strong interest, an eagerness" to fight Frazier.

Markson said he would like to promote such a fight in September or October.

Quarry was beaten by Ellis in the final round of the WBA tournament to decide its version of the world championship.

The fight drew 10,785 and a gate of $121,302.

Allen Loser In Tax Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Richie Allen, the Philadelphia Phillies' controversial outfielder, lost an $8,500 decision today in the U.S. tax court, which ruled he owed that much in back income taxes.

Allen appealed unsuccessfully an Internal Revenue Service ruling which said he could not deduct portions of his $70,000 bonus which the Phillies paid to his mother between 1961 and 1963.

Duggleby All Alone Until Bobby's Blow

By Associated Press

For 70 years Bill Duggleby had a secluded corner of baseball's cluttered book of records all to himself.

Then Bobby Bonds, 22, an outfielder called up by San Francisco Monday from the Pacific Coast League, matched Duggleby's record by hitting a bases-loaded homer in his first major league game. Bonds connected during the Giants' 9-0 romp over Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night.

Duggleby, a right-handed pitcher, got his grand slam in his 1898 debut with Philadelphia Nationals.

Pittsburgh Pirates Maury Wills ran his hitting streak to 23 games—high in the majors this season — in a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals, the National League leaders.

New York Mets blanked Cincinnati Reds 4-0, Atlanta Braves whipped Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 and Houston Astros beat Chicago Cubs 4-2 in other NL games.

Bonds was leading the PCL with a .367 batting average when the Giants promoted him from their Phoenix farm club. He had hit eight PCL homers, including three grand slams.

Bonds grounded out and was hit by a pitch in his first two times at bat. In the sixth, a pair of bases-loaded walks gave the Giants a 3-0 lead before Bonds sent a John Purdin pitch over the left field fence.

Southpaw Ray Sadecki struck out 10 and limited Los Angeles to a bloop third-inning double by pitcher Claude Osteen until Willie Davis beat out an infield roller in the ninth.

Wills bettered an earlier 22-game hitting streak put together by Cincinnati's Pete Rose with a run-scoring single in the fifth inning, then tripled and scored the deciding run in the eighth on Gene Alley's single.

CARDS CHASE VEALE

Bob Veale blanked the Cardinals until the eighth, when they chased him during a two-run rally. Reliever Luke Walker then struck out Tim McCarver and got Ed Spiezio to rap into an inning-ending double play, stranding the tying run on third.

Tom Seaver checked Cincinnati on five hits and Cleon Jones laced two singles and a homer as the Mets climbed within one victory of the .500 mark for the fourth time this year.

Braves' rookie Ron Reed fired a four-hitter against Philadelphia for his eighth victory in 11 decisions.

Hector Torres' sixth-inning triple touched off a three-run burst that carried the Astros past the Cubs behind Mike Cuellar's five-hitter. The loss was Chicago's third in a row and 10th in the last 11 games.

LOOKING HEALTHY

Frank Robinson and Wally Bunker, ailing earlier in the season, look healthy enough now to patch up the aching Baltimore Orioles.

Robinson, raising his average to .270, cracked a single, double and homer, driving in three runs and scoring two behind Bunker's five-hitter as the Orioles cut up Boston Red Sox 6-0 Tuesday night.

Robinson obviously is back in shape after a bout with the mumps and Bunker appears over the arm trouble that forced his brief return to the minor leagues.

They gave the ailing Orioles their third triumph in 11 games and lifted them back into a tie for third place with Minnesota Twins.

Cleveland Indians held on to second place with a 6-1 victory over Washington Senators, but no one gained ground on runaway Detroit as the Tigers came from behind for a 8-5 decision over New York Yankees.

California Angels downed Oakland Athletics 7-6 and Minnesota Twins and Chicago White Sox were rained out in other games.

MISSED SOME TIME

Robinson, the big man in the Baltimore line-up since he led them to the 1966 World Series championship, missed the end of April and start of May with his illness. He returned about three weeks ago, but was hitting only .192 before finding the range in the last two weeks.

He blasted his third homer of the season off loser Ray Culp, 4-3, in the third inning after Bunker walked. His single drove in another run in the fifth and he doubled and scored in the seventh as the Orioles remained 8½ games behind Detroit.

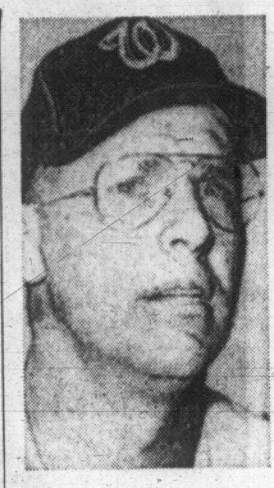

Bunker, who helped pitch the Orioles to their pennant and won a game in the Series, was knocked out last Wednesday in his first start since being recalled from Rochester of the International League. But he was the master against the Red Sox.

He struck out seven, walked one and only one runner got past first base against him—Elston Howard doubled and reached third on an infield out.

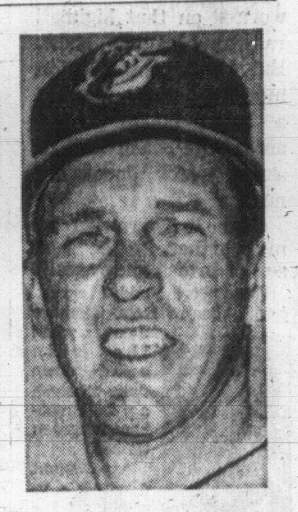

WINS SEVENTH GAME

Del Unser followed with a run-scoring single and Siebert lasted the inning before giving way to Stan Williams in the intense heat in Washington. However, by the sixth, the Indians had built a 4-0 lead and Siebert had his seventh victory against five losses.

Detroit kept its lead over the Indians at 7½ games by erupting for six runs in the seventh inning to overcome a 5-1 Yankee lead in a game delayed three times and 99 minutes by rain.

Howard Gets All-Star Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugging outfielder Frank Howard, of Washington Senators, the American League's home run and runs-batted-in leader, was named to the circuit's all-star team for the first time and Baltimore Orioles' third baseman, Brooks Robinson, made it for the ninth consecutive year, it was announced today.

Others chosen to start against the National League in the July 9 All-Star baseball game in Houston were outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Red Sox, catcher Bill Freehan and outfielder Willie Horton of Detroit Tigers, first baseman Harmon Killebrew and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins and shortstop Jim Fregosi of California Angels.

Robinson, Freehan, Killebrew, Carew and Yastrzemski all started last year when the AL dropped a 2-1 decision, extending the circuit's losing streak in the mid-season classic to five games. The National League leads in the series, 20 to 17 with one tie.

Freehan led the balloting by league players this year, accumulating 248 votes. The Tigers' backstop is batting .260.

Yastrzemski, hitting .321, was next with 246 votes followed by Howard with 238, Horton 193 and Carew, 184.

The closest competition for a starting positon was at first base where Killebrew collected 116 votes and Boog Powell of Baltimore drew 106. Killebrew has 12 homers and 32 runs batted in, but is way down the batting list with a .216 average. Powell has a .255 batting mark with 11 homers and 44 RBI.

Howard had a .298 average with 24 homers and 53 RBI through Monday's games.

Gates Bids for Points; Adanacs Aim at Second

Mike Gates will have two targets when he steps out on the Memorial Arena floor tonight against Victoria Shamrocks.

The smooth and confident sniper with Portland Adanacs will be bidding to boost his scoring lead in the Western Division of the National Lacrosse Association while helping the Adanacs climb into a second-place deadlock with New Westminster.

Gates padded his point total to 46 Monday by collecting two assists as the Adanacs were tripping the front-running Carlings at Vancouver.

That triumph lifted Portland into a third-place tie with the Shamrocks, who have been having some trouble assembling a full team for tonight's tussle.

Coach Dave Unwin had only nine players dressed at a Monday workout because of illness and injuries. However, Dave, trainer Norm Kowalyk and the club doctor have been treating the ailing and only Jim McNeill and Ray Beech are now listed as unlikely starters.

BLISTERED FOOT

Those two regulars should be the only players missing from the squad that handed Vancouver a 9-4 thumping here last week.

McNeill has been confined to bed by flu and Beech blistered a foot stepping on a cover over beach fire. Goalie Barry Forbes expects little trouble from a foot injury received last week.

While Gates is pacing the Western Division scorers, he is in fourth place on the league scoring list. John Davis of Peterborough is setting a blistering pace with 70 points collected in eastern division battles.

HURLS 3-1 WIN

Pearce Too Much For Colony Crew

Brian Pearce was a little too much for Colony Inn Tuesday night at Central Park.

Through his efforts, Bate Construction moved into a fourth-place tie with Red Lion Inn in the Victoria Senior Men's Open Softball League by defeating third-ranked Colony 3-1.

Pearce pitched a five-hitter as well as producing his club's third run in the sixth inning with a homer.

RUINED SHUTOUT

Rick Lee robbed Pearce out of shutout when he walked, stole second, gained third on a wild pitch and crossed the plate on Brian Weston's ground-out.

Bate manager Tom Bourne nailed three hits on three trips to the plate, while Pearce added a single to his home run.

The score was tied 1-1 into the fifth inning when Gary Aiken scored to send the winners ahead.

WAKEHAM, TRAPP IN QUEBEC OPEN

Strong B.C. Challenge

MONTREAL (CP) — A strong contingent of British Columbia's golfers tee off Thursday in the opening round of the 54-hole $12,000 Quebec open golf championship at the Montreal Islesmere Golf Club.

Among the B.C. golfers competing in the three-day tournament are Wayne Vollmer, Bill Wakeham, Lyle Crawford, Doug Robb, Vaughan Trapp of Victoria and Bobby Cox Jr.

Wakeham, from Victoria, led B.C. golfers in the Ontario Open earlier this month, finishing in a tie for fifth place with Al Balding.

Wakeham picked up $675 and also earned 14½ points in the standings.

Cox and Trapp were the next best B.C. competitors in the Ontario Open, earning $160 in finishing far down on the list of money winners.

The Quebec Open winds up Saturday and from there, the tour moves to the Georgetown club near Toronto for the $6,000 Millar championship July 4-6.

Wimbledon Rains Add To Strain on Old Pros

BILLIE JEAN KING
. . . advances

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bad weather is casting a cloud over the first open Wimbledon tennis championship and threatening to put added strain on the veteran pros.

After two days hit heavily by rain, 14 of the 64 scheduled matches in the first round of the men's singles still hadn't started.

Tournament referee Mike Gibson, struggling to sort out a backlog of matches, said: "It's the older pros like Pancho Gonzales and Lew Hoad I feel sorry for.

"Normally we space out the singles matches so that players get a day's rest between rounds. But because the weather has interfered so much with the program, we shall not be able to avoid asking them to play on consecutive days.

"For young players it is all right. It's not such fun for the older men who have been away on the professional circuit so long."

Gonzales, 40, from Los Angeles, is competing in the All-England tournament for the first time since he turned pro 19 years ago. He won his first-round match Tuesday, defeating Ramanathan Krishnan of India 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

AMATEUR IN UPSET

Hoad, 33, an Australian who turned pro after winning at Wimbledon in 1957, defeated another Indian, Jaidip Mukerjea, in three straight sets Monday.

Herb Fitzgibbon of the U.S. claimed Tuesday's honors by knocking out Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2. That was the tournament's first upset of a professional by an amateur.

Only 20 of the scheduled 72 matches Tuesday were completed.

Mrs. Billie Jean King, top-seeded as defending champion from Long Beach, Calif., defeated Peaches Bartkowicz from Hamtramck, Mich., 7-5, 6-4.

MRS. JONES WINS

Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, who lost in the final last year to Mrs. King, defeated Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Calif., 6-0, 4-6, 6-4.

FitzGibbon and Gonzales joined Alex Olmedo, a Peruvian living in Los Angeles, and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis in the second round. All are pros.

That made nine Americans through to the second round.

Only three amateurs are among this year's seeds, enlarged from the usual eight to 16 because of the talent around the courts.

AUSSIES EARN DRAW

Rain Wrecked England's Bid

LONDON (Reuters) — Australia maintained a 1-0 lead in the series when it drew the second cricket test at Lord's here Tuesday.

England's chances of victory glimmered faintly an hour before tea when it faced the task of dismissing Australia in two hours 25 minutes—a feat it achieved in the first innings Monday.

But it was unable to overcome the resistance of the Australian batting and the touring team took its overnight 50 for no wicket to 127 for 4 before England captain Colin Cowdrey called off the chase with 15 minutes remaining.

England never looked like losing at any stage of the match, but its chances of winning the 200th test between the countries and of levelling the series were crushed, not by Australia, but rain which caused a total loss of more than 16½ hours of playing time.

Final scores were England 351 for seven wickets declared; Australia 78 and 127 for four.

GOOD CHANCE

The final day had been expected to provide a fitting climax to this England-Australia test. After its performance Monday, the England attack had a good chance of thwarting Australia's battle for survival.

But rain delayed the resumption until an hour before tea, setting England an improbable task against Bill Lawry's men. The capture of Lawry's wicket after 25 minutes kept the English in the game with a chance but there was no further break-through before the interval.

Although England took the additional wickets of Ian Redpath, Bob Cowper and Doug Walters, it was apparent during the final session that the match would be drawn to leave it still trailing in the series.

Pony Pitchers Serve Up Two No-Hit Wins

Two no-hitters were served on succeeding days by pitchers in the Triangle Pony League.

David Anderson downed 17 batters and let only three walks to pace Maplewood Farms to a 5-0 win over Glen Lake Merchants Tuesday.

On Monday, Don Salmon hurled Columbia Reddy-Mix's 9-0 blanking of Wagon Wheel Roundup.

Phones Were Fanning On Jackson's Pitches

Barry Jackson struck out 16 batters and allowed only six hits to guide Victoria Luckies to a 12-2 victory over B.C. Telephone and a share of first place with Lake Cowichan in the Stuffy McGinnis Senior Men's Softball League Tuesday at Heywood Avenue Park.

Darrell Lorimer provided muscle at the plate, driving in one run in the first and second innings before blasting a two-run double in the fifth.

Tom Walker cracked four hits in four trips for the Phones. But his mates moved him across the plate only once.

PRO HOCKEY TELECASTS GO TO MEXICO, JAPAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Videotapes of last season's National Hockey League games are being shown in Mexico and Japan, the league disclosed Tuesday.

Nine games previously televised by the CBS network are being shown in Mexico. In addition, the telecast of the final Stanley Cup game between Montreal Canadiens and St. Louis Blues has been sold to the Tokyo Broadcasting System for Japan.

"We are confident that in time professional hockey will become truly international in sport," said William M. Jennings of New York, chairman of the NHL's board of governors.

Clair Adopts Tough Tactics

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair, unhappy about the time it took his Ottawa Rough Riders to get into shape last year, has adopted a get-tough attitude at this season's training camp.

Players must run a mile in at least six minutes, and there are fines for being overweight and missing drills.

The fines for missing practices have hit hard at flanker Whit Tucker. Because he has to work each morning for an investment firm, he misses one of two daily workouts at $50 a crack.

"I know Whit has pressures at work and he's been told to be on the job every morning this week," said Clair.

"But he works for us too. If we give Tucker permission to stay away for what is to us a normal working week, then we'll have a bunch of others wanting the same concession."

Players may be excused for special circumstances and fitting into that category is halfback Ron Stewart. Stewart was assisting the chief electoral officer Monday and Tuesday in preparation for the general election.

Several players, including fullback Lovell Coleman and lineman Billy Joe Booth, failed the six-minute mile test and are doing extra work for that. Coleman appears to be having trouble recovering from last year's knee injury.

Lifting of Cricket Quarantine Launched Rush to Grab Stars

By JAMES CONWAY

LONDON (CP) — The most famous cricketer of them all, W. G. Grace, started the ball rolling back in 1878 when he poached William Midwinter from a touring Australian team and persuaded him to stay in England and play for Gloucestershire.

This summer more than 30 Commonwealth and South African stars will turn out for 12 of the 17 major English county clubs.

In between, the promoters of this one-way traffic have had a long fight to overcome insular prejudice against importing non-British players to the cricket fields of Britain.

Around the turn of the century the Marylebone Cricket Club, the sport's governing body, tightened the rules, fearing a flood of players from the Dominions and the Empire might take over domestic teams.

Overseas players had to live in a county for several years before they were able to qualify to play for the local club. Between the wars, Kent turned away no less a personage than the Nawab of Pataudi, an enthusiastic player in his native India.

Many clubs even refused to take players from other parts of Britain.

QUARANTINE DROPPED

Up to a few years ago overseas players still faced a two-year non-playing quarantine. This was shortened to 12 months and finally dropped altogether last year.

Some players had been willing to undergo the one- or two-year layoff, but many stars couldn't afford to stay out of top-class cricket that long. When the restrictions were lifted, the counties scrambled to net the biggest catches.

TOP OF LIST

Top of the list was West Indies captain Gary Sobers, acknowledged by most experts as the best all-round player in the world. Six clubs were after him, but finally Nottinghamshire signed him on for an estimated £5,000.

Starting this season as captain, he is expected to inject some much-needed fire into the flagging team.

Kent snapped up Asif Iqbal, who dazzled British crowds last summer when he played with the Pakistani touring team. Glamorgan signed fellow-countryman Majid Jehangir, a spectacular scorer and crowd entertainer.

FOR NEXT SEASON

Lancashire have Farook Engineer of India, a specialist wicketkeeper, and have Clive Lloyd of Guyana lined up to play for them next season. Warwickshire got Lance Gibbs, a flame-throwing West Indian who is reputed to be the fastest bowler in the business.

Derbyshire, Middlesex, Surrey and Leicestershire have yet to sign any new overseas players, but they have their spies out watching the current Australian touring team for prospective players.

Yorkshire stands aloof from all this. The club still relies only on local talent.

ENGLISH SOCCER SHOWS GALLOPING GATE GAINS

LONDON (Reuters) — Total attendance at English League soccer games last season was up by more than 1,240,000 on the previous season.

Figures issued by the league show that total attendance was 30,107,298, compared with 28,902,596 for the 1966-67 season.

The Football League Cup playoffs also drew 1,671,326, compared with 1,394,553 in the previous year.

New Qualicum Range Suits City Marksman

QUALICUM — Gil Carmichael probably wishes he could do all his shooting on the new range in this community.

The Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association trigger expert had a field day in last weekend's Vancouver Island Shooting League rifle match.

Carmichael collected high gun honors for the day along with victories in the master classification and the "A" scope event.

Qualicum Fish and Game Club members hosted the 200-yard, three-position shoot at their new 300-yard range, the latest and possibly finest club range on the Island. Victoria, Chemainus, Nanaimo, Parksville, Port Alberni, Campbell River and Powell River clubs supplied 89 individual entries.

Henry Jackson of Parksville won the expert division while clubmate Ian Frost took the sharpshooter class. Barry Pilkington of Victoria topped the marksman division.

The "A" team event was won by the Powell River group of Dal Langham, Bill Van Hoven, Jack Gall and Ron Edwards.

Chemainus walked away with the "B" team award on the efforts of Stu Hamilton, Bob Redden, Ivor Levesconte and Bill Marriott.

Frost, Edwards, Gall, Van Hoven and Art Hilsden were winners in various sight classifications.

Red Wings Shift Pre-Season Camp

DETROIT (UPI)—Detroit Red Wings will set up their training camp at Port Huron instead of Detroit in September because of a possible conflict with lacrosse playoffs, and to keep the hockey players' minds on their work.

Manager Sid Abel said the National Hockey League club will train Sept. 13-27.

Sober Truths About Today's "Social Drinking"

What is a "social drinker"? Not too many years ago, when a man had too much to drink — even with friends — they called him a "drunk" but today he is said to be a "little high" or that he "tied one on". And what about the woman who drinks? A few years ago she was called a "hussy" — today we are surprised to meet one who doesn't drink!

Where will all of this modern day thinking lead to? July Reader's Digest features an outspoken article on the foolishness of today's drinking language and how it hides vital facts of our social life.

Discover if your circle of friends uses the tricky, fashionable language "social drinkers" speak today — and how they may be simply fooling themselves and maybe you, too! Don't miss July Reader's Digest — put it on your shopping list now. The same issue also features: "What Makes The Perfect Wife?" and "The Naked Ape."

Bowlers Seek Island Crown

The Wenger Trophy, emblematic of the women's singles lawn bowling championship of Vancouver Island comes up for competition Saturday on the Burnside greens.

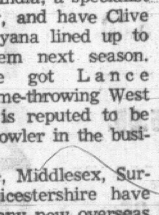

Seven clubs will be represented by 44 individual entries.

Play starts at 9 a.m. with the following draw:

Bumper Crops Grow Near Famine Areas

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — The present food situation in India is a typical case of poverty amidst plenty.

After three years of continuous drought most areas in India have experienced good rainfall and at least six states are having a bumper wheat crop. In Punjab, for instance, there is so much wheat that prices have slumped.

At the same time there are pockets of drought in many states. An estimated 20,000,000 people and 60,000 villages, mostly in northern and eastern India, are in the grip of food shortage and an unprecedented water famine.

The situation is described as a mini-famine in the Indian press. Many newspapers have published articles on the drought in Orissa, Rajasthan, Bihar, Uttar Pradesh and other areas.

The plight of the eastern state of Orissa seems to be the worst. More than 7,000,000 Orissans are in a condition of semi-starvation, says an on-the-spot survey published in the Hindustan Standard, Calcutta's leading daily.

LIVE ON GRASS

Thousands of Orissa villagers are said to be subsisting on grass and roots. The misery of the tribal people of the state is particularly heart-rending.

One report from Bubaneshwar, the capital of Orissa, says more than 100,000 expectant mothers in the tribal districts of the state have no milk or food. The number of children in distress is placed at 300,000.

In Rajasthan state, thousands of villagers, mainly cattle-breeders, have been moving to the neighboring state of Madhya Pradesh in quest of pasture. A report in the Bombay Times of India puts their number at 20,000.

The food situation in many pockets of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh states is described as grim. Assam, the remote north-eastern state from whence little news is usually available because of lack of adequate communications, is having to cope with 40,000 refugees from the parched tribal belts.

FOOD SENT IN

In all these areas of India it is the fourth year of acute food scarcity. As one Orissa legislator put it: "It is a miracle that there have been no mass starvation deaths. But things will really get worse if there is no rain in the next few weeks."

Opposition politicians in Orissa and Assam have alleged that at least a dozen people have died of starvation. But the provincial governments have denied the reports.

"There has not been a single starvation death," said a spokesman of the Orissa government. "And no one will die."

The federal and state governments are rushing food supplies to the famine areas. On a single day 40 "food specials" were moving to Orissa, Rajasthan and Assam from the surplus states. But the railways are handicapped by a shortage of cars.

Will India face a second countrywide famine of the type which hit world headlines last year and the year before? Officials say this is not at all likely.

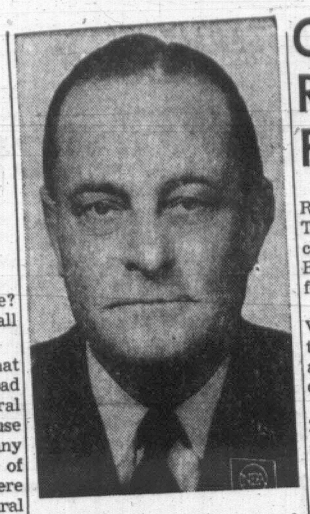

On the contrary, it seems that India as a whole is on the road to a period of agricultural prosperity and plenty. Because of the bumper crop in many areas and the massive use of modern farming methods there is already talk of agricultural self-sufficiency within five years.

But this is poor consolation to the 20,000,000 Indian villagers in the famine pockets. Their future depends on Lord Varuna, the Hindu rain god, who has been frowning on them for four years.

Meanwhile, the intense summer heat has dried up rivers and wells in many parts of northern India. According to one estimate, 500 towns and 30,000 villages are going through a water famine.

The housewives of Faridabad, near New Delhi, staged a procession to protest the water scarcity. Smashing their water pots before the local municipal office, the women shouted slogans asking the government to resign if it could not assure water to the people.

The railways are running "water specials" to quench the thirst of interior villages.

EXTENSION of his term of office has been granted General Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff. The addition of one year to the normal four-year period was confirmed by the U.S. Senate today.

Japan Seeks Ties With Mainland China

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese vice-foreign minister, Shuji Kurauchi, said Monday he made a proposal to China—through a third country — for closer relations between the two countries. Kurauchi said his proposal included holding continuous contact on the ambassadorial level. He was expecting a reply in two weeks.

Constables Remanded For Penalty

PENTICTON (CP) — Two RCMP constables pleaded guilty Tuesday to theft and possession charges laid earlier this month. Both were remanded to Friday for sentence.

Special Constable Kenneth Vernon Shaw, 64, pleaded guilty to five charges of theft over $50 and two charges of possession of stolen goods.

Constable Kenneth John Glass 21, pleaded guilty to five charges of theft over $50.

Both are members of the Penticton RCMP detachment.

They were charged jointly with theft of a safe containing $447 from a Royal Canadian Legion branch here and theft of $147 from a Penticton drive-in restaurant.

Glass was charged separately with theft of a tape recorder from a television store.

Douglas Logs Most Miles In Election

OTTAWA (CP) — T. C. Douglas, 63, out-travelled his younger rivals, say the offices of the three national parties.

NDP headquarters reported Douglas visited 122 of the country's 264 ridings and travelled, by land and air, an estimated 42,000 miles.

Prime Minister Trudeau, 48, visited 109 ridings and flew 32,670 miles, Liberal headquarters reported.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, 54, visited 92 ridings and travelled 29,500 miles.

Both Trudeau and Stanfield used chartered airliners to cover the country. Douglas flew on regular commercial flights.

The NDP leader also took a nine-day bus trip through southern Ontario, covering about two dozen ridings.

Trudeau and Stanfield went to every province. Douglas skipped Prince Edward Island.

The only visit to the north by any of the leaders was a trip to the Yukon and the Northwest Territories by Trudeau after the election was called but before he began his "official" campaign.

U.S. Budget Cut Refused By Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffing all efforts at cutting, the U.S. Senate Tuesday passed a $1,800,000,000 military construction authorization bill. The vote was 78 to 3.

The bill is about $29,000,000 less than was approved earlier by the House of Representatives. Unless the House accepts the lower figure, the bill will go to conference between House and Senate.

Actual funds for items in the bill are subject to later approval in the military construction appropriations bill.

Prisoners Released

ATHENS (Reuters) — The Greek government released 18 political prisoners Tuesday. They had been held since the military regime took power in April, 1967.

Vancouver Hotel Fire Kills Four

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fire which started in a mattress took the lives of four persons Tuesday night in a four-storey hotel in downtown Vancouver.

Several other persons were badly burned and taken to hospital.

Flames shot more than 100 feet into the sky only minutes after an explosion rocked the wood-frame Clarence Hotel at 600 West Pender Street.

A fire department spokesman said the explosion was caused when smoke built up from a fire in a mattress. The fire spread quickly up papered walls to the rest of the building.

Firemen from three Vancouver halls snatched the choking residents — mainly elderly men — as they huddled on window ledges on two sides of the building to escape the searing heat.

Bodies of four men were found. Only one name has been released; Gordon Christianson, 49, of Vancouver. The men had been trapped in their rooms.

"The deaths were probably due to asphyxiation," said Fire Chief Ralph Jacks. "For those who died there was no escape. The building was very cramped and difficult to leave, and it was built entirely of wood."

Chief Jacks said the fire started on the second floor and destroyed the upper levels. A restaurant and several stores on the main floor were damaged by smoke and water.

TWO FACE LONG TERMS

Baptiste Rioters Plead Not Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — A total of 234 demonstrators arrested Monday night at the riot-torn St. Jean Baptiste Day parade were arraigned in municipal court Tuesday.

All but one pleaded not guilty to a variety of charges and their preliminary hearings were set for July 3.

Reggie Chartrand, leader of the separatist Chevaliers de l'independance, was arraigned on seven charges, including assault on three policemen, possession of an offensive weapon in the form of a tear-gas canister, hurling an offensive and volatile substance, participation in a riot and interference in a parade.

HEAVY JAIL TERM

He was released on a $1,000 cash deposit but faces possibly seven years in prison if convicted.

Pierre Bourgault, leader of the Rasemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, Quebec's largest separatist group, was released on $1,500 bail on a charge of instigating the Monday night riot. He faces a possible two-year jail sentence if convicted.

Among those pleading not guilty to a charge of participating in a riot was Andree Caouette, adopted daughter of Real Caouette, leader of the Ralliement des Creditistes. She lives on her own in Montreal.

The one person who pleaded guilty to the charges facing him was sentenced to the time he had already spent in jail.

In addition to the 234 persons arraigned in municipal court, 81 youths under the age of 18 were sent to Social Welfare Court.

Police spent Tuesday trying to determine where cans of tear-gas spray had been purchased by the demonstrators and used on police. It is a chemical called Jet Commando, Tear Gas Spray, manufactured by a firm in Philadelphia, Pa., police said.

The parade, high point of week-long festivities in honor of Quebec's patron saint, was watched by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who was narrowly missed by a bottle thrown by demonstrators.

At least 135 persons, including 44 policemen, required hospital treatment after the riot.

CONTROLS STIFFENED

France Imposes Quotas

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

PARIS (UPI) — The government today clamped down price controls and import quotas and ordered aid for French exporters in a major rescue operation for the shaky French economy.

The measures were announced at the end of a two-and a half hour cabinet meeting at which President Charles de Gaulle presided.

It also was announced de Gaulle will address the nation again Saturday, putting his prestige at stake in hopes of another victory in the crucial second round of France's national assembly elections. The speech will be broadcast twice by radio and television.

The clampdown on imports was ordered as France and the five other European Common Market countries prepared to remove all tariff barriers among them on July 1.

The government said the measures were only temporary and were being made under a provision of the Common Market of Rome when a member country is hit by "sudden difficulties or grave upsets" to its economy.

The government said it has proposed a special meeting of Common Market ministers in Brussels in July to discuss the French crisis.

The object of the French rescue operation is to keep prices low and prevent France being swamped by cheap imports while it tries to ward off inflation at home.

Your first Volvo will get you out from under car payments for life

Your second Volvo will give you a bank account

Your third Volvo will put one of your kids through two years of college. Clothes and all.

No, we're not pulling your leg. We're merely doing simple arithmetics. Like this:

First Volvo. Drive it for six years. That gives you three years to pay for it, three years to make payments to yourself after you've paid for it.

Second Volvo. Take the payments you've made to yourself and pay cash for the second Volvo. Drive it six years and continue making payments to yourself that time. (At, say, $80 a month for six years, you'll end up with a nice round $6,000.)

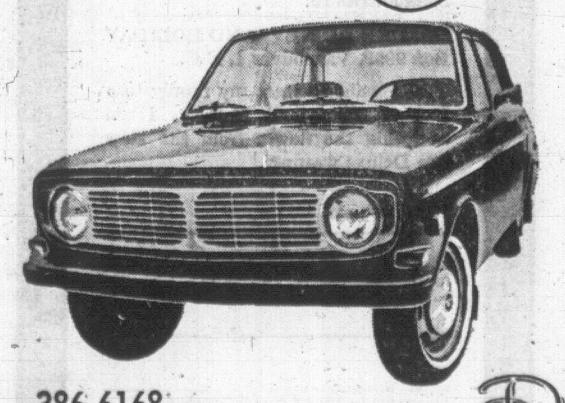

Third Volvo. Take some of that $6,000 and pay cash for your third Volvo, too. (You'll still have about $3,000 left.) Continue making payments to yourself for six more years. You now have nearly $9,000. Enough for college, and your fourth Volvo. And you can take it from here.

Will it actually work? It will if you want it to. Will Volvos actually hold up for six years? In Sweden Volvos hold up an average of 11 years. In Sweden there are no speed limits on the highways; there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

See a nearby Volvo dealer. He can have a Volvo Canadian in your garage tomorrow. It's the only genuine do-it-yourself money-making machine we know of that the government doesn't frown upon.

NIPPONS SHOUT BANZAI

Old Glory Down, Rising Sun Up On Bloody Isle

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's Rising Sun today replaced the Stars and Stripes on the blood-stained Pacific island of Iwo Jima, marking an end of the 23-year U.S. control over the Bonin Islands.

Officials of both countries attended ceremonies at the fortress island where 4,500 Americans and 16,000 Japanese were killed in a Second World War battle.

At ceremonies here, Japanese shouted "Banzai (hurrah) for the Bonins!"

Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Machiko led the nation in celebrating today's reversion of the Bonin Islands—which include Iwo Jima—to Japan. U.S. Ambassador Alexis Johnson and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato also attended ceremonies in Tokyo.

President Johnson agreed to return the island to Japan after meeting with Sato last November. A formal agreement was signed in Tokyo April 5, leaving only the Ryukus Islands, including Okinawa, under U.S. control.

U.S. and Japanese representatives attending the ceremonies at Iwo Jima and Hirojima included Rear Adm. W. R. McKinney, a deputy chief of staff of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, and Tokyo's Socialist Gov. Rokichi Minobe.

The islands, about 720 miles south of Tokyo, henceforth will be governed by the city of Tokyo. They administratively belonged to the city before their capture by U.S. forces in the latter part of the Second World War.

About 2,000 persons attending the ceremonies at Tokyo's Hibiya Hall clapped enthusiastically as a telegram from the Bonin Islands was read: "Celebration completed. The Rising Sun rose high in the sky at 12:15."

Ambassador Johnson, in a brief speech, praised the return of the islands to Japan as a "rare and unusual occurrence."

"In the case of the change we celebrate today," he said, "no armies marched, no shots were fired, no threats were issued and no demonstrations were involved."

Quebec Liquor Staff Strikes on Wages

MONTREAL (CP) — Close to 3,000 Quebec Liquor Board employees went on strike at 12:01 a.m. today in support of wage demands, closing the 220 liquor stores throughout the province.

The union representing the employees, affiliated with the 225,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions, is asking for wage increases ranging from $25.75 to $30.57 a week for the first year and between $5.75 and $6.53 for the second year of a proposed two-year contract.

Current wages for office, store and warehouse workers range from $78.23 to $81.25 a week.

A union spokesman said the strike deadline was set after the union did not receive a reply to Monday night's request for a meeting with QLB officials.

Meanwhile, conciliator Gilles Laporte has called for meetings Thursday and Friday in an attempt to settle the dispute.

. . . GRITS SCORE WIN

ish Columbia to 15 from seven.

On the Prairies, where the Liberals had taken only one of 48 seats in 1965, they won 11 this time. Manitoba went to five from one, Alberta contributed four and Saskatchewan two.

The Conservative monopoly in Saskatchewan was broken as the NDP took six seats and left the Conservatives only five.

The Liberals' one-seat decline in Quebec was regarded as a moral victory by some observers in view of Mr. Trudeau's strong stand against "special status" for the province.

Only one night earlier, the French-Canadian prime minister had stood his ground before Montreal rioters chanting "Quebec for Quebecers" and "Trudeau to the gallows."

But in a victory appearance election night in an Ottawa hotel, Mr. Trudeau said the Quebec vote should not be interpreted as a monolithic vote on the constitutional issue. Several other questions had been involved.

'Vigorous, But Fair Fight'

Mr. Trudeau saluted Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Douglas and said that on the whole, it had been a good election, fought vigorously but fairly.

He promised a forward-looking program with priority on reform of the House rules when Parliament meets, probably in the second week of September.

In Halifax, Mr. Stanfield congratulated Mr. Trudeau in turn and said his party recognized its responsibility to work for genuine national unity.

Mr. Trudeau himself scored a huge personal victory in Montreal Mount Royal, with 37,231 votes to 1,965 for his nearest opponent, Conservative Huguette Marleau.

Mr. Stanfield also won easily with a 7,000-vote margin in Halifax, and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette had an edge of almost 6,000 in Temiscamingue.

Mr. Stanfield insisted that his party, despite defeat, had laid the founation of a strong national party.

But the losses were costly.

Tory Front-Rankers Also Victims

Mr. Stanfiel watched the defeat of men he had said would form the core of Conservative strength in Ottawa.

Duff Roblin, Marcel Faribault, Davie Fulton, Dalton Camp, Wallace McCutcheon, Alvin Hamilton, Michael Starr, Richard Bell and Earl Brownridge went under along with a dozen other prominent men in the party.

Mr. Fulton, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Starr and Mr. Bell all had been cabinet ministers in the previous Conservative government and front-rankers in opposition.

Mr. Starr, former labor minister and the party's House leader in opposition, had won seven times in Oshawa but he was beaten in Oshawa-Whitby by New Democrat Edward Broadbent, a 32-year-old political science teacher.

Mr. Hamilton, former agriculture minister, also lost to an NDP candidate, John Burton, in a close race in Regina East.

Mr. McCutcheon, former trade minister who gave up a Senate seat to run in York-Simcoe, said he now plans to "go back in business to make money."

Mr. Fulton, former justice minister, lost in Kamloops-Cariboo to Liberal Len Marchand, a young Indian and former civil servant.

Mr. Brownridge, former president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., lost to Liberal Hyliard Chappell in Peel South.

Mr. Camp, Conservative national president who began the move to replace former leader John Diefenbaker, was beaten by Liberal Robert Kaplan in Toronto Don Valley.

"Boy, I can hardly wait to hear John Diefenbaker's chuckle," said a Liberal worker in Ottawa headquarters after receiving word of Mr. Camp's defeat.

'Heart Goes Out to Stanfield'

But in Prince Albert, where the old Chief easily won re-election, there was no chuckling.

The Conservative party, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "suffered a calamitous disaster."

"My heart goes out to Mr. Stanfield and the outstanding Conservative candidates who suffered defeat.

"I know what defeat is. I know, too, what victory is. From this moment on, let us in this party do our part to rebuild. Unity is important."

The NDP also suffered sharply. Besides Mr. Douglas' defeat, Quebec leader Robert Cliche was beaten in Montreal Duvernay by Liberal Eric Kierans, and former MP Douglas Fisher lost in York Centre to Liberal MP James Walker.

Terry Grier, former NDP national secretary, was beaten by Liberal Kenneth Robinson in Toronto Lakeshore and Laurier LaPierre, professor and television personality, lost to Liberal MP Raymond Rock in Montreal Lachine.

Both Mr. LaPierre and Mr. Fisher have been considered NDP leadership contenders.

For Social Credit, Tuesday's voting marked the bottom of a steady slide ever since Robert Thompson led a 30-member band into the Commons in 1962.

A. B. Patterson, acting leader of the party's four-man group since Mr. Thompson resigned last year, was defeated in Fraser Valley East.

'The Mother Party Has Faded'

Ironically, Mr. Thompson had no trouble getting elected as a Conservative in his old Red Deer riding.

But while the mother party faded, the Creditiste offspring took on new Quebec strength and Mr. Caouette said he was elated by the gains.

"I believe the people understood the Creditiste message," said the 50-year-old Rouyn car dealer.

Manpower Minister Marchand, re-elected in Langelier, called the Creditiste gains a vote of protest by the discontented and unemployed.

He also said Liberal losses in Newfoundland were a reaction against Liberal Premier Smallwood, and "we must pay the consequences."

Mr. Smallwood said Newfoundlanders exercised their sovereign right to be wrong.

"It is a very sad and sorrowful thing that the people of Newfoundland have done today."

The new Parliament will include a Negro for the first time —Conservative Lincoln Alexander, 46, elected in Hamilton West.

It will have only one woman member, Grace MacInnis, 62, NDP member for Vancouver-Kingsway. Liberal MP Margaret Rideout was beaten in Moncton and Conservative MP Jean Wadds lost in Grenville-Carleton. Another 33 women, all newcomers, also lost.

And the Commons will be without Ralph Cowan, the scrappy Liberal outcast who ran fourth in Toronto High Park.

POSTMORTEM talks with reporters was the way in which Conservative leader Robert Stanfield relaxed following his party's defeat in yesterday's election. An elastic band holding up one of his socks, Stanfield lounges on a patio chair.

Accident Survivor Faces Grim Charge

The only survivor of a car crash that killed two other men early May 11 was committed Tuesday to stand trail in a higher court on a charge of armed robbery.

Fifteen crown witnesses testified at the preliminary hearing of 21-year-old Peter Simpson of Toronto.

City police inspector Norman Bath said he went to St. Joseph's Hospital emergency ward May 11 and saw Simpson in an operating room.

He said he removed a $10 bill and a paper with a diagram from Simpson's pocket. George Flint, manager of Ernie's Fine Foods, 1616 Hillside, robbed late May 10, testified the diagram was similar to the inside of his store.

Simpson had been brought to the hospital from the scene of an accident at a turn on the Old Highway near Jedburgh Road.

Esquimalt police corporal Peter Doherty said he had chased the car, a 1962 Chevrolet Impala convertible, from Craigflower Road.

He testified the car, containing three occupants, had increased its speed to over 80 miles an hour when it crashed into a tree.

Cpl. Doherty said when he arrived at the demolished car the accused was behind the wheel and a second person, known to him as Ricky Rickward, appeared dead.

Saanich constable David Smith said he climbed into the wrecked car shortly after the crash. He identified two photographs taken in the hospital morgue as the passengers in the car.

Const. Smith testified he removed a gun, a number of cartridges and shells, and money later found to be $150, from the man sitting in the centre of the front seat.

A second gun was found on the highway by a passing motorist.

An employee at the robbed store, Raymond Moorhouse, testified three men entered the store and robbed the cash register.

CANADA: an appreciation
If you're tired of listening to people shoot down Canada, don't miss your Weekend Magazine. This Saturday, the editors pay tribute to the parts of the country they know best — the Far North, British Columbia, the Prairies, Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic Provinces. Let them remind you that you've always thought Canada was great.
The Case of the Missing Window-boxes
Canada's one hundred and first birthday prompted Greg Clark to write about WASPS and "ethnics". In his neighbourhood, relations between them weren't too bad — until Greg's red, white and blue window-boxes disappeared. Don't miss The Strangers In The Night in Weekend Magazine.

Recipe of the Week

Strawberry Ice

1 cup water
½ cup sugar
2 cups fresh strawberries, pureed through sieve
2 tbsp. lemon juice

In a 1½-2 quart saucepan, bring the water and sugar to a boil over moderate heat, stirring only until sugar dissolves. From the moment the sugar and water begin to boil, let the mixture cook for exactly 5 minutes. Immediately remove the pan from the heat and let the syrup cool to room temp.

Stir in the strawberries and the lemon juice. Pour the mixture into an ice-cube tray from which the dividers have been removed.

Freeze the mixture for 3 to 4 hours, stirring every 30 minutes and scraping into it the ice particles that form around the edges of the tray. The finished "Ice" should have a fine, snowy texture. Makes 1½ pts.

BELLES FOR THE 'BIRTHDAY BOY'

While some may avoid celebrating birthdays once they reach a certain age, Aubrey H. C. Jones welcomes them with a will. Small wonder when he receives this kind of attention. He's seen celebrating his 75th birthday at a party in the Century Inn this week. Seated with him, left to right, are Mrs. H. O. Middleton (a niece) and Mrs. M. Hulke, his former private secretary. At the back, left to right, are his cousin, Mrs. M. Granlan; his sister, Miss Evelyn Jones; his daughter, Mrs. F. Biehn, and his cousin, Mrs. D. Granlin. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Violin Evening, Suzuki Style

A fascinating evening for those interested in violin work was recently staged at St. John's Church Hall when Miss Frona Colquhoun and her young violin students, trained in the Suzuki tradition, presented a Suzuki Party.

In true Suzuki tradition, where music is a part of family living, the performers ranged in age from three to teen-agers, with several parents assisting in the group work. The program featured a demonstration of the first steps of the Suzuki system, followed by solo and group performances.

A group formed by Joy Crawford, Adrienne Rossiter, Lynne Munro, Greg Anstey and Mark Reed gave a well-balanced performance of the chorus from "Judas Maccabaus" and a Bach musette.

The Suzuki group performance began at the most advanced level with three Bach minuets being played by nine young boys. In each successive piece, children were included at their own level, with the grand finale presenting all the violinists performing variations of "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star."

The evening was marked with enjoyment, both by the young players and their audience.

Other students taking part were Hilary Wallis, Nicholas Hinskens, Michelle MacConachie, Chrstoph Kind, Jack MacDermot, Colin Mack, Paul MacDermot, Elspeth Thomson, John Kirk, Laura Lee, David Dando, John Munro, Danny Cushing, Paul Halldorsen, Gordon Fairbairn, Rod Logan, Stanley Davis, Terry Prior, Nickie Bennett, Jean Trumble, Paul Venturin, James Muraro, Yvonne Muraro, Ailsa Ross, Derek Colwell, Maria Zoneveld, Maria Venturin and Juliette Kirk.

Parents assisting on the violin were F. Cushing and J. Hinsken. Accompanists were Mrs. G. W. Wallis and Miss Colquhoun.

IN BAY STREET ARMORY

Brownies Stage Mammoth Revel

Approximately 700 Brownies turned out to greet Mrs. C. E. Stewart, provincial commissioner for Guides, when she was the guest of honor at a mass Brownie revel, held in the Bay Street Armory Saturday afternoon. It was Mrs. Stewart's first official visit to Victoria in her new role as provincial commissioner.

The revel was held in the Armory. Because of damp weather it had been changed from its original location in Beacon Hill Park.

The three Victoria divisions of Camosun Craigflower, Lady Douglas and Gonzales combined forces for the gathering, which was arranged to celebrate the year's achievements.

Brownies chosen from each division escorted Mrs. Stewart and area commissioner Mrs. H. P. McKeever, who introduced Mrs. W. D. Rowe of Saanich South, Mrs. W. J. Nelson of Saanich North, Brownie trainer Mrs. R. R. Peel and former area commissioner Mrs. W. S. Emmerton.

Judy Hunter of the Victory Crew Sea Rangers played guitar accompaniment for a program of camp songs.

The 50th Brownie Pack, led by Mrs. J. Hillyer, won the shellcraft contest. The pack's exhibit will be displayed in an Eaton's shop window this week. In second place was the 48th Brownie Pack and placing third was the 21st Brownie Paack.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Save Those Pennies On Imported Cushions

By PENNY SAVER

Have you ever felt the urge to be your own importer? I often wonder as I wander down the aisles of a store just how much of the price I see was eaten up along the way by a multiplication of shipping and distributing costs. People like Mathilda who have shopped in other lands are sometimes shocked by the Victoria price of an object they bought so cheaply in its country of origin.

Why couldn't several Victoria shoppers all wanting the same item band together and order directly from the factory? The biggest problem, of course, is getting enough people to make the purchase worthwhile since buying bulk gives you special prices. Another problem is how one would go about it. I wouldn't know how to place such an order or even where!

Now there is a company that wants to make every interested Victoria consumer her own importer. They hope to buy quality goods from countries where production costs are low and pass the savings on to their customers. How will they do it? By a membership system.

When you place your first order with them you pay $4 for a year's membership in their group. The price you pay for the goods is the wholesale price — plus shipping costs, of course. The membership fee pays the company for placing your order, arranging for shipping and so forth. Obviously the success of this system depends on the number of people interested, but the company is confident that their services will be appreciated by many Victorians.

Company Has Agents Around World

There is no obligation to buy in this scheme. One purchase and the membership card puts you on the mailing list. Each month the company will mail a list of the items they are offering. If any appeal to you, fine; if not, that is fine too. What is more, the company is open to suggestions of items you would like to see offered. Their agents around the world can look them up for you, and, if enough people want the same item, they can get the lower bulk prices. Should you want a special, out-of-the ordinary item this could be arranged, but the representative I talked to emphasized that one would have to be willing to relinquish the low, low prices. But if that is the only way to get something, who cares, say I. Should your order have to be cancelled for any reason, your money will be refunded.

But what do they sell? This company is very new and still on a low budget. They realized they could offer only a limited selection at first. Since they felt that really attractive cushions were hard to find in Victoria, they made this their first product. Ordered straight from a British factory these cushions are all under $5 — filled. The $4 membership almost pays for itself in the savings on the first purchase.

The cushions come in materials from Italian brocade, to gay plaids and prints, embossed velveteens and brilliant quilts. The largest is 20 inches square and the smallest measurement 12 inches. The covers alone range from $1.98 to $3.98. Foam filling is $1 extra regardless of size and is in a separate ticking so it can be removed and the cover washed or dry-cleaned.

Negotations are already under way for additional import items such as quilted bedspreads or patent leather handbags but making these available will take the company a bit of time.

Are you interested in joining this import group? Call 382-3131 for further information.

Rain and Hail Soak Tent At Deb Party of the Year

DETROIT (AP) — Josephine Clay Ford met society Friday night in spectacular fashion as a heavy rain soaked a lavish floral display and hail pelted the tents erected for the occasion.

Miss Ford is a great-granddaughter of auto pioneer Henry Ford and a niece of Henry Ford II. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buhl Ford II presented their youngest daughter at the Little Club in suburban Grosse Pointe Farms.

The debutante's father heads Ford and Earl Design Associates, an industrial design firm. Her mother, Eleanor Clay Ford, is the only daughter of the late Edsel B. Ford and a sister of Henry Ford II, board chairman of the Ford Motor Co. Her other brothers are William Clay Ford and Benson Ford.

The 19-year-old debutante was escorted by Steve Bowers. Miss Ford, who has just completed her freshman year at Briarcliff College, wore a white silk net gown with crystal teardrop embroidery. The sleeveless dress had a high oval neckline and full skirt.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS:

ON THE SPOT

Recently I've noticed a number of little brown spots on my hands. Can you recommend a preparation that might help eliminate them?—E.T.

Those unwelcome brown spots are really annoying. There are many commercial bleach preparations available which claim to lighten them. However, many readers have good results with castor oil applied nightly. In any case, a dermatologist can expediently and painlessly remove them in his office if they seem to resist "at-home" treatment.

IN A JAM

I'm hoping you will be able to recommend an exercise to correct my special problem. Whenever I wear a long-line bra, flesh seems to pop out above the bra just under my arms. Even though I have my bras professionally fitted, the spill-over persists. — L.J.

Try one of my favorite exercises — it should simultaneously tighten and tone your problem area in short order. Stand in front of a doorway, rise up on your toes and "dust" the top of the jamb, first with your left hand way over toward the right; now come down on your heels (your hand comes down, too), then back up on your toes. Now, with the right hand reaching far over to the left of the jamb, repeat the movements. Do this at least five times on each side.

SLICK LIPS

My lips are always dry, no matter what type of lipstick I use. I understand that moisturizer applied to the lip area could be helpful. I've tried it a few times but then the lipstick doesn't go on properly. Have you any suggestions?—C.R.

Moisturizer or any emollient cream is effective for softening dry or chapped lips. Try applying your cream before you start your makeup so it has a chance to work. Then blot off the cream just before applying lipstick.

If you're faithful about using moisturizer on your lips overnight, you'll find the softening effects will be cumulative and soon you won't need it as often during the day under lipstick.

GLOVELY ADVICE

I'm confused about a point of etiquette and hope you can provide an answer. I have always understood that one should wear gloves (not hold them) when entering or leaving a party. But if it's impolite to shake hands with gloves on, how can you either greet your hosts or say your farewell graciously?—P.D.

You have spotted one of etiquette's inconsistencies. It's definitely more gracious to shake hands sans gloves. But, inasmuch as the modern approach to manners is "doing what comes naturally," don't fuss about pulling off gloves when you're about to shake hands.

But one thing is really unseemly: Gloves being worn during any social event (church ceremonies excepted). Unless one is making a debut and the long white gloves are part of the formalities, the sight of gloved hands trying to juggle a glass of punch or hold a canape is downright silly!

DEAR ABBY . . .

Mother's Nose In The Wrong Place

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am in the service and have a little problem. The night before I left for overseas I surprised my girl with a diamond engagement ring.

She acted like she was thrilled to pieces, and of course I was happy, too. Her mother took me aside and asked me if I could get a refund on the ring — well, I couldn't.

Now I get a letter from my girl telling me that she and her mother "traded" in the engagement ring on another one which is bigger and much "nicer." She said her mother paid the difference and I can pay her back when I get home, but for me not to worry about it.

I am not exactly "worried" about it, but I don't think it was a very nice thing for them to do. If you were in my place what would you do?

G.I.

DEAR G. I.: Nothing for the moment. But when you get stateside, size up the situation and make sure your girl and her mother don't have a WEDDING ring waiting for you that's big enough for you to jump through.

DEAR ABBY: I know you aren't a lawyer, so I don't expect you to tell me what the law would rule in a case like this. All I want is a common sense opinion.

We have a friend (a widow) who started taking dancing lessons last September at a well-known studio. Since September she spent $18,000 on dancing lessons! (Yes, I said EIGHTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.)

This woman is not poor, Abby. She has had a lot of fun and met a lot of people, and she probably got more pleasure in the last six months from those dancing lessons than she got from that deadhead she was married to for 30 years. Yet, she is crying that she was had and she took them to court.

I say, nobody twisted her arm to take those lessons, and if she wants to spend her money that way she shouldn't go crying to anybody. My husband says she is out of her mind, and people who are batty have to be protected by law. What is your opinion?

ARGUING WITH HARRY

DEAR ARGUING: I'm with Harry.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and my scout troop recently made a visit to a nursing home to cheer up the old folks there. We made some colorful flowers beforehand and sang some hymns to entertain them.

Abby, those elderly people are so hungry for company, you wouldn't believe it. The first lady I handed a flower to, gave it back to me, saying she didn't have any money to buy it. Then I told her it was free and her face lit up and she took such a long time trying to decide which color to take, I got the feeling that she was trying to detain me just to have somebody to talk to for a little while.

I can't tell you how much our visit was appreciated. When we drove off, we could see them looking from their windows and holding onto their paper flowers.

Please say something in your column asking people to go to visit their local nursing homes, whether they have somebody there or not. They are all somebody's grandmothers and grandfathers and they are human, too.

Kisses Expensive

LEIGHTON BUZZARD, England (AP)—Raymond Harrison, 19, was fined $48 for dangerous driving because he kissed his girl friend while driving along a one-mile stretch of country road. His 15-year-old companion was fined $24 for "aiding and abetting."

MARRIED 60 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor, 655 West Burnside Road, will celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary on Saturday. They were wed in Dauphin, Man., on June 29, 1908, in St. Paul's Anglican Church. They had nine children. The eldest, Mabel, died this year. Their other children are: Frank, Calgary; Mrs. Charles (Jean) Nelson, King City, Calif.; Mrs. Frank (Violet) Roder, Milpitas, Calif.; Ted, St. Catharines, Ont.; Ken, Vancouver; Mrs. Cliff (Edythe) Barrick, Victoria; Mrs. Neil (Mabel) Spencer, Vancouver, and Garth, Bermuda. They and 17 grandchildren will all be present for a family dinner, to be held Monday. On Saturday the honor couple will be "at home" from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Mr. Taylor was employed by the Canadian National Railway for 43 years in The Pas, Man.; Gilbert Plains, Man.; Kelvington, Sask., and in Dauphin. The couple came to Victoria on his retirement in 1948.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You can tick-tock lots of inches away with the following exercise. This motion for a beautiful figure slims the waist, flattens the abdomen and rolls inches from the hips.

Lowman

This is not one of the easier exercises, and you may not be able to do it correctly at first, but soon your skill will improve as your muscles do.

Lie on the floor on your back, arms resting on the floor, extending out from your shoulders, palms toward the floor. Your legs should be kept straight and your feet together through this exercise.

Imagine that you are a clock and your legs are the pendulum. Swing legs to the left as far as you can, keeping the heels close to the floor. Now swing the legs across the front of the body (heels still close to the floor) and continue on, swinging the legs as far to the right as you can. Continue with long smooth swings like a pendulum.

If you cannot do this right off, then drag your legs from side to side at first.

If you would like to have my free "Combination Exercises," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Eunice Farmer:

With summer vacation just about on us, I am wondering about sewing instructions for my daughter. She is 10 years old and is always cutting scraps and making doll clothes. Do you think she is too young for regular sewing classes?—Mrs. L.M.

Dear Mrs. L.M.:

It is very difficult to make a definite statement about the correct age for a child to begin sewing lessons. Ordinarily, I have found in our classes that 10 years old is a little young. If any child expresses an interest, however, they should certainly be encouraged.

Let your child go shopping with you and buy exactly what she wants, not what you want for her. She may make a mistake in her choice, but this is the way they learn. It is certainly going to be more fun for her to try to make something when she dearly loves the fabric than it would be if you make her choice and are guided by your own idea of what is practical.

Strangely enough, in this affluent society children are more enthusiastic about home sewing than perhaps any other period in our history, so let's encourage them!

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I woud like to use a dress pattern with set-in sleeves as a sleeveless pattern. Can you tell me how to do this?—Mrs. J.E.O.

Dear Mrs. J.E.O.:

Please save this information because it seems that I am getting many requests for it. Cut the underarm higher beginning with ⅝-inch and gradually taper it to nothing at the front and back armhole notches. Usually a sleeveless dress or blouse is also cut a little closer to the body, to achieve this, make your underarm seams a little deeper. You may cut the facing for the armholes the same as your new bodice shape before it has been assembled.

Tangy, tasty, rather good chips, actually!

Piccadilly Potato Chips are new from Nalley's. They have an exciting taste all of their own. An Olde English taste of salt and vinegar. Tangy. Crisp.

Try them. You'll find this new taste of London perfect for parties. Snacking. Or just when you want something refreshingly different.

Piccadilly Potato Chips. Another smashing good product from Nalley's.

BURNHAM

Formal Complaints Filed Against Local Candidates

Independent candidate George Burnham Tuesday filed formal complaints of election irregularities against five area candidates.

Victoria returning officer David Wilson, who received the complaints, said today they were being studied and would be sent on to the deputy chief returning officer in Ottawa.

Mr. Wilson was to study the Elections Act today to see what other steps should be taken in dealing with the complaints.

The 77-year-old candidate, who polled 501 votes, said he would keep fighting for the law to be carried out.

Mr. Burnham charged that four area candidates — David Anderson, George Chatterton, Dr. Harvey Richardson and Don Johannessen — took part in Sunday radio broadcasts in contravention to the Elections Act.

Mr. Wilson said Saturday he had reiterated that a justice department ruling that the 48-hour Elections Act ban on political broadcasting took precedence over a Canadian Radio and Television Commission ruling requiring a 24-hour blackout.

Mr. Burnham also charged that voting cards distributed by candidates Eric Charman and George Chatterton were a violation of the Elections Act because they carried the words, "Take this to the polling station with you."

A number of the cards turned up at polling stations and were taken from voters by polling officials.

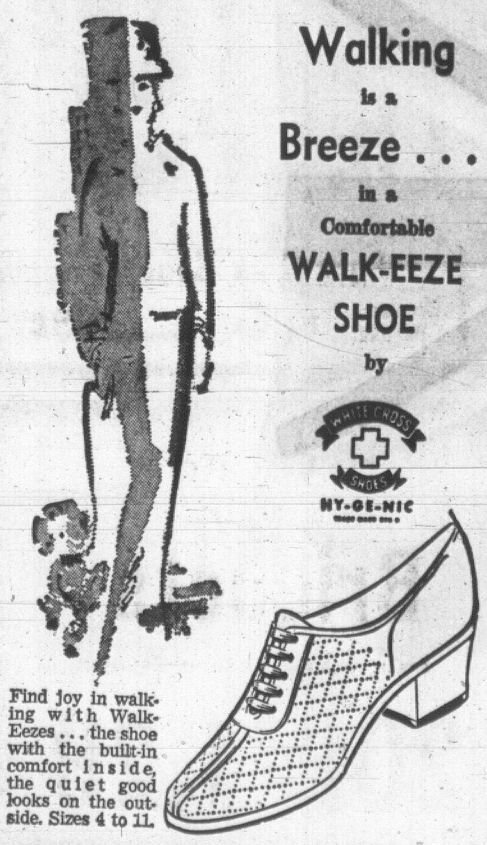

"I intend to follow through and see that action is taken against these people who have acted in defiance of the act and the returning officer," said Mr. Burnham.

Any person found guilty of violating the elections act can be disqualified for five years from sitting in the House of Commons, voting in a federal election or holding any crown appointment.

No estimate is known of how many candidates across the country took part in Sunday broadcasts but it is believed to be a large number.

LABOR MINISTER in the former Diefenbaker government and a candidate for the Conservative leadership, Michael Starr, 57, was defeated in a close battle in the Ontario riding of Oshawa-Whitby by Edward Broadbent of the NDP.

VETERAN member of the B.C. legislature, Randolph Harding was successful in his first bid in federal politics. He held on to the NDP seat of Kootenay West previously held by Bert Herridge, who retired this year.

FORMER Conservative defence minister Pierre Sevigny, whose name was linked with playgirl Gerda Munsinger, ran as an independent Tuesday and lost in the Montreal riding of St. Henri to Liberal incumbent Gerard Loiselle.

Kamloops Turning Point In Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal strategists say they believe the turning point in the federal election campaign occurred at Kamloops on Monday, June 3, about 5 p.m.

Prime Minister Trudeau held an outdoor rally at a sports field at that hour. At least 3,500 turned up. Some put the figure at 5,000, in a city of about 40,000.

A rally of the same proportions in Montreal or Toronto would have drawn 125,000. The Liberals later were happy to get about 40,000 at noon in downtown Toronto.

The Kamloops-Cariboo seat was held in the last Parliament by Davie Fulton, 52, former Conservative justice minister.

Mr. Fulton had a plurality of 4,559 votes in the 1965 election. Liberal Len Marchand turned this into a plurality of 3,211 votes for his party Tuesday, with a few polls still unreported.

Mr. Trudeau had come the previous day from Newfoundland, where his reception was cool, as the election results proved.

Kamloops gave him a real lift.

"After Kamloops, he really burned," a Liberal organizer said.

FIRST NEGRO IN HOUSE

HAMILTON (CP) — Canada's first Negro MP was elected Tuesday night when Lincoln Alexander, a personable 44-year-old lawyer, captured the riding of Hamilton West for the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Alexander took the riding, previously held by the Liberals, by edging out Liberal candidate Thomas Beckett by 268 votes.

His victory was in doubt until a returning officer double-checked the results early today.

Mr. Alexander took the lead from the start and never fell behind although the race was a cliff-hanger.

He waited until the last poll was in before he made his victory speech to a nearly all-white audience.

"I feel very proud this evening and I am so deeply grateful with this trust," he said.

In his first attempt at politics Mr. Alexander lost by less than 2,000 votes to Liberal MP Joseph MaCaluso in the last federal election.

Mr. MaCaluso, who in 1963 defeated a long-time Conservative MP and cabinet minster, Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, declined to stand for re-election.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Alexander graduated from McMaster University and is a Queen's Counsel. Married, he is the father of an 18-year-old son, Keith.

REAL CAOUETTE

'People Understood Creditiste Message'

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Jubilant Real Caouette, leader of le Ralliement des Creditistes, had promised that he would return to Ottawa with a larger number of elected party members than when he left. He kept his word.

"I said at the dissolution of Parliament that we would return in greater numbers and that's the case," he said at his home after watching the Creditiste party win 15 seats in Tuesday's general election, six more than in the 1965 election.

"I am terribly happy. I am elated, but I'm not surprised at all. We are the only ones who made gains in the province."

Referring to his party's Social Credit philosophy, he said: "I told you that the Social Credit is not dead in Quebec. I believe that the people understood the Creditiste message."

Creditistes made their largest gains in the Eastern Townships region and rural counties in the Quebec City area.

Mr. Caouette, 50, a car dealer, was re-elected in the new riding of Temiscamingue in northwestern Quebec.

He led 26 MPs into Parliament in the 1962 general election and this following dropped to 20 after the 1963 federal election.

The party faded in the 1965 general election, electing only nine members to Ottawa.

However, Mr. Caouette was more than confident at dissolution and he was bubbling with joy Tuesday night as he watched the election returns.

A large group of visitors gathered at his home to help him celebrate. He said:

"I believe that we can make other gains and I am elated to see the response Quebec voters are giving us."

IT'S A DISASTER

Former Conservative leader Former Conservative lleader John Diefenbaker said Tuesday night "the Conservative party suffered a calamitous disaster" in losing the federal election.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who won personal re-election, said his heart went out to Conservative leader Robert Stanfield and to "the many candidates of outstanding merit who suffered defeat.

"From this moment on let us, in this party, do our part to rebuild."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the unity of the country is in question because of the Liberal victory.

He thanked the constituents of Prince Albert for re-electing him in "the last campaign in which I shall take part."

1962 in Regina, and came here for a safe byelection victory later the same year.

This time there may be no "safe" seats before the Liberal tide, seats where Mr. Douglas can win if one of his MPs obligingly steps down.

In new ridings created by redistribution, and with Saskatchewan gains forged through a split in Liberal and Conservative votes, the NDP Tuesday offset losses in Ontario and British Columbia. It finshed with 23 seats. It had 22 at dissolution of Parliament.

But Mr. Douglas knew almost from the start that he was in trouble in Burnaby-Seymour, a riding that hugs the eastern boundary of Vancouver and stretches into well-to-do North Vancouver suburbs that helped Mr. Perrault win past elections as leader of the provincial Liberals.

Two other candidates trailed as Mr. Douglas and Mr. Perrault traded the lead.

RECEIVE REPORTS

In his tiny permanent headquarters on East Hastings St., Mr. Douglas received reports in company with a few party aides. On the same block, and across the street, Mr. Perrault stood, beaming, among 200 boisterous supporters, who cheered every favorable poll.

Two hours after the close of polls, Mr. Douglas emerged with his arm on the shoulder of his eight-year-old grandson, Tad Sutherland.

They walked together the two blocks to his election headquarters in the legion hall.

Supporters, on the strength of partial returns showing him in the lead, hoisted him to their shoulders. But as he shook hands he tried to restrain the enthusiasm.

And he confided quietly to his associates that he thought six advance polls, just then being counted, would "tip it against us."

"But whether, after this, I'm the leader, or a member, or a janitor in somebody's committee rooms, I'm going to be fighting for this movement and so are you."

GETS FINAL LATER

At midnight, uncertain whether he would get a final result or not before morning, Mr. Douglas left the hall. He was sitting in a hotel room with his family when the last poll came in.

The final result:

Perrault, 17,880; Douglas, 17,787; Conservative Charles MacLean, 3,193; Social Credit candidate Ron Price, 704.

Mr. Douglas had won his 1965 contest in the old riding of Burnaby-Coquitlam by 10,463 votes.

Mr. Perrault, 42, a public relations consultant before he took over provincial leadership of the Liberals in 1959, had employed the same kind of concentrated door-to-door canvass common to NDP campaigns. He also received a timely shopping-centre appearance by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Twice during the night, Mr. Douglas offered barbed congratulations to the prime minister. He said:

"We will give him every chance to grapple with the problems he refused to discuss during the campaign."

And ater:

"You've got your majority, now the people of Canada will hold you responsible to do something with it."

. . . KO

. . . DEFEAT

Mr. Stanfield said he has confidence in the future of his party. "It wasn't as if we went down and someone else supplanted us in terms of the opposition."

A political veteran, he was Nova Scotia premier for 11 years after bringing his party from nowhere to power in 1956.

He never gave a hint before the election that he felt defeat was coming, and he campaigned hard until election day.

After voting, he and his family—wife Mary, son Max, 21, and daughters Sarah, 26, and Mimi, 15—rested from the rigors of the campaign trail. All had appeared often with him. Another daughter, Judy, 17, had to study for exams.

WELL, WE TRIED HARD and gave them a good fight and there's always another round coming up says Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate Don Johannessen, left, to his campaign manager Don Berringer. Both are Saanich teachers. Mr. Johannessen, in his first political race, boosted the NDP total vote by about 1,700 over 1965, although he placed third behind Conservative George Chatterton. The NDP candidate says he will make himself available for a provincial election, if his party approves.

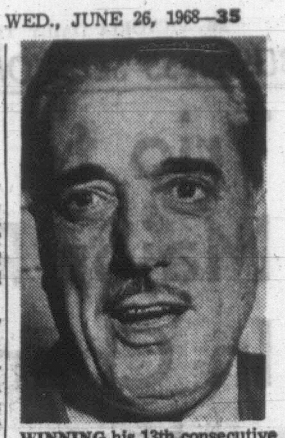

GOLD RUNNING CULPRIT WAITS FOR SENTENCE

SEATTLE (AP) — G. J. Van Leeuwen, 24, Vancouver, B.C., was convicted by a Federal court jury Tuesday of smuggling $23,000 worth of gold coins into the United States last March 28.

Sentencing was set for July 12.

Van Leeuwen, who immigrated to Canada from England three years ago, was arrested at the Blaine border station April 12 as he was entering the United States again.

U.S. customs agents said he came into the country with the gold on March 28 and mailed the coins in two packages from the post office at Mount Vernon, Wash.

WINNING his 13th consecutive election win in federal and provincial politics was Harold Winch, former B.C. leader of the CCF. He won handily in Vancouver East, where he was first elected in 1953 after leaving the legislature following 20 years of service there.

JOHANNESSEN TO TRY PROVINCIALLY

'The Fight's Only Begun'

NDP candidate Don Johannessen placed third in the Esquimalt-Saanich election race Tuesday, but he says he has only begun to fight.

In a post-election interview, the Saanich teacher said he intends to seek his party's backing as a candidate in the next provincial election. He thinks Premier Bennett will call it in September.

He said his campaign had resulted in a 1,700-vote gain for the NDP since the election of 1965, even though the party placed second in that contest.

Mr. Johannessen said he visited the winning candidate, Liberal David Anderson to congratulate him and now he wanted to thank "all my helpers, especially my campaign manager Don Berringer.

"I think we've built an organization for future elections."

He said one part of his campaign was victorious, the overthrow of the Saanich sign bylaw which would have kept party signs from Saanich lawns.

"But it is hard to beat that Trudeaumania. . . ."

$200 Deposits Lost By Burnham, Overton

Two of the eight candidates in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich lost their $200 deposits Tuesday night — Social Crediter Roy Overton and independent candidate George Burnham.

Any candidate who fails to collect half as many votes as the winner must forfeit his deposit. The ruling, by the Elections Act, is meant to restrain persons who might become cnadidates for self-publicity or other reasons when they have little chance of winning.

Esquimalt-Saanich victor David Anderson once engaged in a castles-in-the-air chat with his cousin Alastair Gillespie, whose family was well known here. Turned out both thought they would like to run for parliament one day. Turned out Tuesday that both made the dream come true. Mr. Gillespie won his seat in Ontario's Etobicoke riding.

Even thouth they were beyond normal broadcast range the officer and men were given full election results over the super-range naval communications system.

Capt. Dennis Ryan at HMC Dockyard said reception wasn't too good until after dark. The ships were in a time zone five hours ahead of local time. They were returning from a cruise in the Orient.

BUSINESS SECTION

Trio to Play Major Role In Changes

BENSON

TURNER

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The three men in Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet most directly concerned with the business community were re-elected Tuesday and are expected to play major roles in the strengthened government's approach to business.

Finance Minister Benson, Trade Minister Drury, and Consumer Affairs Minister Turner were retuned to the House of Commons.

Each has a major program in the development stage.

Mr. Benson is also president of the Privy Council and the minister in charge of scrutinizing government expenditures as well as setting tax policy. He has promised a reform of federal tax law, probably putting it before the Commons next year.

Mr. Drury was minister of industry and of defence production before he took on the added job of minister of trade and commerce when Robert Winters resigned to contest the Liberal party leadership and then was not taken into the Trudeau cabinet.

Mr. Drury may be given the task of melding the three departments into one new department of trade and industry.

CREATES DEPARTMENT

Mr. Turner created the consumer and corporate affairs department under former prime minister Pearson when he was assigned to bring several old acts of Parliament up to modern standards. These cover such matters as bankruptcies, patents and trade marks, and the like.

While each of these programs was either initiated or just contemplated six months ago, there has been little or no action on them because of the Liberal leadership race and then the general election campaign.

In the meantime, study has been given—but no firm decisions reached—on several major government reports affecting the business field. Foremost is the Carter report recommending sweeping tax reform, and the Watkins report recommending measures to curb growing American control of Canadian industry.

The radical proposals of Kenneth Carter, Toronto chartered accountant and tax consultant, now are likely to get only passing attention. Mr. Benson said during the campaign he would introduce tax reforms in the nature of modifying present tax law, rather than adopting anything as sweeping as the Carter commission suggested.

Mr. Trudeau, however, did not give the Carter report quite such short shrift. He said in the nationally-broadcast television debate among party leaders that some ideas advanced by the report should be considered.

SORT TAX PROPOSALS

Senior officials of the finance department have been sorting out the Carter suggestions and other proposals for tax reform and are preparing to put alternative plans before the cabinet. But it will be some time before the cabinet will be ready to make definite decisions, informed sources say.

The report of Prof. Melville Watkins of the University of Toronto proposed legislative and taxation curbs to protect Canadian industry from being taken over by American firms, and to encourage greater Canadian investment in business.

Mr. Trudeau has said the Watkins report deserves serious study, and that he would go along with some—but not all—of the techniques suggested by Prof. Watkins.

Other members of the present cabinet, however—and these are believed to include Mr. Drury—believe the problem of foreign control over Canadian industry can best be met by increasing Canadian control, rather than forcibly decreasing American control.

Mr. Turner has had a head start over the other ministers in formulating his program. Before the leadership and electoral hiatus, he had set out a definite program for the next two years in revising archaic business legislation. Now it is expected he will be able to press these plans forward.

MUST COVER LOSSES

One matter remains, however, to be settled. Mr. Trudeau will have to make some cabinet shuffles to cover the loss of two ministers in the election, and to put his administration on a more solid footing than the caretaker lineup with which he went into the election.

Mr. Benson has been a close confidant of the new prime minister and, it is believed, wants to remain in the finance portfolio. Mr. Trudeau will likely leave him there.

Mr. Turner is enthusiastic about his consumer and corporate affairs assignment, but would have to bow to any prime ministerial wish to move him.

DEPOSITS LOST

Election Expensive For NDP

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not a Liberal east of Prince Albert lost a deposit Tuesday for failing to poll at least half of a winning candidate's vote.

Old Liberal-hater John Diefenbaker might have chuckled with delight as the first of only nine Liberals among 429 candidates to lose deposits fell miserably short of his 17,000-vote total in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan.

Hardest hit of those who will drop a total of $85,000 into the federal treasury were 181 New Democrats. The Progressive Conservatives were next with 92, Crediistes 49, Independents 32, Social Credit 30, Communists 13, Independent-Liberals 9, Independent-PCs 7.

Others to forfeit deposits were one Rhino, one National Socialist and four candidates of the Democratisation Economique.

The National Socialist ran in Ontario, the other splinter-group candidates in Quebec.

Last time out, in 1965, deposits were forfeited by 461 candidates.

WIN LARGE MARGINS

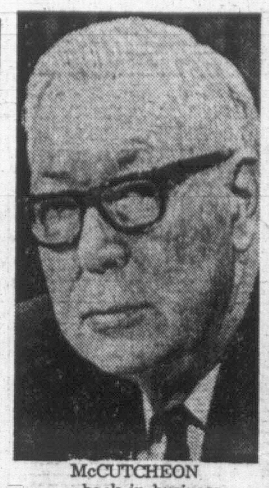

The large votes piled up by Liberal candidates in and near Montreal accounted for most of the 194 Quebec candidates to lose deposits. In at least a dozen ridings all opposition to Liberals—in several cases six or seven candidates—failed to make half the winners' votes.

The NDP lost deposits in all but one of the ridings east of Quebec, dropped 69 in Quebec and 49 in Ontario, seven in Manitoba, 19 in Alberta, four in British Columbia and one in Saskatchewan.

Conservatives did not lose a deposit on the East Coast, but dropped 47 in Quebec, 25 in Ontario, three in Manitoba, 18 in British Columbia and one in Alberta. They escaped without loss in Saskatchewan.

Following is a break-down of the deposit losers by provinces and parties:

McCUTCHEON
... back in business

Make Money Next Target

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Former senator Wallace McCutcheon, a big Conservative hopeful who was soundly defeated in Tuesday's general election, said he intends to return to the business world "to make money."

Mr. McCtcheon, who resigned from the Senate to contest the riding of York-Simcoe, was defeated by Liberal John Roberts, former executive assistant to Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve.

He said following his defeat that he is depressed about the position the people of Canada have placed themselves in.

"Apart from that I am in very good spirits."

Scholastic Ambassadors Leave Soon

TORONTO (CP) — A group of 51 "youth ambassadors" leaves here July 3 to spend the summer with families in 13 countries under a program sponsored by The Experiment in International Living of Canada.

All between the ages of 18 and 25, they will visit other E.I.L. families in France, Switzerland, Germany, The Netherlands, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Spain, Mexico, Uganda, Kenya, Israel, Japan and India.

The group meets here June 30 for final briefing.

The Experiment says emphasis in the program, established in Canada in 1966, is placed upon orientation and evaluation of participants in attitude training, international understanding and group co-operation.

The E.I.L. was founded in 1942 at Putney, Vt., by Dr. Donald Watt.

Businessmen Answer Call But Not All Are Chosen

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

A handful of prominnnent Ca dian businessmen, making their first run at federal politcis, won election Tuesday.

Others discovered, however, that it's hard to buck party and regional trends.

The business community has been criticzed in Canada for years for not participating vigorously enough in politics, and several of the entries this election made it clear they were stepping in because of such comment.

Earliest to be elected was Frank W. Moores, 35, Progressive Conservative in the Newfoundland riding of Bonavista-Trinity-Conception.

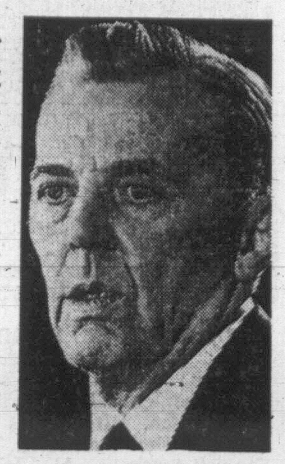

Mr. Moores is the son of the founder of a large fishing organization in Newfoundland. It was sold two years ago to Birdseye Foods Ltd., but he remains a director and is retained by the company as an adviser.

In New Brunswick, Hugh John Flemming again ran successfully for the PCs, taking Carleton-Charlotte. He is president of a lumbering firm.

KIERANS WAS ELECTED

Eric Kierans, former head of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Excahgnes and a highly successful private businessman before that, was elected as Liberal in Montreal Duvernay, and Robert Major, president of Bison Petroleum Ltd. of Regina and vice-president of Major Investments Ltd. of Ottawa, succeded as Liberal candidate in Argenteuil.

One of Quebec's best-known businessmen failed, however, in his election bid as Marcel Faribault lost to Arthur Portelance in Montreal Gamelin. A highly successful financier, Mr. Faribault generally was recognized as the Conservative leader in Quebec.

KIERANS
... victorious

In Ontario, some Liberal businessmen rode their party's sweep to victory.

Alastair Gillespie, a senior executive with Canadian Corporate Management Co., won in Toronto Etobicoke, and industrialist Barnett Danson was elected in York North.

Earl Brownridge, former president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd. who resigned to run for the Conservatives in Peel South, was defeated.

Winfield McKay, a stock broker, failed in his bid to grab Toronto High Park for the Conservatives.

Although not making their first bids in federal politics, two other noted businessmen were defeated as Conservative candidates. Dalton Camp, advertising executive and president of the national party's organization, was defeated in Toronto Don Valley by a Liberal newcomer, lawyer Robert Kaplan.

Wallace McCutcheon, former senior offical of Argus Corp., was knocked over in York-Simcoe by Liberal John Roberts.

Two prominent businessmen were elected as Liberals in Winnipeg — James Richardson in Winnipeg South and E. B. Osler in Winnipeg South Centre.

Mr. Richardson is chairman and chief executive officer of James Richardson and Sons Ltd. and Mr. Osler is executive director of Osler, Hammond and Nanton Insurance Ltd.

Hugh Harries, dean of commerce at University of Alberta and a noted economic consultant, succeeded as Liberal candidate in Edmonton Strathcona and businessman-sportsman Pat Mahoney was elected as a Liberal in Calgary South.

Mr. Mahoney owns an auto sales firm and is president of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

'Russian Roulette'

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau ignored a bomb threat Tuesday as he toured polls in the Montreal Mount Royal riding where he was Liberal candidate for the federal election.

Told by Liberal organizers about an anonymous telephone call stating a bomb had been planted at a poll he was about to visit, Mr. Trudeau shrugged and said:

"Oh, well, Russian roulette."

Then he strode in and shook hands with scrutineers and signed autographs for children.

Gold Ore Stolen

OTTAWA (CP) — A 200-pound piece of gold ore, regarded as a geological rarity among scientists because of the large amount of free gold in it, was stolen Tuesday from the offices of M. J. O'Brien Ltd. Containing 244 troy ounces of gold, the piece of ore was valued at $8,000. It was 26 inches long, eight inches wide, and six inches deep. The ore was found in 1937 at Cadillac, Que.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Cabbage Likes Tight Soil

By HILDA BEASTALL

Broad beans sown last November are just finishing production of those strange, flat unbeanlike delicacies.

Hilda

For newcomers who have never grown this vegetable before, the flavor is distinctly new.

Some folks may not have liked them, but these I would advise to try again, being sure to pick the pods before maturity. They should feel plump but not have the beans well defined through the outer skins.

When shelled, beans should be between a half-inch and three-quarters of an inch in length for most delicate flavor and tenderness.

Cook as you would the choicest of your peas, in as little boiling salted water as possible. Serve hot with melted butter or cold with a salad.

Since broad beans do not grow during summer weather, no purpose is served by leaving plants in the ground. Pull them out for composting and put in cabbage and broccoli for fall. Do not dig the pot because cabbage likes a tightly-packed soil.

Once long ago, I cut some broad bean plants off at soil level, leaving the roots in because I had space to play with unorthodox ideas.

When cool fall weather came, new plants grew up slowly. A kind winter followed, resulting in broad beans for picking by early May.

Once in a lifetime maybe, but such things are fun to a gardener.

YOUR HEALTH

When In Hot Water Enjoy Bath

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I was much amused just now as I read the statement of some wise old politician, quoted by that able Chicago surgeon Dr. W. M. Lees. The politician said, "If you find yourself in hot water, be nonchalant, and just enjoy your bath."

Alvarez

Years ago I read a statement that ever since has saved me from getting into situations that could have caused me much annoyance.

The statement was that "Never is a man so poorly employed as when defending himself." Once a military friend of mine told me that sometimes in the army they say to a fellow officer, "Now don't go and get your bowels all in an uproar," which is good advice.

Some people seem to enjoy a fight.

One of my friends, a brilliant Irishman, tells of a countryman of his who, happening on a group of men who were beating each other up, stopped and asked, "Is this a private fight or can anyone join in?" An able Irishwoman once told me that she rather enjoyed a fight with her calm and peaceful husband; it was fun and it was more fun later when the two "made up."

The trouble is that many people haven't the type of nervous system that can enjoy a fight; they are likely to be left feeling ill for a whole day, and hence they must avoid fights and even violent arguments.

★ ★ ★

My old and dear friend, the late Prof. Walter B. Cannon of Harvard used to say that when we get angry we can fill our body with adrenalin which can cause some of us much discomfort.

Incidentally, I would remind married people and lovers and perhaps everyone, that an excellent bit of advice is, "Let not the sun go down on thy wrath." Perhaps the four best words in the English language are, "I am sorry dear." In other words, always make up and apologize before you go to bed. Don't be like those married couples who haven't spoken to each other for 20 years. How awful to keep up a wrath that long!

★ ★ ★

This reminds me of the tragedy that once overwhelmed an old friend of mine because he could not give up his wrath. For years I had known him as a calm, good-natured man. Then his wife died, leaving him a fortune, inherited from her mother. Later, when he decided to marry again, his daughter asked him to put the fortune in trust for her and her children.

When he refused, she sued him; and this made him so angry that he said he would fight her clear up to the Supreme Court.

★ ★ ★

With all of his anger tearing at his heart, he rapidly went downhill, and soon his heart and his kidneys failed. I told him that it was his wrath that was killing him, and begged him to forgive his daughter, and thereby save his life, but he said, "Absolutely not." And so in a matter of weeks he was dead. The ancients would have said that he died of "sheer spleen."

Obviously, the wise person does not waste time and energy and health on wrath of any kind.

★ ★ ★

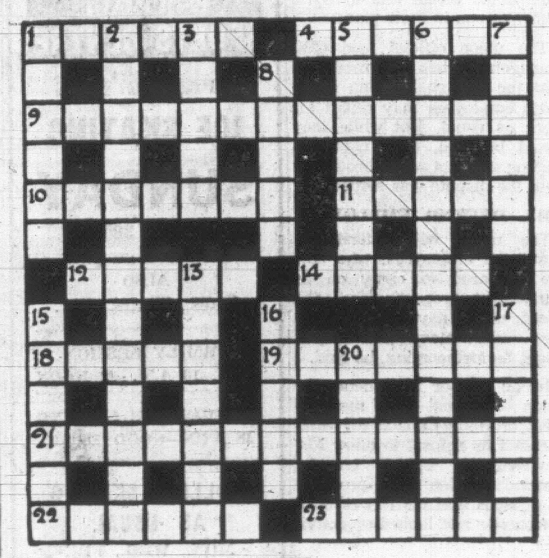

In any big family, there is likely to be one person — often a man, but sometimes a woman, who is a sort of shoulder on whom everyone in trouble comes to weep. They come to him for advice, for comfort, for psychotherapy, for help in making up their minds, and for the consolation that comes often after one has talked over a problem with a wiser person.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Judy Howard, age 9, of Shreveport, Louisiana, for her question:

How do baby sea horses get born?

Some of Andy's readers have tried to keep pet sea horses in a home aquarium. The stately little creatures are amazing to behold. But sad to say, they seldom if ever live very long in our homes. Naturally we do not wish to risk their lives, it is kinder to populate the home aquarium with other tropical fish, or goldfish.

If you have never seen a sea horse, you may expect him to be a huge, sea-going steed with prancing hoofs. You are in for a surprise. The sea horse is a dainty midget, most of them just about big enough to hold in your hand. He has no flowing mane, no prancing hooves...and even no legs. But the little fellow has a horsy looking head and snout. Actually, he is a true fish, though instead of scales, his body is covered with oblong plates of armor. Down his back and sides there are tough little bumps like rows of buttons.

He does not move forward like a prancing steed. Instead, the stately creature holds his body straight up in the water with the horsy neck gracefully arched and his graceful tail pointed down. It is a monkey type tail that can be used to grasp and hold onto things. The sea horse lives a rather slow and lazy life and he spends a lot of his time just resting among the water weeds. He coils his tail around a stem and holds on to keep from drifting away.

We find the sea horse and his 50 cousins in warm shallow seas. In spring and summer he forgets his lazy life to go courting a lady sea horse. She swims by at a slow and stately pace, all ready to lay her eggs. And you would never guess where she decides to lay them. Papa Sea Horse happens to have a sort of kangaroo-type pouch on the front of his fat tummy. Yes, this is the very spot where his lady love stuffs her eggs. She pokes in a few at a time. Altogether, she puts ten eggs, or as many as 200, into Papa's pouch. Then off she goes, leaving the rest of the family duties to her husband.

Grows Tiny Fins

The tiny door into Papa's pouch seals shut and the fertilized eggs inside begin to develop. In a week or two, his swollen tummy bulges with a batch of unborn baby sea horses. Their wriggly antics make the poor Papa uncomfortable. Soon he senses that the babies are ready to come forth into their watery world. He finds a sheltered spot among the shaggy seaweeds and begins to rub his tummy against a rock or a stiff stem. This helps to open the door of his pouch. The eager youngsters waste no time in coming out, two by two and three by three. Soon the water is clouded with baby sea horses swimming away to find food and shelter among the drifting seaweeds. The babies of the smallest kind of sea horse are a quarter inch long. The larger kinds of sea horses have babies that measure half an inch.

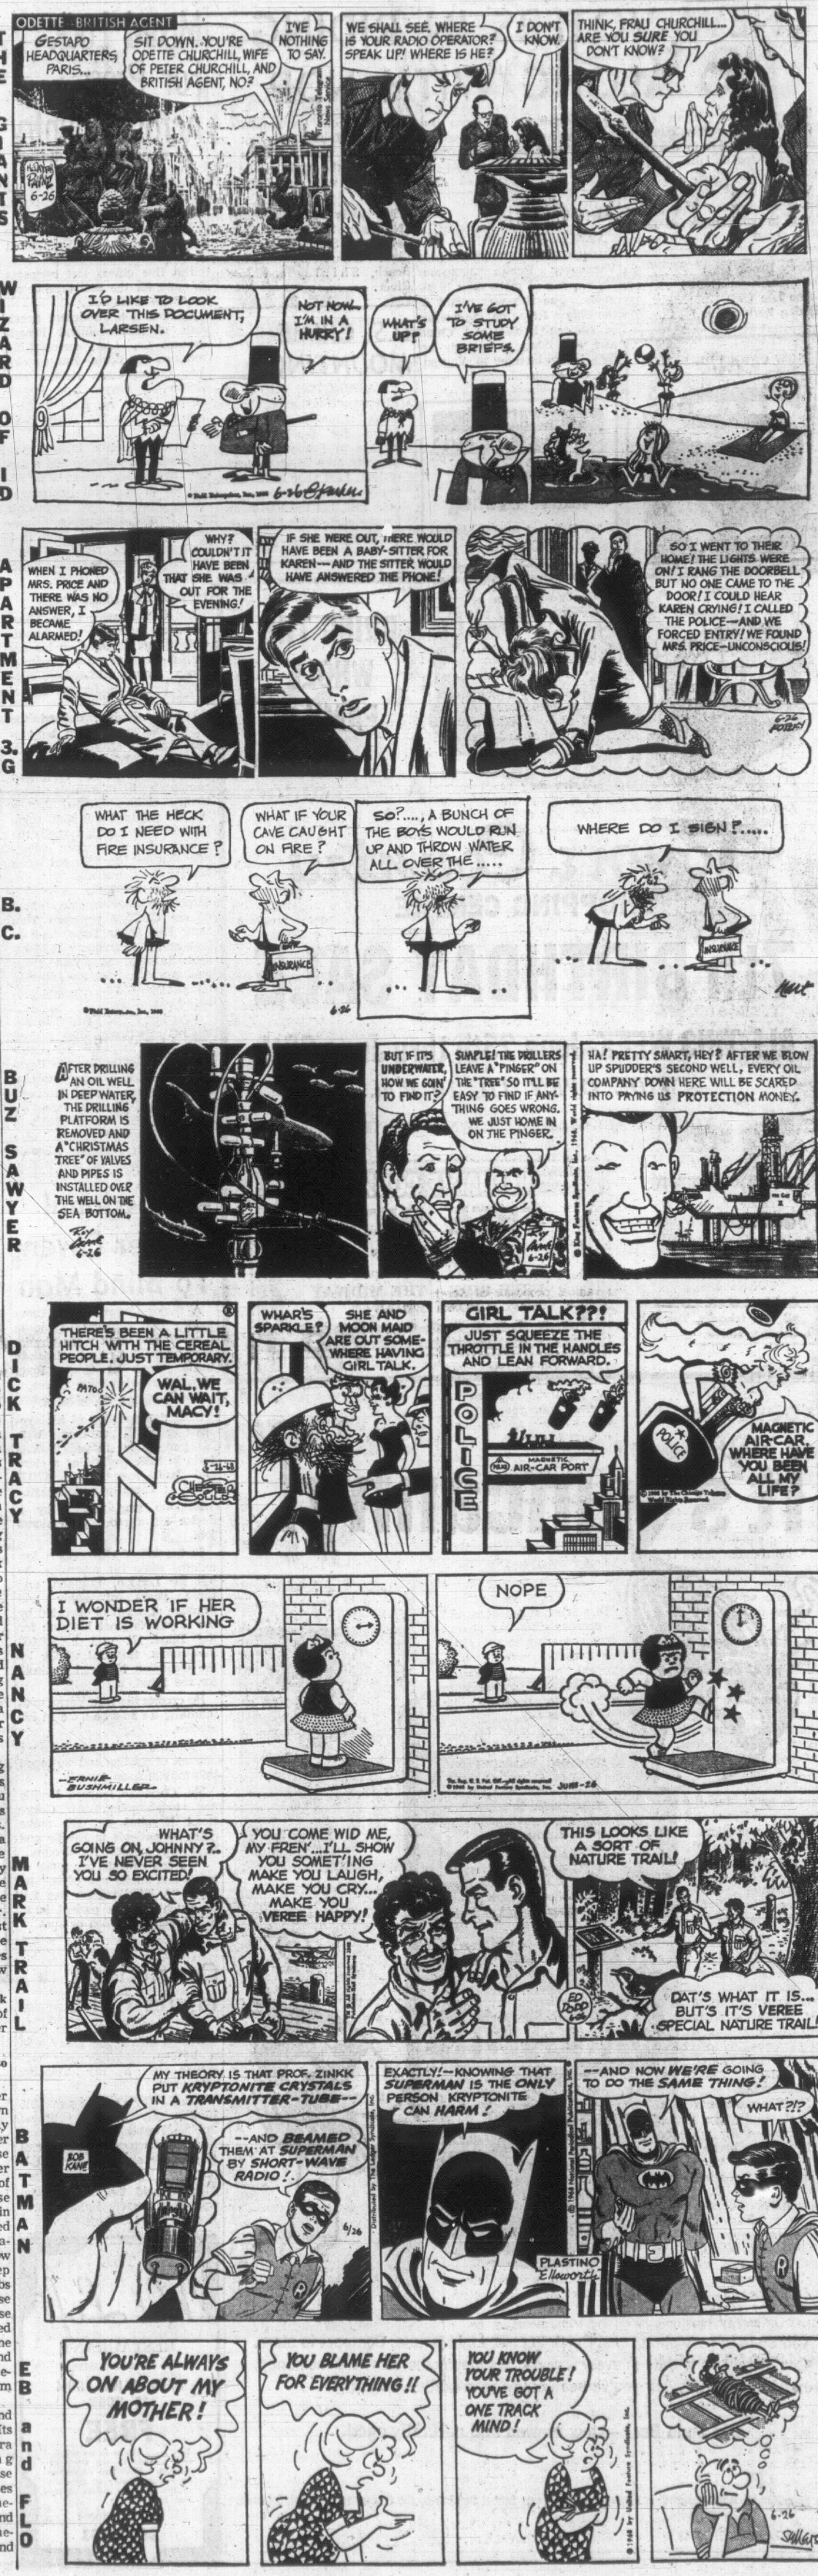

One of the most amazing things about a sea horse is his fins. When you see him, you may be quite sure that he has no fishy fins at all. But he does. On each shoulder he has a gauzy little fin that looks like the wing of a tiny bug. His filmy fins are glassy clear and he beats them very fast to paddle his way through the water. They are too weak for fast swimming. This is why the handsome little sea horse moves through the water like a slow and stately horse on parade.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Karen Kent, age 12, of Eaton Rapids, Michigan, for her question:

How can water get into underground streams?

A large percentage of water from every shower sinks down into the soil where it may repose as buried ground water Every rainfall adds to these stores of underground water and so do the melting snows of spring. There is an immense amount of underground water in the land. Its storage is governed by the nature and the formations of rocky layers far below the surface. Reservoirs of deep ground water rest on solid slabs of shales and granites because it cannot seep through these dense rocks. Some gets trapped in the spongy holes of sandstone and other porous rocks. And water tends to dissolve limestone and other soft calcium rocks.

The pattern of buried ground water is forever changing. Its upper level rises with extra rainfall and falls during droughts. It flows down dense underground slopes and nibbles holes in soft limestones. Sometimes it chisels out tunnels and flows through chalky or limestone hills in underground streams.

NEW VOTERS IN RIDING GO ALONG WITH NDP

The pro-NDP pattern established by Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands voters in the north was repeated in the southern section of the riding.

Voters living in the area between Langford and Jordan River, in polls numbered 158 to 167, voted in the following manner:

Jeffrey Brock (PC)	504
Colin Cameron (NDP)	748
Lorne Lee (SC)	131
Mladen Zorkin (Lib.)	515

Earlier there had been concern that voters in the southern area of the riding would be confused by their ballots because the area had been switched from Esquimalt-Saanich in redistribution. But the pattern so closely follows the pattern of the whole riding this worry is now generally discounted.

The polls involved were at Metchosin, St. Mary's Church, Langford; Sooke, St. Rose of Lima Church, Macdonald Beach, Shirley and Jordan River.

Rare Fish Flies

VANCOUVER (CP)—A rare Russian pike is recovering in Vancouver Public Aquarium from a trip of more than 10,000 miles. The fish was netted in the Amur River on the border of eastern Russia and China and was flown to Moscow before being brought to Vancouver via Montreal.

U.S. CRIME MOUNTING

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI reported Monday that serious crime in the United States for the first three months of this year rose 17 per cent over the same period of 1967. Last year in the same period, crime rose 20 per cent over 1966, but the 1966 figures for the same period were only six per cent over 1965.

Mixed Luck For Press Across Country

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tuesday's federal election proved a mixed bag for candidates prominent in the press, television and radio fields.

Four such men who were members of the last Parliament were returned by voters.

But five others lost attempts to enter for the first time or re-enter the Commons.

Liberal Don Jamieson, president of Newfoundland Broadcasting Co. Ltd., successfully retained his Burin-Burgeo riding. Conservative Robert McCleave, a lawyer and broadcaster, won in Halifax-East Hants for his return to the Commons.

Gérard Pelletier, Liberal minister without portfolio and a former newspaper editor, was re-elected in Montreal Hochelaga. Barry Mather, New Democrat and former newspaper columnist, was elected in the new Vancouver-area riding of Surrey. He represented New Westminster in the last House.

PC BROADCASTER FAILS

But Conservative L. R. Sherman, a journalist and broadcaster, was defeated on his try for re-election in Winnipeg South. James Richardson captured the riding for the Liberals.

Douglas Fisher, dubbed the NDP giant-killer when he toppled Liberal strongman C. D. Howe in 1957, was rejected when he tried a Commons comeback in Toronto's York Centre riding. Liberal James Walker retained the seat, turning Mr. Fisher back towards the career as a newspaper columnist that he has followed since leaving the Commons.

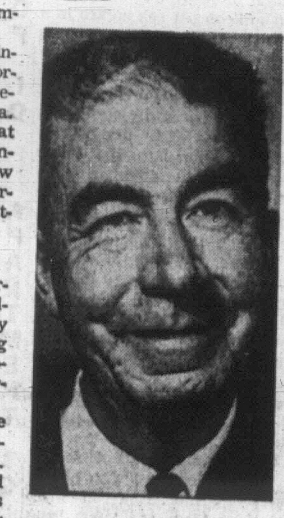

Laurier LaPierre, who became widely known as a co-host of the CBC-TV program This Hour Has Seven Days, had no luck as NDP candidate in Montreal Lachine. Raymond Rock held the riding for the Liberals against Mr. LaPierre's first federal election try.

New Democrat Bruce Rogers, a CBC announcer, also missed in his first try for the Commons. He lost in Toronto Parkdale to Liberal Stanley Haidasz.

Conservative Arthur Harnett, who stepped down as news director of radio station CFRB to run in Toronto Etobicoke, also was a loser. Liberal Alastair Gillespie won in this new riding.

REPORTER SUSPENDED FOR PARADE COVERAGE

CBC Quebec Service Shut After News Staff Walkout

MONTREAL (CP) — Management of the CBC French-language radio and television networks has decided to suspend all French-language radio and television news broadcasts until a dispute between newsroom employees and management has been settled, a Montral official of the employees' union said today.

The official said in an interview management informed the union of the move following a meeting at midnight Tuesday night and that the suspension took effect from that time.

The action had been taken in reply to a strike Tuesday night by newsroom employees in protest to the suspension earlier of Claude-Jean Devirieux for his on-the-scene reporting of Monday night's violence-wracked St. Jean Baptiste Day parade in downtown Montreal.

Tuesday night's election results were not reported on the CBC's French-language radio and television networks as a result of the strike and a movie film was run in their place.

The union official said CBC management has informed him that the French-speaking newsroom employees may report for work as usual. But while they would be paid, their news reporting was not to be broadcast until the dispute was settled.

WILL DEFEND EMPLOYEES

The union will defend the newsroom employees, who now are prepared to carry on as usual with reporting of the events of the day, in any meetings with management that might be forthcoming, he said.

In an earlier statement, the union criticized the management of Radio-Canada for what it called its refusal to allow Mr. Devirieux to appear on the planned election night program on grounds that his reporting of the parade riot lacked objectivity.

VOTE TO PROTEST

Referring to coverage of the parade, the union said Mr. Devirieux "described the facts, and only the facts, in his news report and these facts are described by nearly all honest newspapers across Canada in their Tuesday editions."

Following announcement of the suspension of the reporter, newsroom employees assigned to the election night program voted 84 to 6 in favor of refusing to work on the show until their colleague was reinstated. Those voting included reporters, public affairs commentators, announcers and script assistants.

DOESN'T BACK ACTION

In Ottawa today, the Canadian Wire Service Guild, the union representing newsmen employed by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, dissociated itself from the action of Montreal staff.

Del Delmage, president of the guild, said in a statement:

"The union representing CBC newsmen across the country, The Canadian Wire Service Guild, sincerely regrets the closing down last night of the French network at a time when the CBC had a major role to play in informing the country of Canada's election results.

"The decision not to participate in the election coverage out of the national news room in Montreal was not a decision of the Canadian Wire Service Guild, but a group of newsmen in the French operation of the CBC in Montreal."

Professional Career Given To Blind Man

A major investment in time, money and courage begins to pay off next week when physiotherapist Charles Christian begins work at Gorge Road Hospital rehabilitation centre.

Mr. Christian, 33, is blind.

Slow deterioration of his eyesight began 21 years ago. With his parents he moved to Victoria in 1958, worked as a clerk and later managed a CNIB stand at Yates and Blanshard.

But he was pushed by a desire for a more professional job.

In the fall of 1964, only a few months after his marraige, he left for London, England, and three years of study and practice at a school operated by the Royal National Institute for the Blind. It was a $10,000 investment, financed wholly by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

He credits his wife Verna with unfailing assistance in his studies.

"She did a tremendous amount of reading and we taped information from texts."

Mr. Christian learned Braille and touch-typing. At Gorge Road Hospital he will make notes on patients in Braille and later type reports for doctors.

"We can educate our sense of touch and make use of it," he says. "A blind person can tell by touch when a patient is in pain; muscle tension or spasms tell him."

Car Accident Injures Girl

A 13-year-old girl is in good condition in hospital today with a broken leg after she was struck by a car Tuesday afternoon.

Valerie Greenberg, 3316 Keats, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital after she was knocked down at the corner of Shelbourne and McRae at 3:35 p.m.

Police said the car involved was driven north by Margaret Lockhart, 536 Selkirk.

Bakery Strike Jogs Toward 100th Day

A strike by salesmen against Weston Bakeries in British Columbia, including Victoria, entered its 94th day this morning with no sign of it ending.

Seventy of the driver-salesmen went on strike for higher pay March 25, including a dozen employees at the Victoria branch.

"The strike is still on and no meetings are scheduled," said George Thomson of Vancouver, secretary-treasurer of the Bakery Salesman's Union, Local 189 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

He said the salesmen are prepared to sign the same contract as that negotiated with two other bakeries, McGavin and Mother Hubbard.

"We have had an area agreement for the last six years and we do not intend to deviate."

Such a settlement would provide an increase of $15 a week in a two-year contract plus a one-per-cent increase in commission believed to be worth $3. Previous pay rate was a basic $115 a week plus commission.

Weston's offer was for an increase of $13 a week over two years.

Sailor Visits Foster Child

Over 400 sailors from the destroyer escorts HMCS Saskatchewan and HMCS Qu'Appelle are homeward bound following a visit to the Orient, and for one the best memory is that of a child.

About two years ago, Petty Officer Donaldson T. Jordan along with his family and 12 Boy Scouts in his troop, undertook the foster-parenthood of Lau Shi Fun in Hong Kong.

Sponsorship of the nine-year old girl was undertaken through the agencies of the Canadian Foster Parent Plan.

The 12 scouts, members of the Handicapped Boy Scout Troop of Greater Victoria, have already received news of the visit through letters and photographs sent home by Petty Officer Jordan.

USSR Raps Drunkeness; Gambling Also Nipped

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow authorities cracked down Tuesday on drunkeness and gambling in the movies, streets, shops and buses of the Soviet capital.

The Moscow Regional Soviet (Council) introduced new penalties for drunks to supplement a more severe nationwide law passed two years ago.

The 1966 law provided mandatory hospitalization for up to two years for alcoholics and ruled that the normal penalties for crimes would be increased if the criminal was drunk at the time.

The regional Soviet's decree recognized that many of the drunks, while annoying, are not serious enough nuisances to warrant these serious penalities.

It instituted administrative fines of up to 10 rubles ($11) for persons who are drunk on the streets or in stadiums, parks, gardens, recreation parks, theatres, movies, markets, buses, railway stations and shops.

It also banned drinking in shops or snack bars where liquor is not sold or in parks or the entrances to apartment houses.

Gambling also was banned in the same places.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Wallace Strength Mounts in South

By DON McKEE
Associated Press Writer

George C. Wallace's barnstorming across the sourthern U.S. to the cheers of zealous supporters indicates his increasingly significant role in the presidential election.

"We are running to win," he told crowds on his southern fund-raising tour last week.

But at this stage, even those governors supporting or leaning toward Wallace are not making all-out predictions of victory. Governor Albert Brewer of Alabama is supporting the third-party candidate and says:

"I think he has an excellent chance of winning."

Brewer predicted Wallace would carry Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia "of a certainty." And he said Wallace has an excellent chance of taking Texas, Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Virginia.

Even though Brewer is partisan, behind the scenes there were other governors who agreed Wallace might carry from five to 10 states or more.

Governor John Connally of Texas told reporters at the sourthern governors conference recently that both major party candidates should "run scared of George Wallace."

Former Georgia governor Carl E. Sanders said Wallace would sweep the South unless the Democratic organizations get busy.

Both Connally and Sanders alluded to the law-and-order issue which Wallace has hammered in his speeches. This has a strong appeal among voters, Sanders said, and the Democratic candidates ought to talk about it.

Wallace has already won positions on the ballot in more than one-half the states. All indications are that he will be on the ballot in most states by November.

He tells listerners how he made the ballot in California by getting 107,263 voters to register as members of his American Independent party — when only 66,000 were needed. He also points to the turnout of thousands for his party's county conventions in Texas.

It might be in his plans to work hard at winning the plurality in the big states like California and Texas. He reminds interviewers that California will have at least four different presidential candidates on the ballot.

The former Alabama governor does not talk about segregation and he repeatedly says he is not a racist. But he speaks out against federal guidelines, including those on school integration, and he is against the open-housing law.

Mail Stealer Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Edward Sterling MacGregor, 25, was sentenced in Vancouver to six months in jail for stealing from the mails. MacGregor, a mailman, was charged with stealing more than $300.

HIPPIE HAVEN WASHED DOWN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Workmen at the provincial courthouse have been ordered by Premier Bennett to keep the courthouse steps — favorite haunt of hippies — well washed.

"We have received instructions from the premier's office to keep the steps washed down," George Pendygrasse, superintendent of works for the provincial public works department, said today.

He said the instructions did not specify how many times a day the steps are to be washed, but a department employee hosed them down several times Monday.

ABERNATHY ALONE BEHIND BARS

Stay Out of Jail, Chief Tells Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Poor People's Campaign mule train made a wide sweep through muggy Washington Tuesday, but those in the wagons were discouraged from trying to follow their leader, Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, to jail.

Abernathy was sentenced earlier to 20 days imprisonment. Other campaign leaders remained free.

In a letter from jail, Abernathy called for a demonstration today by clergymen who he said are needed "to provide an inspirational example."

BEEN REBUKED

The letter stated: "I am in jail with the poor and today I ask you the clergy to join us. The time for stating our case in words is past; we have done that and have been rebuked by the authorities. . . ."

Tension in the U.S. capital, where temperatures have been in the 90s, still was evident. But, as dusk approached, officials decided against repeating the night-hours curfew they imposed Monday when sporadic violence flared in Negro sections.

Mayor Walter E. Washington announced that "if any emergency should arise requiring a curfew it will be instituted."

These were the day's main developments:

● Abernathy, maintaining his arrest Monday on Capitol Hill cut short an attempt to "get food for hungry people in this richest and most affluent society," was sentenced to 20 days in jail after pleading no contest to a charge of unlawful assembly on the Capitol grounds.

● A demolition crew of 400 worked at top speed to tear down and cart away Resurrection City, the plywood shantytown the demonstrators were evicted from Monday, a day after their occupancy permit had expired.

● The mule train of the Poor People's Campaign entered Washington for the first time, nearly precipitating mass arrests when it attempted to approach the Capitol.

Police allowed the 13-wagon caravan of creaking farm wagons, each pulled by two mules in worn harness, to ride through the city but ordered a halt when the line approached the Capitol. It later returned to its Arlington, Va., headquarters.

Many of those in the wagons said they were eager for arrest. They were openly disappointed when wagon master Willie Bolton, 28, a lithe, goatee-wearing Atlantan, told them they would not force their way through the police lines.

"And don't worry about going to jail," Bolton said. "I guarantee that before this weekend there will be thousands of us in jail."

Abernathy was one of 261 demonstrators arrested Monday during a march on the Capitol.

Another of the campaign's leaders, Hosea Williams, appeared in court Tuesday but his case was continued without a date specified.

ROVING CROWDS

Mayor Washington's prompt decision to bring in the National Guard when roving street crowds became unruly Monday night was applauded Tuesday in Congress.

Meanwhile police said they made 282 arrests during the night. Most were for curfew violations, but 27 persons were booked for looting and one for arson.

Rocky, Master Stay

NANAIMO — Rocky and his constable are staying in Nanaimo.

Some weeks ago transfer orders came down for the German Shepherd dog and his handler, Constable Dale Marino. They were supposed to go to the Prairies.

Rocky is the only RCMP dog on Vancouver Island and news that he was to leave prompted a storm of letters from Civil Defence and other organizations saying his services for tracking in rough bush country were invaluable.

An RCMP spokesman said this week there was a change of plans in the force and Constable Marion's orders were remitted.

The spokesman said there were dogs and dogs.

"This one turns out to be an excellent dog."

He said Rocky's character and abilities reflected those of his master.

Food Stamp Dependants Hurt Badly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. House agriculture committee Tuesday voted down the administration-backed plan for an unlimited food stamp program — a stinging defeat for the Poor Peoples' marchers.

On the floor of the house, meantime, liberals fought to reverse funds from a $17 billion appropriations bill. They accused the committee of breaking faith with poor school districts which had counted on extra money to teach disadvantaged children.

CARRY FIGHT

The action on the food stamp program was by a 26-4 vote but Rep. L. K. Sullivan (D.-Mo.), said she would carry to the floor of the House the fight to remove any ceiling on the amount that can be appropriated to back food stamps. The Poor Peoples' campaigners sought such an unlimited program and also sought free stamps.

The stamps are used to supplement the diets of 2,500,000 Americans who pay an average of $6.73 a month for them and turn them in for food worth more than the cost of the stamps. For every $6 a buyer spends for stamps, he can get $10 worth of food.

In Atlantic City, N.J., the old guard and the "Young Turks" of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People battled again Tuesday on the convention floor over a resolution to pack up and go to Washington to support the Poor People's campaign.

BOOMING VOICE

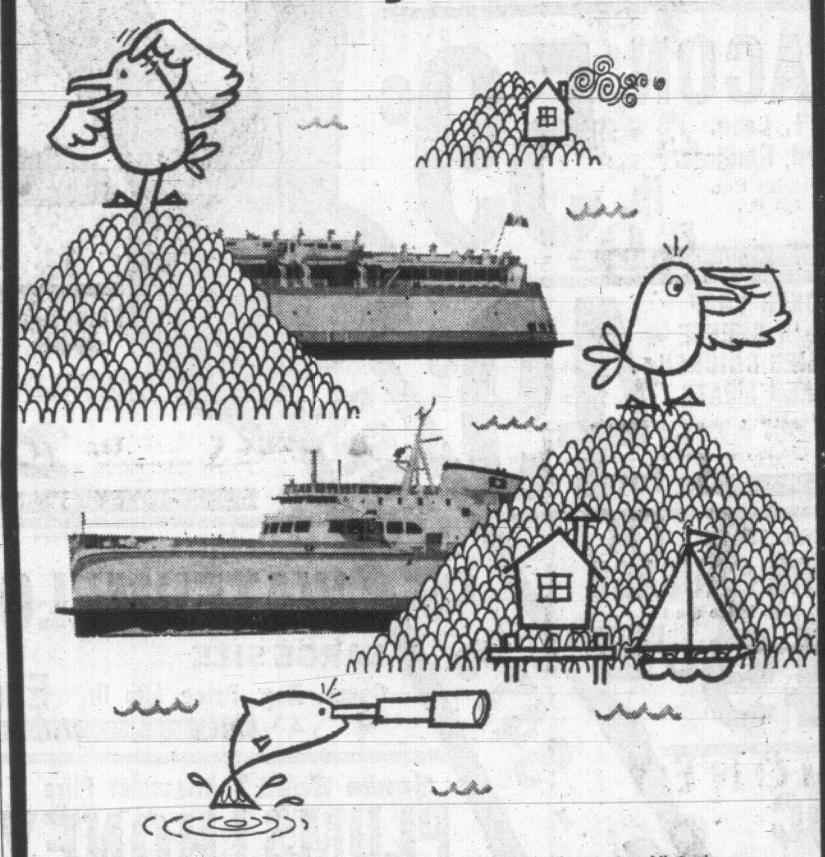

The old guard won in a booming voice opposing the move.

Chester Lewis, of Wichita, Kans., leader of the younger, militant group, introduced the resolution which called on the NAACP executive Secretary Roy Wilkins, four of his top coleaders, and four representatives from each of the seven districts in the civil rights group to travel to Resurrection City.

Guards Flee West

BERLIN (AP) — Two East German border guards climbed the Berlin wall Tuesday and surrendered to West German police. West Berlin statistics say 503 uniformed East Germans now have defected since the wall was built in 1961.

Did you wonder where the "Sidney" went ?

The MV "Queen of Sidney" is the fifth-wheel on our Vancouver-Victoria run. We call her route "The Oddball" because she has a rather eccentric schedule. It's different every day (and she rests on Tuesdays and Wednesdays).

There's a reason for all this. She operates during our schedule peaks in the summer months only, adding to the car carrying capacity of the other big ships. Enroute she makes special stops in the Gulf Islands to supplement ferry service to those communities.

Regular travellers plan their trips for her on-the-odd-time departures. They're usually less crowded, and with her stops at the pleasant Islands, a bit more relaxing. The few minutes longer it takes to reach your destination are just that much more rewarding.

Suggestion: When you, or visiting friends are crossing the Gulf, think of "The Oddball" . . . it's more fun!

RCAF PILOT KILLED

Starfighter Jets To Be Probed

GIESSEN, West Germany (Reuters) — An RCAF CF-104 Starfighter jet crashed Tuesday outside a nearby village, killing the pilot.

It was the second CF-104 stationed in West Germany to crash in a week. The other Canadian jet went down in eastern France last Wednesday, killing the pilot.

Two other Starfighters—one Belgian and the other West German—went down within 24 hours of last week's crash.

Cause of the Tuesday crash was not known.

In Ottawa, a defence department spokesman identified the dead pilot as Capt. A. S. I. Andree of Regina. The spokesman said a board of inquiry has been set up to determine what brought the Starfighter down while on a training mission near Frankfurt. The plane was attached to 439 Squadron based at Lahr, where Capt. Andree's wife lives.

Record Heroin Haul Made by U.S. Agents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal agents have seized $22.4 million worth of pure heroin in New York in the largest single seizure of the narcotic in the nation's history, Atty.-Gen. Ramsey Clark announced today.

Clark said 112 kilograms of heroin was discovered in a hidden compartment of a foreign automobile which had been shipped to New York from France.

One American was arrested and four French citizens have been apprehended in Paris in connection with the case, Clark said. All are charged with conspiracy to violate U.S. or French narcotic laws.

Henry L. Giordano, associate director of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, whose agents made the seizure, said the move followed an investigation of several months. It involved close co-operation of France's Central Narcotic Bureau, U.S. customs and New York City and New York state police.

CZECHS WILL REMOVE STALIN ERA STIGMA

DUBCEK
. . . more power

PRAGUE (UPI) — The Czech parliament Tuesday unanimously approved a law to clear the names of thousands of persons imprisoned during the nation's Stalinist era.

The Czech news agency CTK said it was the first peice of legislation reflecting the liberal four-month-old administration of Communist leader Alexander Dubcek.

Justice Minister Bohuslav Kucera, speaking on behalf of the rehanilitation bill, said, "Those persons responsible for gross illegalities of the past will be removed from the state apparatus and public functions."

The new law will give the Dubcek regime more legal powers to purge dogmatists loyal to the ousted former Communist leader, Antonin Novotny, from entrenched positions.

Bonanno, Others Freed In Drug Running Case

PALERMO (Reuters) — A Sicilian court Tuesday acquitted 17 Italians and Italo-Americans, including alleged Cosa Nostra chief Joseph Bonanno, of charges of running drug traffic between Italy and the United States.

The trial began in March with 10 of the 17 accused present amid great publicity usually accompanying Mafia and Cosa Nostra trials.

The court ordered two of the Italians, Genco Russo, 75, reputed to be one of the top post-war Mafia heads, and Diego Plaia, 60, to stay for five years in their respective home towns of Lovere and Fresagrandinaria.

The 63-year-old Bonanno was tried in absentia. He was reported to have replaced Gaspari de Gregorio as head of the Cosa Nostra—American branch of the Mafia underworld organization.

Bonanno entered Canada in May, 1964 at Blackpool, Que., and applied for landed immigrant status in Canada. However, immigration authorities later charged him with perjury for allegedly telling an immigration officials he had no criminal record when he entered Canada.

Officials later sought to have Bonanno deported from Canada for entering without a visa or medical clearance.

After a few courtroom manoeuvres, during which Bonanno said he had been detained illegally by federal authorities, he was deported July 30, 1964, and flown from Montreal to Chicago. The perjury charge later was dropped.

Bonanno disappeared from a New York street soon afterwards on the eve of his scheduled appearance before a rackets grand jury Oct. 21, 1964.

Swim Classes Want Entries

The Kinette Swim Classes still have vacancies. There are only a few vacancies for the two-week session from July 2 to July 16, but there are many more for the period from July 17 to 31.

The classes will be at the pool in the Kinsmen Gorge Park.

Registration will take place at the artificial fresh-water pool from 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturdday, Sunday and Monday.

For particulars call 382-2613 or 388-7298.

AREAS GUARD AGAINST SPUR LINES

DELTA (CP) — Two municipalities took steps Monday to protect themselves when the Robert Bank deep-sea port is built.

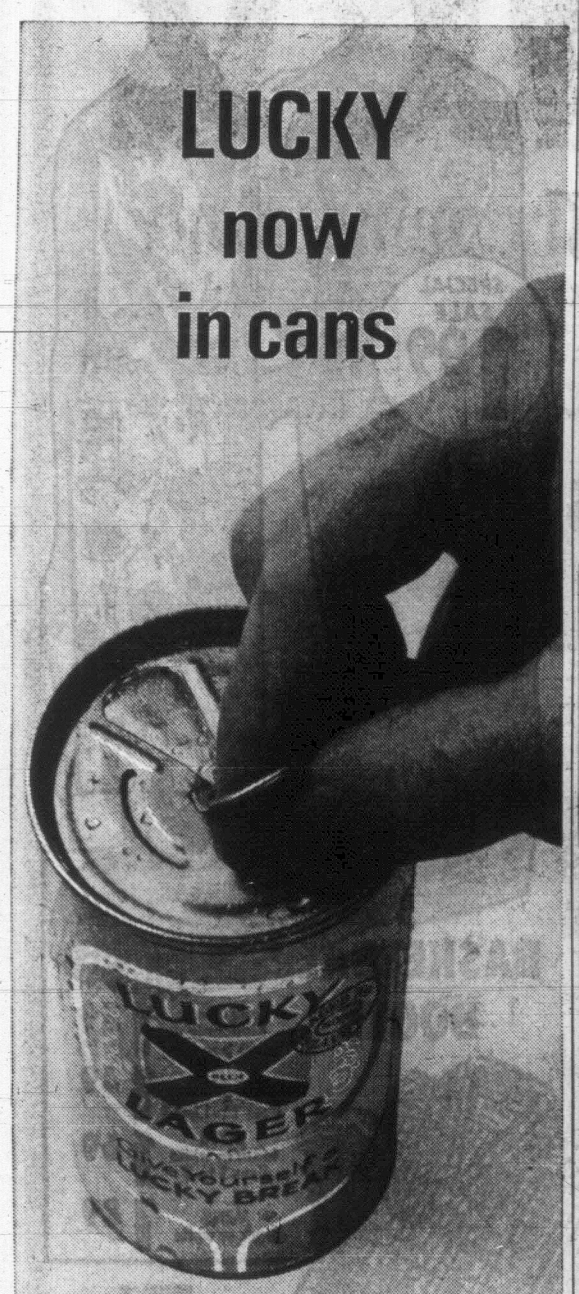

Delta municipal council decided to draw up a bylaw amendment preventing industrial development in the Boundary Bay and Tsawwassen areas after fears were expressed that spur lines might be built there from the port railway.

And in Surrey the municipal council decided to bypass provincial authorities and voice a protest to the federal government about the Boundary Bay railway route to the port.

Councillors had complained that the route would carve up prime agricultural land.

The port site is about 25 miles southwest of Vancouver.

Pope Proclaims Bones Remains of St. Peter

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul said today that fragments of bones found during excavations under St. Peter's Basilica are the authentic remains of the Apostle St. Peter.

The saint is believed to have been crucified upside down during Christian persecutions in 64 or 68 AD and buried where the high altar of St. Peter's now stands.

But until now there was no proof and archaeologists and scientists have long been studying early Christian remains excavated this century under the basilica.

The Roman Catholic Church is careful to pronounce relics or miracles genuine only when it has incontestable proof of their authenticity.

Pope Paul, in an announcement at an audience today, said: "We are right in believing that the few but sacred mortal remains of the Prince of Apostles have been traced."

He said reliable proof of their authenticity was obtained after painstaking and accurate investigations by competent and prudent persons.

The Pope gave no further information.

His announcement comes just before celebration on Saturday of the official 1,900th anniversary of the martyrdom of St. Peter and St. Paul.

The discovery is mainly the work of an Italian woman archeologist, Marguerita Garducci. She has for years said that chips of bones found in excavations were those of St. Peter.

Her claims have, however, been contested by others.

Fight Cost $25

A man was fined $25 Tuesday for causing a disturbance by fighting.

Frances Alexander, 19, of 3356 Oak Street, pleaded guilty.

Court was told the accused was involved in a fist fight at Paul's Drive-In early today.

Another man arrested at the same time pleaded not guilty.

FORTAS NAMED CHIEF JUSTICE BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson announced today the nomination of Justice Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the United States, succeeding Earl Warren who is retiring from the Supreme Court post.

The 58-year-old Fortas will succeed Warren as soon as his appointment is approved by the Senate, the White House said.

The president also picked Judge Homer Thornberry of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court to fill the vacancy created by Fortas' elevation. Thornberry is from Austin, Tex.

Johnson told Warren: "It is with my deepest regret that I learn of your desire to retire, knowing how much the nation has benefitted from your services as chief justice."

Lutherans Move To Ease Poverty

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — After 5½ hours of heated debate, the Lutheran Church in America approved Tuesday a resolution allowing the church to raise $6,500,000 for work in slums across the United States.

The resolution allows the church to issue a special appeal to its congregation to raise $3,000,000 in 1968 and $3,500,000 in 1969 "to meet the urgent urban crisis."

An earlier proposal for $8,000,000 was voted down.

The long discussions on substitute motions and amendments on the issue also delayed introduction of a controversial statement on conscientious objection.

The resolution to meet the urban crisis was offered by William Ellis, a New York lawyer and lay delegate to the fourth biennial convention. An amended version was approved.

"Poverty and racial, economic and political discrimination against inhabitants of the ghettoes of the inner city have created and continue to create tensions of such magnitude as to engulf both the cities and the suburbs in disaster," the resolution stated.

Several changes were made in the original amendment. One would allow direct gifts to the special fund, an action normally not allowed in the church.

Orbiting City Planned As Next U.S. Space Goal

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The next big space goal of the United States may be to orbit giant space stations in the 1970s, a task that seems by comparison to be much easier than the Moon target of the '60s.

Space experts from the military and civilian worlds said Tuesday the project will cost billions, but it will be worth it, despite public apathy nowadays about the space effort.

Gen. James Ferguson, chief of the air force systems command, said lack of support for space work comes partly from the Vietnam war expense and partly from a ho-hum attitude by the public.

Ferguson, who heads the military space program, told the 4th international symposium on bioastronautics and the exploration of sapce the key question for future space programs is to find projects that are worth the money spent on them.

Dr. Robert Gilruth, director of the manned spacecraft centre, talked about a series of space stations to be built in larger sizes until the mid-1970s see an "orbiting city" of 100 pioneers.

Cameron Sixth, Last Win

Veteran New Democrat Colin Cameron continued to beat all comers as he handily won the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding for the sixth, and he says last, time.

He piled up 17,489 votes Tuesday to lead Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit opponents by more than 5,000.

The 71-year-old economics critic for the NDP, Mr. Cameron said his party with 23 seats will be the only "real opposition" in the House.

●

He said he would fight no more elections because "you can get away with it when you're pushing 72, but not when you're pushing 76."

First elected to the House in 1953, Mr. Cameron's only defeat came in the 1958 Conservative slide.

He said he did not know who would assume the party leadership.

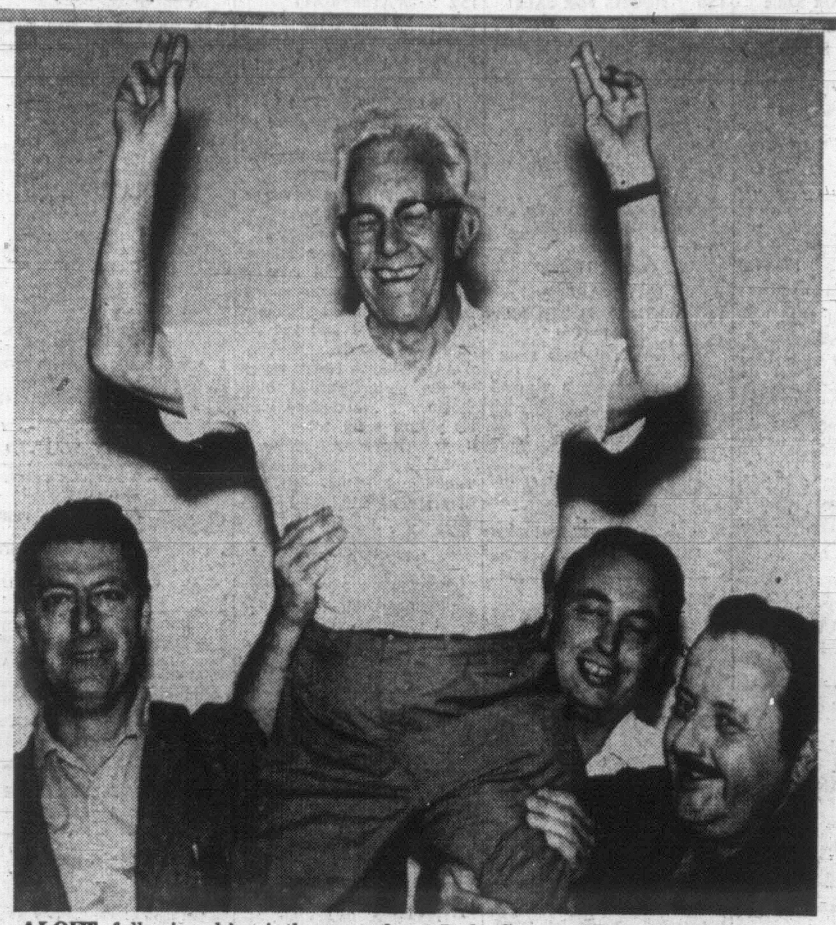

"All I can say is that it wouldn't be me,"

●

The heirs apparent to the leadership — Douglas Fisher, Laurier Lapierre — all suffered defeat.

He credited Mr. Douglas' personal appeal with NDP gains in Saskatchewan and with holding most of the party's seats in Ontario.

Mladen Zorkin, who ran against Mr. Cameron for the Liberals, polled 12,185, nearly doubling the Liberal total in the 1965 election.

ALOFT following his sixth general election victory, Colin Cameron is carried before victorious New Democratic Party supporters at Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands celebrations in Nanaimo Tuesday night. Strong shoulders are supplied by, from left, Jack Stevens, Hugh Robinson and Carl Titus, all of Nanaimo. Mr. Cameron led his nearest opponent, Liberal Mladyn Zorkin by better than 5,000 votes. The New Democrat said this was likely to be his last general election.

But the New Democrat said he was able to win because "apparently the people in my riding don't go for that youthful image" of the Liberal campaign.

Lorne Lee tallied 1,258 for the Social Credit.

Mr. Cameron expressed surprise at the Liberal's national success. He said he expected the government party to lose 20 seats in Quebec but they managed to pick up one to hold 56.

He said "the mess the country is in" will be the main issue when Parliament reconvenes.

"The government is going to be in a sickly financial position.

"And the government hasn't done a damn thing about it."

Mr. Cameron said he expected the cost of living and the unemployment figures to go up and the interest rates to stay up.

The only change would come if the United States was to get out of Vietnam. He did not think Prime Minister Trudeau's "flower power" would bring this about.

SQUEAKER IN COMOX-ALBERNI

11 Ballot Boxes Hold Secret

By JOHN SLINGER

Outcome of the Comox-Alberni election saw-off rests inside 11 unopened ballot boxes being ferried to the returning office in Port Alberni from northwest Vancouver Island.

With 222 of 233 polls counted, only 73 votes separate leading New Democratic Tom Barnett and Liberal Richard Durante.

A weary Colin Wilson, returning officer, said this morning late polls could be in as early as this afternoon, or "it might take a week."

WEATHER FACTOR

He said weather on the west coast will determine if they can be brought directly in and the weather now is uncertain.

The service vote, not to be counted until Saturday, also could bear on the results.

The boxes still to come are from tiny communities scattered around the large riding, including Winter Harbor, Queen's Cove, Nootka, Estevan, Kildonan, Buttle Lake, Christie's Pass and Denman Island.

The returning officer did not know where the remainder — advance polls — were coming from.

Mr. Barnett has represented the riding since 1953 except for the four years after 1958 when the Conservatives won.

The 59-year-old candidate said he was not surprised by the tight race.

"There has never been a general election in which I felt so uncertain of the outcome."

Mr. Durante expressed confidence that votes still to be counted would swing the margin his way.

GRATIFYING

A high school principal in the Albernis, Mr. Durante said it was gratifying to receive support enough to close the 6,000-vote difference between the two parties in 1965.

He attributed part of the increased support in the riding to a desire for change from NDP representation.

"I don't think this riding has been getting a fair shake from Ottawa for some time."

The other part he attributed to Prime Minister Trudeau's appeal: "I think the people wanted to see Mr. Trudeau form a strong majority government."

His first venture into "any sort of campaigning," Mr. Durante said the fight was "very good, very fair and very clean."

Blair McLean of Campbell River was running third with a total of 5,017 votes. Jean Gagnon polled 984 for the Social Credit and Mark Mosher 306 for the Communist Party.

Mr. Barnett, a leading spokesman for Indian affairs, said "I haven't got a clue" what sort of government to expect from the Liberals under Mr. Trudeau, "I mean he hasn't given us a clue."

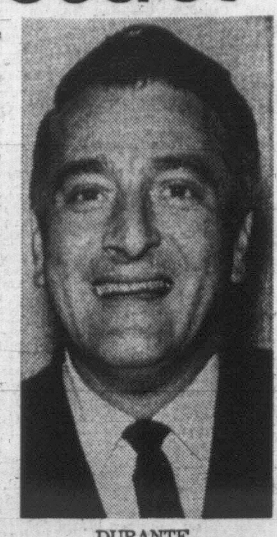

"I expect it might be very conservative."

"Apart from the fooferaw about national unity," the Liberals have offered only what Mr. Barnett described as a "Mitchell Sharp" — type of economics.

Critics have said External Affairs Minister Sharp, when he was finance minister, was too conservative in his policies.

'Encouraging' Talks on Hospital

CHEMAINUS — A new hospital at Chamainus came a step nearer Monday after a delegation met Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

AUGUST
.. Chicago-bound

Spokesman Stuart Clement said today: "We had an encouraging meeting and came away feeling optimistic.

"But we realize we do have a considerable amount more preparation work to do and a selling job on the B.C. Hospital Insurance service.

"We did not get a clear, unmistakeable go-ahead to build a new hospital but we did get help and co-operation."

The delegation went to the minster seeking approval in principle to build a new hospital.

"We were offered co-operation in planning a new hospital which will be economically feasible and sound.

"We will eventually have to go to the Cowichan Valley regional board as the body which will have to raise the money."

DUNCAN — Cowichan Indian carver Cicero August will be promoting his people's crafts and Vancouver Island as a holiday attraction when he vists Chicago for the next two weeks.

His visit will be sponsored by the Canadian Exhibition Commission which this year is promoting a "Vacationland Canada" road show through the United States.

Cicero has just returned from a similar tourist promotion mission to San Francisco.

DUNCAN — Cowichan district school trustees have congratulated former Duncan high school student Diane Juriloff.

Acting schools superintendent Robert Moss reported Diane has achieved the unusual distinction of being given an assistant professorship at UBC while still in her third year.

Diane is a zoology student and her university progress was brought to the board's attention by her former Cowichan senior secondary school teacher Jev Tothill.

COURT CLIPS WINGS OF AIR COMMITTEE

OTTAWA (CP) — The air transport committee of the Canadian transport commission does not have the power to make general orders restricting competition among airlines, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

In a unanimous judgment the high court ruled invalid five general orders of the committee prohibiting non-scheduled flights on routes served by scheduled airlines.

Also struck down was an order prohibiting non-scheduled airlines from using bases that are also used by scheduled airlines.

The court said the general orders required the approval of the cabinet. This had not been sought in the general orders in question.

The court made the ruling in upholding lower court decisions in an appeal brought by North Coast Air Services, Ltd., and Alert Bay Air Services, Ltd., both of British Columbia.

Saturna Prepares For Lamb Barbecue

Saturna Island is preparing for 1,200 visitors in hundreds of pleasure craft for its annual Dominion Day lamb barbecue.

Visitors will come mostly from south Vancouver Island, augumented by a fleet of boats from Bellingham, Seattle and Vancouver.

Twenty-six locally raised lambs, spitted and slowly roasted over open fires, will be served with Spanish rice, salad and buttered rolls at 2 p.m.

The event, which has become a feature of Gulf Island life, is sponsored by the barbecue committee of the Saturna Community Club.

The program includes games for children, a tug-of-war and a pig diaper changing, lamb calling and nail driving contests.

Louise Money, secretary, said there is good anchorage off Saturna beach at Crocker Point. Boats can also tie up to floats.

Fires for roasting fill be lit before dawn and the spitted lambs placed in position about 9 a.m. Sports events will start about noon and will continue throughout the day.

HISTORY REVIVED

Marble Tomb Holds Memory Of CPR Past

By ELIZABETH FORBES

"He will be remembered as long as there is a person in Alberta who can trace a way back to pioneer days."

Forbes

The man who said those words was not young. His face was rugged and wind tanned. His hair stood up in a white crest and his eyes were framed in squint wrinkles.

He had come quietly up behind me as I stood looking down into the silence of a white-walled crypt behind a church at St. Albert (north of Edmonton) where Father Lacombe sleeps in death beneath a marble tomb.

I didn't know this man beside me but obviously we were both there to pay our respects to one whose life story is woven into the history of the Canadian west.

★ ★ ★

The crypt was the first step in our pilgrimage. It was quiet and still. Light slanted down on the tomb from windows high in the walls. There was a small altar at the far side and a few chairs in a semi-circle at the rear.

"They come to pray beside him," the man explained. Then he passed through the open door and down the few steps to the floor of the crypt.

I went on to the museum at the far side of the church. When I opened its doors, I was in the past. For enclosed behind its red brick walls is the log chapel Father Lacombe built near this spot in 1861 as part of his beloved St. Albert's Mission.

The chapel now contains many things used not only by the missionary priest but by the people of the plains whom he called his children.

★ ★ ★

Everything tells a story. There are weapons from the Indian and Metis uprisings of the 1880s reminding you that Father Lacombe was a friend of Chief Crowfoot and that through his friendship he was able to persuade the chief to keep his Blackfoot braves out of the fight.

There are plowshares and cooking utensils, mute evidence of the hardships of the early pioneers with whom Father Lacombe shared privations and sometimes, near starvation.

An 1870 handpress is worn smooth by the touch of the priest's fingers. The Bible he used in his missionary treks is there, also the wooden rocking chair he loved and the small altar from which he spoke 100 years ago.

★ ★ ★

There are old-time photos of Father Lacombe, his parents, brothers and sisters, some of whom lived in or near St. Albert. Pictures, too, of missions he established, priests with whom he worked and of well-known Canadians he called his friends.

One in particular held my attention. Perhaps because the man who spoke to me at the crypt was there to tell me the story behind it.

It showed Father Lacombe and Lord Mount Stephen of CPR fame when they were old in years, seated under some trees in a garden at the Lacombe Home, which the priest had founded in one of the two towns in Alberta named for him (St. Albert and Lacombe).

The two old friends appear to have been so interested in talking to each other they were oblivious as far as the photographer was concerned.

★ ★ ★

This recalled to my self-appointed guide, the time when CPR track was being pushed across the prairies and Indian tribes didn't like the idea.

Father Lacombe was asked to come to the trouble spot and talk to the Indians. Because they trusted him, they listned, The surveyors and the construction crews were allowed to work in peace.

When one of the first trains reached Calgary, Father Lacombe (then in charge of a parish in that town) was invited to a luncheon aboard with Stephen, Donald Smith (later Lord Strathcona), Van Horne and many others. During the gathering, the missionary priest was named president of the CPR for an hour and Stephen accepted a 60-minute term as rector of the Calgary parish.

Father Lacombe also received a gift of $10,000 for his work and a life-time pass to travel where he chose on all CPR lines.

Today, that pass hangs on the wall of the old chapel in St. Albert, close beside the picture of the railway tycoon and the pioneer missionary priest who became life-long friends.

BASKING in moment of glory as election returns give his Liberal party majority government is Prime Minister Trudeau, who plans September session of Parliament. (CP Wirephoto.)

Minor Shuffle Pledged For New Grit Cabinet

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau in a victory statement Tuesday night announced there would be as many as six new faces in a revised cabinet to be unveiled within a week.

The new cabinet would hold its first meeting next Wednesday, he told a press conference here.

The next session of Parliament would be in the second week of September, the normal time lapse following an election, unless an urgent situation required Parliament to be summoned sooner.

The first speech from the throne will contain "a great deal of reforms" he said.

Among the reforms will be changes in parliamentary rules to enable Parliament to handle more rapidly the great work load placed before it by the government.

EXPECT MUCH

Mr. Trudeau said in winning the election he is aware that the people expect a lot from him. He said he would strive to live up to those expectations.

He cautioned however, "Governments alone cannot produce a better country." He urged all Canadians to show more interest in running the affairs of the nation. He was pleased with the participation in the political affairs of the nation by the younger people as demonstrated during the election campaign.

He expects to attend the prime ministers' conference in the United Kindom next fall.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Asked if he would go to visit President Johnson, Mr. Trudeau indicated he would not be as specialized in the field of foreign affairs as had been his predecessor L. B. Pearson. He suggested he would be leaving more of that work in external affairs to his minister, presumably Mitchell Sharp.

As usual Mr. Trudeau played it cool with the customary nice turn of phrase. The election campaign was "a great adventure in discovery" as he travelled the country.

SEES TOLERANCE

He promised a "forward-looking and constructive program" for the newly-elected Parliament. The election was fought "in a mood of tolerance." Much hard work lies ahead and the government will start immediately.

The statement was read in English and French before television cameras. Then he fielded questions and, as usual, wasn't trapped by any.

He had nothing new to offer on the settlement of the seaway workers' strike. He would be handicapped a little in raising the economic level of the Atlantic provinces because of the few Liberals elected from the area. But the job would be tackled anyway.

OTHER FACTORS

He warned against interpreting the Quebec vote as a reaction to his constitutional policies alone. Other factors entered into the return of a Liberal majority from the predominantly-French speaking province.

His own role in the election victory was "a little overplayed" by the press.

The separatist-inspired riot in Montreal on election-eve at the Saint Jean Baptiste Day parade, which he reviewed, did not weigh heavily on the election outcome. It might have confirmed the voting inclinations of some people.

SOON OVER

The conference was soon over. His press secretary, Romeo Leblanc, cut the questions off. And Mr. Trudeau went out of the room into the mob of well-wishers outside.

Later, he shared a drink with reporters and his personal staff at a post-midnight party in another hotel room.

He had watched the returns come in on television earlier in a fifth-floor suite in the Chateau Laurier.

Gamble Pays In 154 Seats

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pierre Elliott Trudeau challenged Canadians to "take a risk with the future" and the voters accepted Tuesday, handing his Liberal government a solid majority in the national election.

The 48-year-old bachelor took something of a gamble himself in calling the election three days after he became prime minister April 20.

But it paid off as the Liberals gained strength in Ontario and the West, just about held their own in Quebec and emerged with 154 seats in the 264-seat Commons.

Like the winning Liberals, the New Democrats and Creditistes gained.

Robert Stanfield's Conservatives showed strength only in the Atlantic provinces and slumped to 71 seats from 97 after the 1965 election.

It was a black day for the Conservatives as their front-bench line was riddled by the Trudeau attack.

But it was black for New Democrats also as their leader, T. C. Douglas, took a personal defeat in a close and bitter fight with Liberal Ray Perrault in Burnaby-Seymour, where a recount seems likely. It was Mr. Douglas' 13th federal or provincial election.

The Social Credit party was wiped out entirely as it was in 1958.

Record Turnout of Electorate

Voting turnout was a record, an estimated 8,295,200. But the percentage of eligibles voting was about the same as in 1965, about 75 per cent.

The election was the sixth since 1957 and the first to produce a majority government since John Diefenbaker led the Conservatives to a landslide win in 1958.

For Mr. Trudeau, lawyer, writer, professor and non-conformist world traveller, it was the climax of a spectacular rise since his entry to politics in 1965.

After only 12 weeks as Liberal leader, he gained the Commons majority that Lester B. Pearson sought unsuccessfully to build in 1958, 1962, 1963 and 1965.

Briefly, after polls started closing in Eastern Canada and the Conservatives showed surprising strength in Newfoundland, it looked as though the goal might be missed again.

The Conservatives took six of seven seats in Newfoundland, which had been all-Liberal before, and added to their power in other Atlantic provinces.

At one point, 54-year-ol Mr. Stanfield, also in his first federal fight, gave his wife a happy hug and let himself "hope" the wave would continue.

But the returns started coming in from Quebec and Ontario it was clear the Trudeau excitement — "Trudeaumania" — had caught on. At 9:29 p.m. EDT The Canadian Press reported election of a majority Liberal government.

Mr. Stanfield, taking a look at the results later, said he had known before the voting his party could expect no more than 75 to 90 seats.

Five Liberals, four Conservatives and two NDP winners had margins under 200 votes and could be upset by the armed forces vote, being announced Saturday.

Two Cabinet Ministers Lose

Mr. Trudeau lost two cabinet ministers, Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve and Charles Granger, minister without portfolio. His Liberals were hit hard in Newfoundland, shut out again in Prince Edward Island an cut slightly in Quebec to 55 from 56 seats.

But the gains from Quebec westward more than compensated. In Ontario the Liberals went to 65 from 51 seats and in Brit-

Yacht Founders

RAMSTEIN, Germany (UPI)—Edith Baumann, the only female contestant in the Plymouth to Newport, single-handed yacht race, messaged this afternoon that her sloop had sunk and she was drifting, with her dog Schatz, in a black rubber raft in the mid-Atlantic.

Jewels Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP) — The wife of former Vancouver Sun publisher Don Cromie said Tuesday an estimated $45,000 in jewelry has been stolen from her Shaughnessy Heights home. Mrs. Cromie said she learned of the theft Sunday but did not determine the extent of the loss until Tuesday after taking an inventory of valuables.

Party Stands, But . . .

WILL DOUGLAS RISE FROM PERRAULT KO?

By DENNIS ORCHARD

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — The New Democratic Party still stands, but its leader is down.

This time, after his second personal beating in the last four federal elections, T. C. Douglas, 63, may not rise again.

The doughty socialist lost Tuesday—by 93 votes among 39,564 cast in Burnaby-Seymour riding—to Liberal Ray Perrault.

Nationally, the NDP held its own with 23 seats, but this astonishing contest must shake the party to its roots, and make immediate retirement a decision that Mr. Douglas will surely consider.

He waits now for the service vote, which went 2-to-1 against him in the last election, and a certain recount of the ballots.

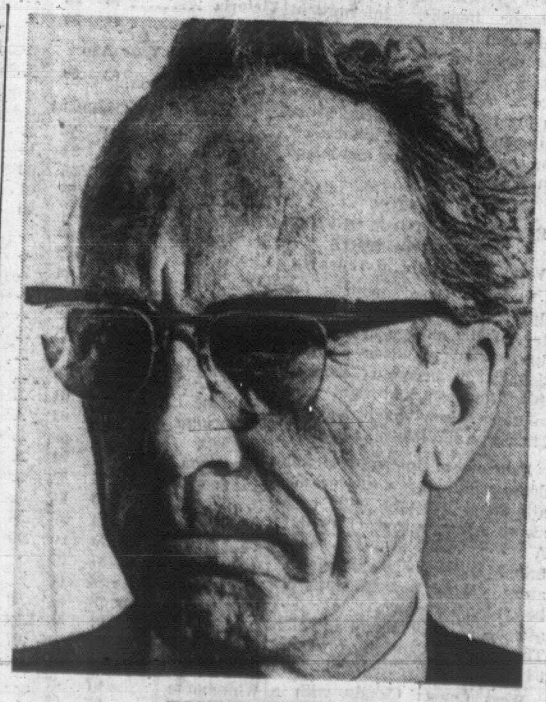

Contradictory counts, and reports of unsealed ballot boxes, confused the issue Tuesday night and Mr. Douglas refused comment on the final result or on his political future.

PARTY FACES PROSPECT

But his early departure as leader, which seemed to be pending before the next election in any case, was a prospect facing the party.

Mr. Douglas lost before, in

OWN FUTURE PLACED IN DOUBT

Stanfield 'Ready for Defeat'

By GERARD McNEIL

HALIFAX (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert L. Stanfield accepted his party's defeat in the federal election gracefully Tuesday night and said he had been ready for it.

"It was apparent from the outset that the contest of this election was not easy for us, coming immediately on top of the Liberal convention and Trudeaumania," he told a news conference after reading, with composure, a statement conceding the defeat of his party.

He said he was aware by election eve the Liberals would win.

Polls and predictions had forced him to recognize "that something between 75 and 90 seats would be as much as we could expect."

Expected or not, the result placed Mr. Stanfield's political future in doubt in a party noted for tough handling of its leaders. The 54-year-old Nova Scotian ousted John Diefenbaker only last September in a party leadership convention.

Tuesday's vote dropped Conservative strength in the 264-se.. Commons to about 72 seats from the 94 held at dissolution April 23, when Prime Minister Trudeau called the election.

"I think the government will shortly be judged by its performance," Mr. Stanfield said at his headquarters here.

WILL STAY AT HOME

He said he has no firm plans about returning to Ottawa and will stay in Halifax, where he won personal election easily.

In his formal statement, he congratulated Mr. Trudeau and assured him Conservatives will form an "informed, vigorous, effective and responsible" opposition.

The party would also recognize its responsibility to encourage a genuine and effective unity in Canada and "to encourage the governmentt to meet certain basic problems" which if not met would mean "very serious consequences" for the country. He said the election hadn't solved the problems that existed when it was called.

BARNETT BOOSTS LEAD

New Democrat Tom Barnett held a 122-vote lead at press time over Liberal Richard Durante in the Comox-Alberni riding.

Three polls in the far-flung riding still were to be heard from. (See earlier story on page 50).

Mr. Barnett has held the seat since 1953.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1968—PAGE 15

Arthur Mayse

Not for years had I thought of Paddy O'Toole, the sour little gargoyle who was fire warden for Buckem & Yardem when I first worked on that highball railway - logging show. But this post - election morning broke rainy, and a laden bough leaned across the beach trail to sluice water down my neck.

"June," I growled to my partner. "The season of brides and roses!"

Those were Paddy's words, come back from another June, when the rain sifted down daily on slash and raven-haunted green timber.

A distant donkey-whistle would signal the nooning. Before its wail had ended, we'd down tools and break out nosebag lunches and coffee makings. Paddy would kindle a fire with a fistful of wet dynamite. As the first wonderful, warming flames took hold on the cedar, he would scowl across the misted valley.

"June," he'd declare with sardonic bitterness. "June, the season of brides and roses."

★

No answer was expected. We of his crew were spark-chasers, our fair-weather patrol jobs washed out by the endless rain, and dirty-work our lot. In the logging camp pecking order, we rated as the lowest of the low. Paddy spoke to us no oftener than the job demanded, and then with heavy sarcasm.

Our sodden little band hated him and wished him ill, a fact of which Paddy was well aware. I think he took pleasure in it.

Each winter, he worked as a pump-tender, batching alone in a remote shack. For company he had cougar and deer, and a dream that he revealed to us in a moment of rare expansiveness.

This was to find, stalk and marry a well-heeled widow.

"Then" he told us dourly, "they'll all be laughing on the other side of their faces."

"They" were the hearty loggers, among whom Paddy rated only a notch above us.

But he was our strawboss that wet June, and he drove us hard, whether the chore was slashing fire-trails through devil's club and salmonberry, or clearing a new campsite. I will say this for Paddy. He taught us how to work; and therein lay the chief reason for our hatred.

★

One morning, the big speeder known as the Galloping Goose fetched us clickety-clack to a rail spur on which an empty flat car waited.

Close by sat a vast black cookhouse range. Our task: to load it on board.

There were four of us, and our scrawny mentor. We gaped at the monstrous stove, then at Paddy. One of our dismayed quartette said "You're kidding!"

Paddy pulled on his gloves. He gave his college-boy crew a contemptuous stare, then jerked his thumb at a pile of massive planks.

"We rig a ramp," he said, "and we heave the stove up it."

To our amazement, we did just that. At one point, the range teetered over us, ready if it slipped to squash us like beetles. The task darn near killed us, but we accomplished it.

Next day, we dug latrine pits for the new camp. On the way home, the Galloping Goose hopped the rails at a curve. The rest of us dived into the brush and escaped with bruises and scratches, but Paddy O'Toole broke a leg.

We had looked forward in hate-sessions to something like this; but faced by the actuality, we felt guilty, sorry, and in an odd way, lost. The stern little tyrant lying hurt and wan with our jackets spread over him against the rain had taught us to do the impossible. Who now would teach us?

"Hey, Paddy," one young malingerer said. "June, huh? The season of brides and roses?"

Paddy nodded. We boosted the Galloping Goose back on the steel, and it carried him away. I never saw him again, and can only hope that in some season of brides and roses he married his rich widow.

They All Had Raves For Couple of Daves

Winners' circle was crammed with friends and admirers and family at Liberal headquarters in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich Tuesday night and victorious candidates David Anderson and David Groos were applauded, back-slapped, rocked by hearty handshakes and bedecked with a dozen shades of lipstick. Above, Mr. Anderson beams from throng and at right, Mr. Groos collects tribute from Mrs. Groos, left, and family members Madeleine, 17; Brian, 15, and Hilary, 13, right. Another daughter, Llanra, 19, is at present at Ottawa. Mr. Anderson wound up evenihg witn a party for his youthful supporters — and it turned out they were all youthful — at Red Lion, while Mr. Groos entertained at his home. Both candidates expect to be called to Ottawa for reconvening of the House, September 15. Mr. Anderson has promised he will return here every month to try to keep his campaign organization flourishing. Helping him, as he helped him in his campaign, will be his brother Malcolm, top left, with both hands raised. (Times photos.)

$4.5M VOCATIONAL UNIT

Fall Start Set On Big School

Bids in Month On First Stage

By JIM HUME

Construction will start this fall on the first stages of what will ultimately be a $4.5 million technical vocational school for Greater Victoria.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Tuesday afternoon that tenders for the first stages of construction would be called "in a month or two" with construction scheduled to start shortly after.

"Things are moving along very well with the drawings in the final stage of checking," he said. "I can't give a specific date for calling tenders or for a construction start because there are always odds and ends to clear up, slight modifications to the plans and various clearances from the treasury board.

"But we shall call tenders in a month or two and construction will definitely start this fall."

WILKINSON ROAD

Chosen site for the vocational school is on Wilkinson Road midway between the Glendale School for retarded children and the old Wilkinson Road jail.

Mr. Chant said the school would be built in phases.

"The first stage will see the construction of a heating plant and a large workshop catering to multiple trades," he said. "I can't give you figures on what the ultimate population will be. The school as we envision it today will delevop like the Burnaby Vocational School. It will grow a little each year."

Asked if the original $4.5 million total cost still applied Mr. Chant answered, "Well I wouldn't reduce it any, construction costs do tend to go up you know."

SOME SKEPTIC

Local education authorities received the news with a degree of skepticism.

In October, 1963, then Minister of Education Leslie Peterson announced a $2.5 million vocational and technical training school for Greater Victoria.

In August, 1964, little less than a year later with no positive sign of the school, Premier W. A. C. Bennett reiterated the promise of a vocational school but trimmed the cost to $2 million.

There followed close to three years of constant agitation by education authorities but little sign of renewed promise from the provincial government.

Then, in January, 1966, J. S. White, provincial director of technical and vocational training, announced a $4 million vocational school to be built on 30 acres of land at Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway.

Construction was scheduled to start early in 1967 with the first students moving into the workshops in 1969.

In mid-1967 the provincial government assured local authorities that plans were actually being drawn and would be completed in December of that year. But that there had been a site change with Wilkinson Road favored over Burnside.

Apart from Mr. Chant's positive assertion that the plans are now complete except for minor adjustments, school board chairman Peter Bunn says he is wondering if this is just another in a long series of fruitless promises.

"The announcement doesn't surprise me," he said. "There's a byelection coming up in Oak Bay, one the premier would dearly love to win.

"I have said before and don't mind saying again, this government doesn't do anything unless it is politically opportune.

"I hope they mean it this time. Nothing would give me more pleasure than to see a vocational school in action and serving the needs of the hundreds of secondary school youngsters not going on to university.

'LONG OVERDUE'

"Such a school is long overdue. It was overdue is 1967 when we first started agitating. But it has been made abundantly clear over the years that dams and super-ports are more important to this government than the educatioal needs of our children:"

Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, said organized labor would profoundly welcome the building of the school.

"It is a matter of record that labor organizations have been advocating a trades school for the past 50 years," he said. "We have always been very concerned about youngsters coming into labor without adequate training or skills.

'GREAT NEWS'

"If the government really means it this time it's realy great news."

When the proposed school was first announced government officials stated it would offer courses for automotive engineers, electricians, welders, cooks, waitresses, secretaries and bookkeeping.

Entrance requirements for most subjects were to be a Grade 10 minimum with some courses limited to Grade 12 graduates.

It was also stated at that time that an advisory committee comprised of representatives from business, labor and commerce would be formed to advise on various programs.

'SOUPED UP' NAVY BLASTS RATTLE CITY

A series of explosions which jolted Victoria residents around 9 this morning were set off by navy divers training off Bentinck Isand, near Race Rocks.

Canadian Armed Forces spokesmen said divers from the Clearance Diving Establishment West fired a string of quarter pound line charges.

The unsual transfer of sound and vibration to the Victoria area was a result of the heavy overcast condition of the weather.

The divers have been training in the area, 10 miles from the city, since Monday and will continue until Friday. Military authorities have issued directions to reduce the charges until weather conditions change.

Reminder to Oak Bay: It's Not Over Yet!

By BRUCE YEMEN

The Oak Bay provincial byelection campaign is off and running with hardly a gasp for breath after the federal campaign.

Both Liberal candidate Allan Cox and Social Credit candidate Peter Pollen have working organizations ready to swing into high gear.

A New Democratic Party candidate has not been named in the July 15 byelection to fill the seat vacated by Alan Macfarlane, Liberal MLA who was appointed to the B.C. Supreme Court.

The Oak Bay contest — one of three being held in the province — was much to the fore Tuesday night during celebrations at Liberal David Groos' headquarters.

Mr. Cox, campaign manager for Mr. Groos, had hardly shaken the winner's hand before his own campaign manager, Harold Olafson, was urging about 100 Groos' supporters to get in and fight for victory in Oak Bay.

There were a few mock "oh no" gasps from weary campaigners and then cheers for the forthcoming battle.

Liberals are expecting a tough fight from Mr. Pollen and they were aware of his "presence" in the Groos headquarters through the television election broadcast which the automobile dealer's firm sponsored.

Mr. Pollen, who worked in the federal Conservative campaign, said today he has 200 campaign workers including many Liberals and Conservatives.

About 35 cars will be out tonight putting up campaign signs and literature is set to go out next week, Mr. Pollen said.

The Liberals dropped 12,000 brochures into the maill at noon Tuesday for Oak Bay residents.

"Trudeaumania" is not regarded as much help to Mr. Cox because provincial issues are substantially unlike federal ones.

Mr. Pollen feels the Liberal national win emphasizes the desirability of strong stable governments — something that he feels only Social Credit can offer in B.C.

He charged the NDP will not run a candidate in Oak Bay in an effort to help "fragment" politics in the province.

EXPRESSIONS OF HOPE

Businessmen Hail Majority Regime

By AB KENT

B.C. business and industrial leaders today greeted the election of a majority government as a stabilizer for Canada's economy.

Hopes for improvement in the construction industry in particular were expressed by A. G. Shore, president of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., who looks for "a fresh burst of activity in the country."

"We can't get along booming one year and cut off the next," he said. "I would like to see something along the line of five-year plans and I think a stable government like this should be able to give us something like that."

Trust company manager Douglas Abbott said:

"Everyone rejoices that we have a majority government."

This will no longer "waste the time of Parliament" in long debates. "Now let's get on with it," he said.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president William Armstrong said:

"As a citizen I'm relieved that it's a majority government."

Investment dealer William Du Moulin:

"The prime minister is a dynamic figure and no doubt he attracted a lot of people to him. He is a pragmatist that realizes many problems lie before him, including financial and economic problems.

"Perhaps with a majority he can work to long sought-after solutions."

Mr. Du Moulin said he felt the Conservative members would offer "useful and constructive opposition."

He also noted it is the first time in more than a decade B.C. has had such solid representation in the federal government.

William Anderson, Vancouver, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"We are gratified that we do now have a majority government (to deal with) problems facing the country, and we have every confidence those problems will be dealt with. The Canadian Chamber will co-operate."

Better prospects for the shipbuilding industry and merchant marine were seen by Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, which last year went out of the shipbuilding business to concentrate on industrial work.

GOOD MEN LOST

"I hope shipbuilding, merchant marine and other matters associated with shipping will receive good consideration from the new government," Mr. Husband said.

"I am pleased to see a party with a good working majority. I would have liked to see a stronger opposition ... There were some good candidates lost in both parties.

"The 15 Liberals in B.C. will give this province a good voice in national affairs, which is fitting as the gateway to western Canada," Mr. Husband said.

POPULAR HOST of CBC television show Front Page Challenge, Fred Davis will address the annual Jaycee convention luncheon Thursday at the Empress Hotel. Convention registration was today. In the afternoon, Mr. Davis will address the Jaycee women's meeting. The convention ends Saturday.

Hovercraft Incorrectly Identified

A picture of a hovercraft carried Tuesday by the Times was mistakenly identified as one destined for a Vancouver company planning to institute passenger service between the mainland and Vancouver Island.

The vehicle shown on board ship was en route to a Vancouver base, having been bought by the transport department for Canadian Coast Guard service on the Pacific coast.

It is an SRN-6 vehicle that will be used in search and rescue and evaluation.

Sub-Committee Asked to Explain By-Passing of Hospital Report

Directors of the Regional District Hospital Board this afternoon called for explanations from a sub-committee recommending rejection of the Agnew-Peckham report on hospital services.

The 330-page, $40,000 blueprint for hospital development made major recommendations for a new 250-bed hosptial near Elk Lake and the recreation of a new St. Joseph's Hospital on or near its present site.

The hospital district's subcommittee, subsequently supported by the advisory committee on hospitals, ignored both recommendations and came up with an alternative that startled civic leaders.

Both committees were scheduled to present their formal resolutions to the district board this afternoon.

They have listed as priorities: an immediate start on planning a 650 to 800-bed acute care hospital near Elk Lake; the phasing out of the present St. Joseph's Hospital; transfer of the administrative staff from St. Joseph's to the new hospital; major renovations for Royal Jubilee Hospital and construction of an extended care unit on the outskirts of the city.

The majority voting block on the board, comprised of Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay was expected to call for tabling of the recommendation until a special meeting can be held with the sub-committees explaining to the full board their reasons for rejection of Dr. Harvey Agnew's detailed plans.

Dr. Agnew was particularly specific in recommending that St. Joseph's remain in its present location.

- The general location is excellent for a major hospital.
- A first-class hospital could be developed on the site more economically than a new major hospital could be built elsehwere.
- A new St. Joseph's on the existing site makes top-flight hospital care available for the downtown section of the city and provides easy access from the northern and western rural areas.

The sudden switch of the priorities committee, which surprised St. Joseph's officials as much as it did civic leaders, was not backgrounded, but it is known that medical profession commands great influence on the committee.

Regional board directors this afternoon were careful not to close the door on the priorities recommendation. They just want explanations as to why a local committee should, after a brief study, choose to reject a report 18 months in the making.

Ask The Times

Q. A recent "Time" magazine obituary states Canadian senator Charles G. Power resigned his position during Second World War when prime minister Mackenzie King conscripted 16,000 "Zombies" for overseas duty in 1944. Wasn't it true that conscription was only for home service? G.G.

A. Under an amendment to the conscription act passed in 1942, the government was given authority to send men overseas by orders-in-council when there was sufficient need. On Nov. 24, 1944, the measure was implemented and 16,000 home service "Zombies" were conscripted for overseas duty. On Nov. 27 of that year Mr. Power resigned, reportedly for the reason cited in "Time" magazine.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Sailor Visits Foster Child

Over 400 sailors from the destroyer escorts HMCS Saskatchewan and HMCS Qu'Appelle are homeward bound following a visit to the Orient, and for one the best memory is that of a child.

About two years ago, Petty Officer Donaldson T. Jordan along withis family and 12 boy scouts in his troop, undertook the foster-parenthood of Lau Shi Fun in Hong Kong.

Sponsorship of the nine-year old girl was undertaken through the agencies of the Canadian Foster Parent Plan.

The 12 scouts, members of the Handicapped Boy Scout Troop of greater Victoria, have already received news of the visit through letters and photographs sent home by Petty Officer Jordan.

USSR Raps Drunkeness; Gambling Also Nipped

MOSCOW (UPI) — Moscow authorities cracked down Tuesday on drunkeness and gambling in the movies, streets, shops and buses of the Soviet capital.

The Moscow Regional Soviet (Council) introduced new penalties for drunks to supplement a more severe, nationwide law passed two years ago.

The 1966 law provided mandatory hospitalization for up to two years for alcoholics and ruled that the normal penalties for crimes would be increased if the criminal was drunk at the time.

The regional Soviet's decree recognized that many of the drunks, while annoying, are not serious enough nuisances to warrant these serious penalities.

It instituted administrative fines of up to 10 rubles ($11) for persons who are drunk on the streets or in stadiums, parks, gardens, recreation parks, theatres, movies, markets, buses, railway stations and shops.

It also banned drinking in shops or snack bars where liquor is not sold or in parks or the entrances to apartment houses.

Gambling also was banned in the same places.

BURNHAM

Formal Complaints Filed Against Local Candidates

Independent candidate George Burnham Tuesday filed formal complaints of election irregularities against five area candidates.

Victoria returning officer David Wilson, who received the complaints, said today they were being studied and would be sent on to the deputy chief returning officer in Ottawa.

Mr. Wilson was to study the Elections Act today to see what other steps should be taken in dealing with the complaints.

The 77-year-old candidate, who polled 501 votes, said he would keep fighting for the law to be carried out.

Mr. Burnham charged that four area candidates — David Anderson, George Chatterton, Dr. Harvey Richardson and Don Johannessen — took part in Sunday radio broadcasts in contravention to the Elections Act.

Mr. Wilson said Saturday he had reiterated that a justice department ruling that the 48-hour Elections Act ban on political broadcasting took precedence over a Canadian Radio and Television Commission ruling requiring a 24-hour blackout.

Mr. Burnham also charged that voting cards distributed by candidates Eric Charman and George Chatterton were a violation of the Elections Act because they carried the words, "Take this to the polling station with you."

A number of the cards turned up at polling stations and were taken from voters by polling officials.

"I intend to follow through and see that action is taken against these people who have acted in defiance of the act and the returning officer," said Mr. Burnham.

Any person found guilty of violating the elections act can be disqualified for five years from sitting in the House of Commons, voting in a federal election or holding any crown appointment.

No estimate is known of how many candidates across the country took part in Sunday broadcasts but it is believed to be a large number.

Kamloops Turning Point In Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal strategists say they believe the turning point in the federal election campaign occurred at Kamloops on Monday, June 3, about 5 p.m.

Prime Minister Trudeau held an outdoor rally at a sports field at that hour. At least 3,500 turned up. Some put the figure at 5,000, in a city of about 40,000.

A rally of the same proportions in Montreal or Toronto would have drawn 125,000. The Liberals later were happy to get about 40,000 at noon in downtown Toronto.

The Kamloops-Cariboo seat was held in the last Parliament by Davie Fulton, 52, former Conservative justice minister.

Mr. Fulton had a plurality of 4,559 votes in the 1965 election. Liberal Len Marchand turned this into a plurality of 3,211 votes for his party Tuesday, with a few polls still unreported.

Mr. Trudeau had come the previous day from Newfoundland, where his reception was cool, as the election results proved.

Kamloops gave him a real lift.

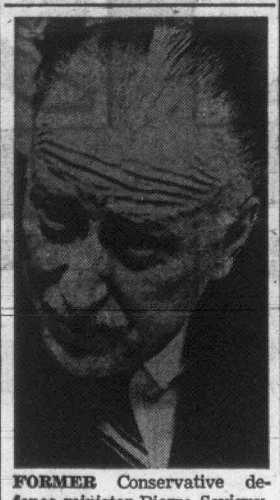

"After Kamloops, he really burned," a Liberal organizer said.

LABOR MINISTER in the former Diefenbaker government and a candidate for the Conservative leadership, Michael Starr, 57, was defeated in a close battle in the Ontario riding of Oshawa-Whitby by Edward Broadbent of the NDP.

VETERAN member of the B.C. legislature, Randolph Harding was successful in his first bid in federal politics. He held on to the NDP seat of Kootenay West previously held by Bert Herridge, who retired this year.

FORMER Conservative defence minister Pierre Sevigny, whose name was linked with playgirl Gerda-Munsinger, ran as an independent Tuesday and lost in the Montreal riding of St. Henri to Liberal incumbent Gerard Loiselle.

FIRST NEGRO IN HOUSE

HAMILTON (CP) — Canada's first Negro MP was elected Tuesday night when Lincoln Alexander, a personable 44-year-old lawyer, captured the riding of Hamilton West for the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Alexander took the riding, previously held by the Liberals, by edging out Liberal candidate Thomas Beckett by 268 votes.

His victory was in doubt until a returning officer double-checked the results early today.

Mr. Alexander took the lead from the start and never fell behind although the race was a cliff-hanger.

He waited until the last poll was in before he made his victory speech to a nearly all-white audience.

"I feel very proud this evening and I am so deeply grateful with this trust," he said.

In his first attempt at politics Mr. Alexander lost by less than 2,000 votes to Liberal MP Joseph MaCaluso in the last federal election.

Mr. MaCaluso, who in 1963 defeated a long-time Conservative MP and cabinet minster, Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, declined to stand for re-election.

A native of Toronto, Mr. Alexander graduated from McMaster University and is a Queen's Counsel. Married, he is the father of an 18-year-old son, Keith.

Park Services Will Be Held

For the 26th successive year, open-air gospel services will be held at the Cameron bandshell, Beacon Hill Park, starting Sunday at 7 p.m.

The services, organized by the Christian Business Men's Committee, will continue through July and August.

The first will be conducted by Rev. Roy Upton, supported by the band and choir of Glad Tidings Tabernacle. Preacher will be Rev. Paul Cantelon from Bellingham, Wash.

New Business Course

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia will institute a doctor of philosophy degree in business administration this fall. The university said the course would be the first of its kind in western Canada, and only the second in the country.

REAL CAOUETTE

'People Understood Creditiste Message'

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Jubilant Real Caouette, leader of le Ralliement des Creditistes, had promised that he would return to Ottawa with a larger number of elected party members than when he left. He kept his word.

"I said at the dissolution of Parliament that we would return in greater numbers and that's the case," he said at his home after watching the Creditiste party win 15 seats in Tuesday's general election, six more than in the 1965 election.

"I am terribly happy. I am elated, but I'm not surprised at all. We are the only ones who made gains in the province."

Referring to his party's Social Credit philosophy, he said: "I told you that the Social Credit is not dead in Quebec. I believe that the people understood the Creditiste message."

Creditistes made their largest gains in the Eastern Townships region and rural counties in the Quebec City area.

Mr. Caouette, 50, a car dealer, was re-elected in the new riding of Temiscamingue in northwestern Quebec.

He led 26 MPs into Parliament in the 1962 general election and this following dropped to 20 after the 1963 federal election.

The party faded in the 1965 general election, electing only nine members to Ottawa.

However, Mr. Caouette was more than confident at dissolution and he was bubbling with joy Tuesday night as he watched the election returns.

A large group of visitors gathered at his home to help him celebrate. He said:

"I believe that we can make other gains and I am elated to see the response Quebec voters are giving us."

IT'S A DISASTER

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker said Tuesday night "the Conservative party suffered a calamitous disaster" in losing the federal election.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who won personal re-election, said his heart went out to Conservative leader Robert Stanfield and to "the many candidates of outstanding merit who suffered defeat.

"From this moment on let us, in this party, do our part to rebuild."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the unity of the country is in question because of the Liberal victory.

He thanked the constituents of Prince Albert for re-electing him in "the last campaign in which I shall take part."
